Berlin's Reply To Be Definite

GERMANY WILL MEET THE ISSUE SQUARELY

Associated Press is Permitted to Give This Assurance, But Tenor of Answer to U. S. is Still a Secret.

Berlin, May 3.—(Via Wireless to the Associated Press Via Sayville.)—The draft of the German reply to the American note has been finished. The reply is subject to minor alterations which May result from interchanges of views between Berlin and general headquarters.

The attitude of Germany will be stated in clear and precise terms. The note will leave no room for doubt concerning the exact position assumed by Germany, which will communicate definite nature of instructions t will be given to submarine mmanders and other data on hich Washington itself can judge the situation.

The Associated Press is permitted to make these statements, although the censorship on dispatches tending to reveal the tenor of the German reply is still effective. The date of delivery of the answer has not been fixed.

NEW INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN.

Fact Raises Hope in Washington for Peaceful Adjustment.

Washington, May 3.—The announcement from Berlin that new and definite instructions are to be given to German submarine commanders is the first positive indication of how Germany will attempt to meet President Wilson's final demand that she declare and effect an abandonment of the present methods of submarine warfare.

Whether the new instructions will meet the terms of the last American note and thus prevent a break in diplomatic relations can only be determined by a close and careful examination.

President Wilson is reported by those closest about him as unshaken in his determination that the issue is not negotiable; that a settlement cannot be delayed by discussion of side issues, such as the British blockade and retaliatory measures and that the controversy between the countries can proceed further in diplomacy only if Germany effectually stops destruction of ships without warning and adopts measures to bring her submarine operations otherwise within the confines of international law. With a declaration that such orders have been given and evidence that they will be carried out in good faith, the president is willing to discuss the conduct of submarine warfare, but only that basis.

There is no relaxing of the determination that the issue shall not be further delayed and complicated by related issues which take the discussion afield. Until this morning Germany's delay in making reply and the absence of any definite report from Ambassador Gerard have led American officials to fear that the Berlin foreign office was planning to send an answer which the United States could not consider other than inconclusive and therefore unsatisfactory.

CAVALRY NOW AT BRADDOCK

State Troops Meet No Opposition at Scene of Fatal Strike Riot.

OFFICERS MAKE MANY ARRESTS

First Step Taken Toward Westinghouse Strike Settlement.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 3.—The first move toward a settlement of the Westinghouse strike was made today when 80 strikers, in secret meeting, appointed a committee to confer with Patrick Gilday, chief of the Pennsylvania bureau of mediation and arbitration, with a view to having him intervene with the company as mediator. Clifton Reeves, of the federal department of labor, addressed the meeting, which was so quietly called it was over before East Pittsburg knew it had been called.

The governor's troop on guard in East Pittsburg rode down into Braddock this afternoon but met with no opposition from the crowds which filled the streets near the Edgar Thompson mills. R. B. Raharin and Joseph Nysecie were arrested by deputies today after a search which included many houses in Braddock. Raharin had been shot in the head and Nysecie in the thigh and hidden by their friends. All the other wounded rioters were arrested at noon and guards placed at their bedsides.

STATE TROOPS ON MOVE.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 3.—Four cavalry detachments of the Pennsylvania National Guard were expected to arrive in Braddock today following the fatal riots there yesterday when two persons were killed, four probably fatally wounded and a score less seriously injured.

Brigadier Logan, commander of the Second brigade, remained all night at his headquarters in a local hotel working out details for the movement of troops. Later he moved his headquarters to the Eighteenth regiment armory and from there will take direct charge of the trouble.

It is the first time in fourteen years that the national guard has been called out for strike duty. In 1902 troops were sent into the anthracite coal regions, but since that time the state constabulary has been able to preserve or-

REFUSE DEMANDS OF TELEGRAPHERS

Nickel Plate and New York Central Announce Final Decision.

New York, May 3.—The demands of telegraphers and signal men on the lines of the New York Central and Nickel Plate railroads for increased wages and better hours will not be granted, it was announced here today by A. T. Hardin, a vice president of the New York Central. A strike which, according to the employes would involve 5,000 men, had been set to begin tomorrow, but H. B. Perham, president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, said today that reasonable time would be granted the railroad officials to give further consideration to the demands. Mr. Perham had not been informed officially of the announcement of Mr. Hardin and said the next move by the employes would depend on the road's future attitude.

Mr. Hardin would not discuss published reports that the roads have been rushing men to various cities between here and Chicago to act as strike breakers should the telegraphers and signal men walk out.

"The New York Central is a public service corporation and any strike will not affect operation of train service," Mr. Hardin said. "We do not expect that the men will quit except in a few isolated cases. We have offered to meet them and to deal fairly with them and if they decide to strike we shall have other men ready to fill their places. There will be no interruption of schedules."

WILL ASK HIGHER STREET CAR FARES

Pittsburg, Pa., May 3.—In a full-page newspaper advertisement this morning addressed to the people of Pittsburg, the Pittsburg Street Railways company announces that by the terms of the settlement of the street car strike yesterday the pay roll of $2,500,000 is increased $500,000, which the company is unable to meet from its earnings, and it is proposed to increase street car fares. Notice is served on the Pittsburg council that immediate steps will be taken to this end.

"Night cars are notoriously unprofitable," the statement says. "The fare for this special privilege is now five cents within the city limits. It should be ten cents."

Up to a few years ago street car fares after midnight were doubled and within the city were ten cents.

The announcement also says that fares to the adjoining boroughs should be increased and that "any ride exceeding three and a half to four miles in length is made at a loss to the company."

The railways company also announced that the "merchant mediators expressed it as their belief that the facts and conditions warranted an adjustment of fares to secure increased revenue."

BIG GUNS ROARING AT DEAD MAN'S HILL

War Activity in Verdun Region is Confined to Artillery.

London, May 4.—The activity of the opposing armies in the Berdun region has been confined to their artillery, but the big gun fire has assumed considerable intensity in the vicinity of Dead Man's hill, west of the Meuse, and of Douaumont, northeast of the fortress, indicating a probable resumption of infantry operations in these sectors in the near future.

Paris reports a sharp conflict in the Argonne region, just west of Verdun, the Germans gaining a foothold in advanced French positions after liberally shelling them with gas-carrying projectiles. The French subsequently drove out the German troops, inflicting heavy losses upon them.

Dublin suffered damage to the extent of something like $8,000,000 during the recent disturbances, according to estimates by the city's fire department chief. The situation in the districts of Ireland outside of Dublin, where the rebellion had gained headway, is now well in hand, today's advices state, while in Dublin itself conditions are gradually returning to the normal.

Telegrams from Spain report the sinking by a submarine of the Spanish steamer Vinifreda of 1,441 tons.

KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS WHEN BICYCLE BREAKS

Just as he was nearing the bottom of the hill on Broadway near Cottage avenue, at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, Clifton Clapesattle, son of George A. Clapesattle, druggist on South Broadway, was thrown with violence to the pavement when the front fork of his bicycle broke. People residing nearby heard groans coming from the street and upon investigation found him lying in the center of the car track, unconscious.

He was taken home in an automobile, where he soon regained consciousness. However, he was so dazed by the fall that he could not tell what had happened to him or what he had done the entire day. He is suffering from a deep cut on his forehead and several painful bruises about his face.

It was thought at first that he had been run into by an automobile but the bicycle gave evidence of the fact that this was not the case. The young man had made a delivery to the county farm and was on his way back when the accident occurred.

HOUSE VISITS PRESIDENT.

Washington, May 3.—Col. E. M. House, President Wilson's closest adviser, arrived here today for a visit at the white house. He is expected to discuss the submarine situation.

MRS. E. C. RURODE IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Prominent Ft. Wayne Woman Succumbs After Illness of Several Months.

After an illness of about two years, which, however, did not take a turn for the worse until last Thursday, Mrs. Emeline Peddecord Rurode, 68 years old, wife of E. C. Rurode, president of the Rurode Dry Goods company, who has been engaged in the mercantile business longer than any other man in Fort Wayne, passed away at 8:40 o'clock Tuesday evening at the family residence, 238 West Berry street, surrounded by members of her immediate family.

Mrs. Rurode was operated upon two years ago and while in failing health she was able to be up and around practically every day until a week ago when she suffered a relapse. From that time on she gradually grew worse till the end, which came peacefully.

Mrs. Rurode was conscious till late Tuesday and realized the seriousness of her condition, but she did not complain. Throughout her entire illness she was exceptionally courageous. Mrs. Rurode was a beautiful character, and a woman with a most charming personality. She was also a devoted mother and homemaker, her greatest pleasure being in making her children and the environments of the home happy and cheerful. As a hostess she was particularly charming and visitors to her home always found a cordial greeting and welcome.

Mrs. Rurode had been a resident of Fort Wayne forty-three years, coming to this city shortly after her marriage to Mr. Rurode at her home in Decatur, Ill., on October 1, 1873. During the years she resided here she always took an active part in the social circles of the city, and possessed an unusually large circle of friends to all of whom her death comes as a great shock.

Mrs. Rurode was born in Decatur, Ill., a daughter of Jasper P. Peddecord and Elizabeth Oglesby. Her mother was a sister of Col. Richard J. Oglesby, who served three times as governor of Illinois and also as a United States senator from that state. Mrs. Rurode spent much of her childhood with Governor Oglesby. She was his favorite niece.

The deceased had been a member and always took an active part in the Trinity English Lutheran church during almost her entire residence in Fort Wayne.

Besides the grief-stricken husband, Mrs. Rurode is survived by three children as follows: Mrs. Howell C. Rockhill, Miss Emeline P. Rurode and Ernst Carl Rurode, jr., of this city, and a sister, Mrs. Isabel P. Vennigerholz, of Decatur, Ill.

Funeral services Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence, Rev. Samuel Wagenhals officiating. Interment at Lindenwood will be private.

ENUMERATION SHOWS SLIGHT DECREASE

There are 753 children in Wayne township between the ages of 6 and 21 years, according to the numeration which is now being completed. There was a decrease of 97 children from last year, which Trustee Henry P. Scherer explains is due to the fact that that a small portion of the township had been taken into the city. The enumerators this year were S. J. Brubaker, Elmer Fox and James Graham.

TEACHERS ARE ORGANIZING.

American Federation's Efforts to Be Nation-Wide.

Chicago, May 3.—An organization known as the American Federation of Teachers today started work in the interest of teachers throughout the United States. At a meeting here last night the organization of the federation was effected and officers were elected. The federation will have as its members organizations of teachers throughout the country which have affiliated with the labor movement. Charles B. Stillman, Chicago, was elected president.

DON'T LIKE THE TIME, NOW.

Tamaqua, Pa., May 3.—Because in granting an eight-hour day the Lehigh Coal and Navigation changed the hour for starting work from 7 to 7:30 a. m., commencing today, the employes went on strike this morning, rendering idle the Panther Creek valley collieries, employing several thousand. A committee will be sent to interview company officials later in the day. The men wan to start at 7, preferring to quit an hour earlier as a result of the company's eight-hour agreement.

LEADERS IN REVOLT EXECUTED IN LONDON

Provisional President Pearse and Three Others Shot After Trial by Court Martial---Birrell Resigns.

London, May 3.—(3:40 p. m.)—Four signatories to the republican proclamation in Ireland have been tried by court martial and found guilty and were shot this morning.

Patrick H. Pearse, the "provisional president of Ireland," was among those shot.

Three other signers of the proclamation were senteneed to three years' imprisonment. Premier Asquith made an announcement to this effect in the house of commons this afternoon.

Another of the rebels found guilty and shot this morning was James Connelly, who was styled "commandant general of the Irish republican army."

Of the other signatories of the republican proclamation found guilty and shot were Thomas J. Clark and Thomas MacDonough.

WHITE HOUSE WINE BRINGS CRITICISM

Resolution of Censure is Offered in Methodist Conference.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 3.—Criticism of President Wilson for providing wine for guests at banquets at the white house was expressed in resolutions submitted to the Methodist general conference today by Rev. James W. Anderson, of Oregon, Mo. The resolution was referred to the committee on temperance. Although the resolution was offered by Dr. Anderson as an individual the entire Missouri delegation supported the action.

The conference resumed its session today with the process of organization nearly completed and the way opened for the introduction of resolutions, memorials and reports upon which action to be taken on proposed church legislation will be based. Suggestions made by the board of bishops in its report are being considered by fifteen committees which will also receive and discuss all memorials before they are submitted to the conference for final decision.

The election of bishops which usually takes place during the latter part of the month will not have an important part in the sessions until the committee on Episcopacy has decided the number to be chosen.

The results of an "every member" canvass authorized by the general conference of 1912 intended to promote the unity and efficiency of the financial plan, were outlined today by Dr. Thomas Nicholson, representing the commission on finance. He stated that although the change has worked satisfactorily in some churches others have devoted nearly their entire income to church building, music and their own purposes, leaving but little for home and foreign missions. Amendments designed to strengthen the plan were suggested.

More than $1,200,000 was paid by the Methodist Episcopal church during 1915 toward the support of superannuated and retired ministers and the widows of ministers. This fact was shown in the report presented by the board of conference claimants.

Provisional Pact in Mexican Situation Awaits Official O. K.

U. S. TO OPERATE IN LIMITED AREA

Troops Will Remain Until Carranza Shows Ability to Handle Case.

El Paso, Texas, May 3.—Advices from Mexico City and Washington are awaited today to set the seal of approval upon a provisional agreement that is understood to have been reached at the informal conference between Alvaro Obregon, minister of war of the Mexico de facto government, and Major General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the United States army.

The conference was not ended until after midnight and the two conferees emerged from the meeting place in good humor. Gen. Scott immediately arranged for the dispatch of a code message to Washington giving the details of the understanding reached with Gen. Obregon.

This detailed report is not expected to reach Washington until late today and its consideration probably will delay the answer to Gen. Scott until Thursday. A similar report is being sent

MUSIC FOR CENTENNIAL

Bands Will Furnish Much Melody at Fort Wayne's Celebration.

CONTEST TO BRING OUTSIDE BANDS HERE

Prizes Will Be Very Attractive to Musical Organizations.

PAGEANT INFORMATION.

All who desire special information concerning the pageant arrangements should call phone 3900, where Secretary Harry W. Muller, of the pageant committee, will answer all questions. This office is located in Shrine hall, Saengerbund building, corner of West Main street and Maiden Lane.

The general headquarters of the Centennial celebration in charge of R. B. Garmire, is located on the second floor of the Commercial club, where matters of concern, aside from the pageant, will receive attention.

Not only will every band in Fort Wayne be engaged for the four days of the celebration, but the band contest which is being arranged under the direction of James L. Shields' committee on contests and the music committee, of which Ross Franklin is the chairman, will bring to the city a large number of excellent musical organizations. Besides these, the committee in charge of the Industrial exposition will bring to the city some world-famous bands, which will remain at the exposition during the entire week.

At the pageant, each evening, a band of fifty pieces, composed entirely of Fort Wayne musicians, will provide the music which will form a great element of the success of the production.

Prizes for Band Music.

The band organizations of the middle west will be interested in the announcement that the Centennial association offers $350 in prizes to the five best bands which will enter into the contest to be held during the week of the Centennial. The prizes are as follows:

For the best visiting band entering the contest, $150. Second best, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25, and fifth, $25. It will be observed that the Fort Wayne bands are excluded from the competition, as are also all organizations which may be hired to discourse music during the week.

The announcement of the band contest will be sent to every city and town within a broad territory around Fort Wayne and a good response is expected. Every band which may be interested in the contest is asked to send for particulars of the event to the secretary of the Centennial, Commercial club, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Cast Grows to More Tahn 1,000.

The historic pageant has gone away beyond the expectation of those who undertook the production. From a production of 500 or 600 people, the cast has been enlarged to exceed 1,000.

"It had to be done," explains Pageant Master Robertson. "With one hundred volunteers from the Moose lodge, as many from the Rotary club, a large number from the Knights of Columbus, the Red Men, Buffaloes, Concordia college and elsewhere, we find ourselves equipped with people filled with enthusiasm to create the greatest historic pageant ever seen in America. With these great groups trained to present their parts, the result will be beyond your present comprehension."

The rehearsal of the large bands of savages, the armies of Kentucky volunteers, the civil war troops and others is considerably simplified by the fact that groups of well acquainted, congenial people are volunteering to assume the responsibility for the success of the individual parts of the play.

The children alone will number one hundred and forty.

The rehearsals of the various scenes of the pageant will continue nightly—except on Sunday—up to the evening of the production. Up to and including Saturday night, May 27, all rehearsals will be held at Shrine hall, Saengerbund building, West Main street and Maiden Lane. Beginning with Monday evening, May 28, rehearsals will be held at the pageant grounds, which, by that time, will be entirely enclosed. The final rehearsals will be in complete dress. On the evening of May 31, a try-out of all scenery, properties and lighting effects will occur, and then, for the last four remaining nights the full company of over 1,000 people, will rehease in complete form the pageant on the stage, which will be used on the three nights of the production.

County Headquarters.

It is discovered that so many residents of other counties are coming to Fort Wayne in large numbers during the Centennial, plans are under way to establish headquarters where the people may assemble for reunions and such demonstrations as they desire to indulge in. At these headquarters the visiting bands and other organizations which might otherwise become "lost" or scattered in the vast crowds, can arrange to assemble at specified times.

THE SUNDAY SERVICE.

Monster Union Meeting to Be Held Just Before the Pageant.

The plan of holding a monster outdoor union sacred song service at the pageant grounds on the afternoon of Sunday, June 4, has met with immediate approval. Every church in Fort Wayne will be invited to participate by attending the union service, which will consist largely of music and an address by Donald Robertson, pageant master.

AN INCENTIVE TO WORK HARD

Understudies Have Eyes on Places of Principals in Pageant.

In arranging the cast for the historic pageant, Donald Robertson has cast two persons for each of the principal characters. The first is termed the principal and the second his understudy. Both will be rehearsed in the parts—in fact, the understudies are urged to attend all rehearsals which summon their particular scenes so as to drop into the parts in case of the absence of the principals. If a principal is absent from rehearsal two consecutive times, he automatically forfeits his place to his understudy.

Since the mass meeting of Monday night, when the people first expressed themselves in uncertain terms as recognizing the pageant as the great opportunity to express the story of Fort Wayne to an interested world, there has been a real desire to become identified with the big production, and many have been disappointed in failing to enroll in time. In case of the failure of any of those enrolled to fulfill their promised loyalty, there will still be opportunities for those who have expressed a willingness to enter the cast.

HOLD DINNER SESSIONS

Centennial Boosters Meet Each Noon to Talk it Over.

The heads of the departments of activity of the centennial celebration began Tuesday noon to hold daily dinner sessions at the Commercial club. On these occasions, business is combined with mastication and talk, with the result that the work of the various committees will go forward with greater facility than would be the case if matters of common interest were deferred until the regular meetings of departments. These dinner sessions will result in greater enthusiasm—if such a thing be possible—and the activities of each department will be spurred through a closer acquaintanceship with the efforts of every other department.

A private dining room has been turned over to the use of the centennial boosters.

NORMAL SCHOOL'S GOOD WORK

Will Place Descriptive Signs to Point Out Historic Spots.

To show their deep interest in the historical element of the centennial celebration, the young ladies of the Normal (Lakeside) school have announced their decision to provide temporary "markers" for all of the unmarked historic spots in Fort Wayne. Miss Flora Wilber and her assistants have planned to provide black wooden signs to be lettered in white, to be mounted on low posts and be placed in such spots as will serve as a guide not only to the thousands of centennial visitors but to the home people as well. B. J. Griswold has been asked to furnish the descriptive matter for these "markers" and to suggest the spots to be thus designated.

The places to be selected will probably include several of the early French sites and those of the English occupation, as well as the spots made famous by Harmar, Wayne, Hunt, Whistler, Vose and other American leaders. Unless the work becomes too burdensome to the young ladies, it would seem wise, also, to point out the route of the famous Maumee-Wabash portage, the route of the Wabash and Erie canal, Colerick's famous opera house, the Rockhill house, the Hedekin house, and many of the more modern, but none the less interesting historical spots.

HONORS CONFERRED ON SEVENTEEN GRADUATES

Annual Commencement of St. Peter's Catholic School Held.

Seventeen students of St. Peter's Catholic parochial school were graduated Tuesday night at the seventeenth annual commencement exercises held in the new school hall. The new hall was crowded to its capacity and all listened with interest to the address delivered by Rev. Charles Thiele, who also conferred the honors and presented the children with their diplomas.

Norman Christen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Christen, was the salutatorian and the subject of his address was, "Praise Ye the Father." As valedictorian, Harold N. Mettler was heard in an elegant address on the class motto, "Finis Coronat Opus—The End Crowns the Work." Both young men showed considerable ability in writing and delivery.

The entire program was enjoyed by all who attended. "The Thief of Time," a playlet in one act, was cleverly produced by six young men. The young ladies of the class gave a playlet entitled "The Ninth Promise Fulfilled."

The members of the class are: Young men—John J. Deck, Norbert A. Christen, Leo C. Koehl, Harold N. Mettler, Elmer A. Molitor, Joseph A. Neher, Clement J. Phillip and Wilfred F. Rohyans. Young ladies—Helen A. Bilskie, Frances M. Burke, Marie M. Gaffer, Ignatia A. Hoffman, Clara B. Junk, Belzonia A. Kever, Grace V. Ohse, Genevieve B. Suelzer and Loretta G. Vorddran.

REAL ESTATE MEN IN ANNUAL BANQUET

About 150 Attend First Annual Affair at Anthony Hotel.

Three speakers furnished the postprandial program for the first annual banquet of the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange, Tuesday evening, in the ball room of the Anthony hotel, which was attended by about 150 members of the organization, business and professional men and their wives. The success of the affair was well worth the frequent postponements, which had become a standing joke among the members of the exchange. Lute H. Moore, president of the exchange, presided.

Following a sumptuous "feed" Mr. Moore introduced Charles Laughlin, of Cleveland, Ohio, vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges of America, as the first speaker. Mr. Laughlin paid a high tribute to the energy and progressiveness of the members of the local exchange when he declared that the Fort Wayne organization had been in a large measure responsible for the success of the Indiana Real Estate association, which is regarded as the livest and best state organization in the country.

Attorney Mezer Speaks.

Attorney Charles M. Niezer was the only local speaker, his address proving to be one of the big treats of the evening. He spoke on "Our Share." "No community can thrive with the savage and the lemon sucker in its midst," he declared. "We find in everything two parts—the part we get and that which we give. The part we get is already here. We are enjoying it. That which we give goes on to the next generation."

Charles L. Dering, of Chicago, ex-president of the chamber of commerce, was the last speaker. He spoke on "Commercial Organization," and during the course of his remarks, urged a merchants marine and national preparedness. Before launching into his address Mr. Dering declared that he had been brought to Fort Wayne under false pretenses. He said he had no idea he would be placed up against the boy orator of Fort Wayne, referring to Mr. Niezer, who had preceded him.

"There are two words most impressed upon us—opportunity and responsibility," he said. "You cannot own one and disown the other. Opportunity knocks at every door in this country. He predicted a wave of great prosperity in this country at the conclusion of the awful struggle now being waged in Europe. He also predicted a better class of immigrants.

One of the big features of the evening was the musical numbers by a quartet composed of Mrs. Zollars-Bond, Miss Ethel Doud, Clinton R. Willson and Earl Thompson. Throughout the banquet music also was furnished by a quartet. The festivities of the evening closed with a dance.

SECOND TAKEN AS ROBBER.

Indianapolis Man Painted Faces Like Indians Before Attacking.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 3.—Marion Green, 19, was arrested, charged with being one of the two young men who painted their faces like Indians and attacked and robbed John J. Lynch, a night watchman at a factory, on the night of April 16. Harry Kurrasch was arrested several days ago. The police say both confessed. In statements made by Green and Kurrasch they explained that they wanted a revolver and decided to get one from the night watchman.

NEW PURDUE ARMORY PLANS ARE COMPLETE

Trustees Expect to Get Money from State by Lawsuit.

Lafayette, Ind., May 3.—Plans and specifications for a new $250,000 armory for Purdue university to replace the building recently destroyed by fire have been ordered prepared and will be submitted at the next regular meeting of the board of trustees of the university. The trustees, according to W. V. Stuart, of this city, a member of the board, are expecting to get the money to pay for the building from the state through a lawsuit instituted some time ago. Former legislature appropriated $121,000 to Purdue for specific purposes, but the money was withheld on the opinion of the attorney general that it was not available on account of another act repealing the appropriation act. Mr. Stuart said $121,000 was due Purdue from last year and an equal amount for this year. This will about cover the cost of the building if obtained.

The university won the suit for the money in the lower court but an appeal was taken. Governor Ralston in a meeting with the trustees lately expressed himself as of the opinion that the university was not entitled to the money. The trustees will receive bids for a new biology building to cost $100,000.

Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Royal, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?"

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

Royal Baking Powder contains no alum nor phosphate.

Miss Dulcia Hall.

Absence of men in Australia during war times does not worry the women of that country. They are able to defend themselves. So declares Miss Dulcia Hall, champion woman jiu jitsu wretsler. The other women of her country have been studying the Japanes art of self-defense and are fully prepared to repulse any bold invader.

On a voyage to San Francisco recently she demonstrated her ability by downing several strong men who pooh-poohed the idea of a woman being able to defend herself. She says she has no fear of a masher or a purse snatcher and offers to throw most any sort of a man who should happen to molest her.

For a year she has been teaching Australian and New Zealand women the tricks of this means of defense.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.—Advertisement.

GIRL HERMITS SEEK HEALTH IN LONELY MOUNTAIN JUNGLE.

Santa Monica, Cal., May 3.—Braving the loneliness and the rigors of the Santa Monica mountains, in a spot 15 miles from the nearest habitation, Bertha Hannum and Mary Bogart, daughters of two well known families of Lynn, Mass., are seeking health and vigor in associations with Mother Nature.

They have been in their mountain camp more than a fortnight now and will remain there, they say, until the first of September.

The girls have built a two-room hut from the branches, bark, grass and other available bits of the wilderness. They have planted a garden with the seeds they took into the mountains with them, and as both are adept with rod and [illegible] they have no fear of a food shortage.

"We are in no danger of being molested or going hungry," said Miss Hannum. "With good fishing and mountains that teem with small game, and fresh vegetables aplenty from a garden at our back door—what more could one ask?"

Edward Hannum, a Lynn attorney, and brother of Miss Hannum, accompanied the girls to this city. When he left them, however, they bade farewell to all human companions.

Skirts have been discarded by the fair hermits and they have assumed the more convenient men's attire.

"In the course of our explorations," explained Miss Bogart, "we have discovered many Indian graves. We hope to find many interesting relics and even to make some discoveries that will be of value to science. Many prehistoric specimens have been unearthed in southern California and it is possible that we may find traces of some ancient and unknown race. This is one of the purposes of our trip."

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

Matt 28:16-20.

16 Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.

17 And when they saw him, they worshiped him: but some doubted.

18 And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

19 Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost:

20 Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen.

Paul fares forth to his heroic task, blest humanly, above most missionaries. But, while the plan was born out of their prayers, it was the Lord's command that urged them on. Prayer and scripture can have but one outlet: "Go." And as we respond we may in all confidence expect divine guidance. The poverty of the church comes from over-activity and frugal waiting. Wait, thou, upon God."

Health Officers in Conference.

That Indiana has never more highly appraised public health as an asset than she is now doing is given new emphasis by the fact that some three hundred health officers from cities, towns and villages of the state have been turning their annual conference at Indianapolis into a very practical school. They have been not merely discussing theories. They have been seeking the tried methods that will get results in the banishment of disease and the conservation of health in their respective localities. It is rather notable and highly creditable as well to see a great convention of this sort impressed with the idea that it has a real purpose in view, and is not merely an occasion for a vacation or a vehicle by which finely spun but doubtful theories are to be carried over the state.

Some big, outstanding facts are being given new emphasis at the Indianapolis meeting. Among them are these: A chief cause of high taxes is preventable disease. Fifty per cent of all taxes is used to support our defectives, delinquents and dependents. Seventy per cent of defectiveness, delinquency and dependency is caused by ill health and disease. Hygiene can prevent ill health and disease.

Some of us, perhaps, have failed to always realize the importance of these truths, or even to grasp them at all. The emphatic manner in which they are now being set forth by the Indiana health officers is bound to bring good results. It will be an excellent thing if the general public as well as the health officials come into a deeper realization of what the public health effort means and what it will be able to accomplish if it is given the support and the co-operation its vital importance deserves.

Men who have money invesed in the American production of dyestuffs estimate that within the past eighteen months this country's output of this commodity has more han doubled. Spurred into action by the impossibility of obtaining the customary supplies in European markets, American genius has been bending itself to its new task with much vigor and with a most encouraging degree of success. Not all the skill of the European experts has yet been matched, and the output is far from sufficient to meet American needs, but we are making distinct progress. There should be the most prompt and cheerful co-operation in the way of legislation that will safeguard and develop this very essential industry.

The suggestion of Cashier Henry R. Freeman, of the First National bank, that systematic provision for the payment of life insurance policies might be made along lines similar to those of the Christmas money clubs has been eagerly seized upon by the local life underwriters as a most excellent idea, and they will seek to induce policy-holders to put it into practice. Behind it, of course, is the basic idea of thrift that urges immediate conservation and persistent adherence to the saving habit. It will work as well in any other avenue as in Christmas savings or in life insurance, and it is a most excellent thing everywhere and all the time.

The World's Court League, at its sessions in New York, is giving emphatic endorsement to the proposal for an international tribunal for the adjustment of all international disputes. As a matter of fact, everybody is in favor of it, and no lands more so than those which are now engaged in the gigantic European struggle. They will cheerfully admit as much. The difficulty has always been in transmitting to actual practice the theory which all agree is a most excellent one, and which would work out very handsomely were it not for the other fellow.

The marrying justices of the peace at Jeffersonville are the latest to feel the crushing force of an assault upon human liberties. For a good many years there have been maintained at this Hoosier Gretna Green insistent "runners" who lay in wait for incoming bridal couples and directed them to their employers to have the marriage knot tied. Now the city council has forbidden this practice under the penalty of a $50 fine. You are now permitted to select your own 'squire if you want marrying done in Jeffersonville.

It is now announced that more than one thousand actors will take part in the presentation of the historical pageant which is to be a part of Fort Wayne's centennial celebration next month. In other words, Fort Wayne believes that what is worth doing at all is worth doing well, and on a scale that measures up to the importance of the occasion.

Of course, after the fizzle of the Irish revolution, it is supremely necessary to have a goat for the occasion, and there are multiplying indications that the English government has picked on Mr. Birrell, the secretary for Ireland, to enact that role. Mr. Birrell, too, appears to appreciate the fact that he is "it."

James E. Watson is going into Virginia to spend a few days in campaigning for a republican nominee for congress in that state. Mr. Watson will reserve his 42 centimetre artillery, however, for his own battle for the senate here in Indiana. That Virginia affair is merely a skirmish, anyhow.

Has 13 Names, But What Would Kids Call Him in a Ball Game?

PRINCE ALPHONSO

He looks like an American boy, a lad who could play a pretty hot game of baseball, but listen to his name—Infant Alphonse Pie Christian Edouard Francois Guillaume Charles Henri Eugene Fernand Antoine Venancio. He is the future king of Spain, and on May 10 will celebrate his ninth birthday, in the royal palace at Madrid.

WOUD ABOLISH PARTIES

(Pittsburg Dispatch).

Former Congressman W. D. Bynum, of Indianapolis, thinks the change from nomination by conventions to direct primaries has not been an improvement, but, unlike many of those who oppose the direct primary, he would not return to the convention system. The one, in his opinion, is as bad as the other, and as ineffective. His remedy is much more sweeping. "I would repeal every law upon our statutes that recognizes political parties. I would provide for the nomination of candidates by safely guarded provisions by petitions. It would have but one ticket upon which should be printed the names of all candidates for a particular office under a single caption without any distinguishing mark to indicate their politics."

This, he admits, would not necessarily abolish parties, but he thinks it would put an end to long, expensive campaigns for nominations and enable the non-professional members of a party to nominate a candidate acceptable to the better element. Our political evils, he believes, spring from the abuse of power officially conferred on the party organizations. Further, he asserts that the demand on an elector that he support the nominee of any party is unwarranted and offensive and that our political machinery is unconstitutional in so far as it excludes voters from the free exercise of their political rights.

Yet even in non-partisan primaries factions or parties have been able to hold together, and it is a fair assumption that they would be just as able if primaries were abolished and the only vote was at the general election. Mr. Bynum's theory seeks to find a mechanical remedy for defects that in the end cannot be cured except by the individual voter. So long as the professional politicians are allowed to monopolize to a large extent interest in nominations and elections, so long as the better element puts up with professional leadership and dictation, either by complacent acceptance of it or by failing to vote at primary or election, no automatic reform can be expected.

SOCIETY GIRL, ON A DARE, DANCED WITH SNAKE TO AID CHARITY.

Miss Florence McCoy in one other poses of her snake dance.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—On a dare Florence McCoy, 22, danced with a snake. Miss McCoy is no ordinary snake dancer, nor is she even a public entertainer. She frequently dances privately, however, at entertainments within her own social set.

But a circus was to be given in public, the proceeds to go to the charity institutions of this city, and Miss McCoy was dared to dance with a snake.

"If you will do it," said Fred H. Solomon, socially prominent here, "I will give a check of a hundred dollars to any charity you choose to name."

So for the sake of the good that would come of the check, Miss McCoy, who detested crowds, and possessed an inborn hatred of snakes, performed before the public at the indoor circus every night for a week with a snake, thus helping to swell the charity fund.

"I can't say that I enjoyed it particularly," she said, "but it was for a good cause, and the snake proved to be really very harmless."

WHY MANY MEN FAIL IN BUSINESS AND WOMEN FAIL SOCIALLY

It is the Bright, Active, Clear-eyed, Healthy individual who meets success, at work or at play, socially or financially.

CADOMENE TABLETS Mean Health to Men

Health is Life, Strength, Vitality, Ambition, the ability, the desire to live, to enjoy, to accomplish. Without health and strength in fullest measure you may not hope to enjoy the fullest measure of success in any undertaking. You cannot make the best of conditions and opportunities. If your mind, your power of reasoning and concentration are dulled or inactive, to any extent, naturally you are less capable to the same extent to make them perform as you would have them to.

CADOMENE TABLETS represent a scientific combination of the most vital elements for building and strengthening cell and tissue. Cadomene Tablets produce buoyancy of spirit, a regaining of vitality and endurance, renewed efficiency of body and mind. Amazing and lasting improvement results from Cadomene Tablets in chronic or recent cases of Nervousness or Failing Vitality.

So if you are a victim of overwork, worry, disease, excesses or dissipation of the mental and physical forces—if you feel tired, weak, nervous, trembling, and suffer with headaches, melancholy, pain in spine and back of head, cold extremities, dreadful dreams of direful disasters, a feeling of timidity and a general inability to act naturally at all times, if you have "the blues" and the pleasures of life are no longer enjoyable, then you need Cadomene Tablets to brace and build you up—to put new ambition, energy and strength into your system and reinforce and nourish the bodily structures. Cadomene Tablets are sold on a money-back-if-not-satisfied-guarantee, and if you are not pleased with results you get every cent of your money back. It belongs to you and we want you to have it.

Cadomene Tablets help men out of the rut of nervous discontent and ill-health, and restore to them the capacity for more complete enjoyment of the pleasures of life. All druggists sell 3-grain Cadomene Tablets in sealed tubes.

crime, shouted: "Come on, boys; let's get him!" With difficulty guards kept the prisoners in line.

Ever since there have been mutterings against Bissell in the prison yard. Prison officials fear an outbreak.

Bissell was brought here in a motor car, having first been taken to Lawrence from Topeka, where he was arrested after the blazing Dinsmore home disclosed the murder.

Topekans in autos crowded to the running boards, followed to Lawrence, threatening to lynch Bissell, but when they reached the county jail there, and a few were admitted, Bissell and his captors were far on the road to Leavenworth.

From Leavenworth he was brought to Lansing.

Edna Dinsmore's funeral in Topeka was conducted by the leading woman's club and attended by a large portion of the population.

The U. S. Patent Office

---Recognizing Something New

Has Granted a Patent, Both on the Form of Flake and Process of Manufacture of

New Post Toasties

This remarkable recognition—no other corn flake on the market has achieved it—marks this new food as something distinctly different from "corn flakes" of the past.

What Is This Difference?

Compare New Post Toasties with the average corn flake--observe the tiny bubbles which cover their surface. These bubbles are caused by a new method of cooking, rolling and toasting under quick, intense heat.

By this process the true corn flavour is developed in all its sweetness. Eaten dry they are a delicious morsel. With cream or milk they are a revelation to the taste. Note the "substance" of New Post Toasties. Unlike old-style "corn flakes" they do not break or "chaff" in the package. They do not mush down under milk or cream. They are wonderfully delicious.

And they come to you direct from the giant ovens of our three great Toastie Factories, untouched by human hand and triply sealed in a moisture-proof container which preserves their fresh, Golden Goodness for your table.

High School P.-T. Club.

The closing meting for this season of the parent-teacher club of the high school, was held on Tuesday afternoon. Dr. M. F. Porter gave a practical talk to the club on the subject of the conservation of health and laid emphasis on the prevention of disease by healthful living and said such was the business and possibility of the people, rather than of the physicans. Dr. Porter told of the cause of much illness and physical defects with which children come into the world; of causes of mortality of infants, and of young children from being fed impure milk, cheap and many times impure sweets, poorly prepared food and then having their pains quieted with medicines bought ready prepared. Dr. Porter gave statistics to prove his assertions and declared that sunshine, pure air and plenty of sleep are better health makers than a shopful of drugs. The election of officers resulted in A. L. Hadley being chosen to succeed himself, as president; H. G. Keegan, vice president; Mrs. J. S. McCurdy, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. J. P. Evans, corresponding secretary and the following committees: On program, Mrs. Walter Burns, Mrs. Arthur Hall, Mrs. John Bosch; on calling, Mrs. Leroy Hartzler and on the social committee, Mrs. A. L. AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Any Man's Sister," a Great Play of Modern Times.

Oscar O'Shea, stage director, who created the part of Stephen Rockwell in the "Any Man's Sister" production, delights in telling of an experience he had when a boy. Like many other recognized actors of the present day, he began his career carrying the spear for Warde and James, Thomas Keene, Robert Mantell, Modjeska, Julia Marlowe, Richard Mansfield, Otis Skinner and Henry Irving when these great actors visited his native town.

On one of those occasions Thomas Keene was presenting "Julius Caesar." O'Shea was on hand to carry a spear, but instead he was selected to play the part of the dead body of "Caesar." When the body was carried on in the Forum scene, covered with a mantle which was covered with dust, due to the carelessness of the property man, Charles B. Hanford, who was playing Marc Antony, had just begun the famous oration, when some of the dust from the mantle, getting into O'Shea's nose, he was seized with a wild desire to sneeze. He held his breath, gritted his teeth and clinched his fists; nearly strangled himself at the time. "Then make a ring about the corpse of Caesar, and let me show you him that made the will." Hanford descended from the platform and gently raised the mantle from the corpse's face, which accentuated the tickling sensation in O'Shea's nose. It was beyond human endurance. "Kerchoo." First, a titter and then a roar from the audience, a smothered oath from Marc Antony. "If you have tears prepare to shed them now," Hanford went on. As the scene finished, the corpse beat a hasty retreat out the stage door.

St. Mary's Alumnae banquet postponed indefinitely.

The Neverfeld Baboons, the most wonderful trained animals in the show business this season are actually riding motorcycles, not bicycles but power propelled two wheelers, as one of their myriad of startling tricks. Closes Tonight.

The current bill will close this evening. It includes a quintet of clever acts that have proved hits in Fort Wayne, among them being the singing novelty, "A Night in the Park;" The Choy Hung Wha troupe of Chinese marvels; Grace Ayres and company in their skatorial oddity; Senator Francis Murphy and his ludicrous political speech and Wilson and Wilson, the senegambian entertainers.

AT THE GRAND

"The Song of the Wage Slave."

"The Song of the Wage Slave," in which Edmund Breese, the eminent dramatic actor, has created the stellar role, will be shown at the Grand today. The story of this five-part photodrama, based on the poem of the same name by Robert W. Service, author of "The Spell of the Yukon," is a distinct departure from the ordinary run of motion pictures, and teems with tense situations. Throughout the picture runs a story of the remarkable love of a man who is called upon and willingly makes the greatest sacrifices possible for the woman he loves. He not only marries her to save her name, after she has been compromised by another, but disappears so he is believed to be dead, in order that she can marry the sweetheart of her youth. Ultimately he sacrifices his life to save hers, after a series of intense dramatic situations.

Compliments for Miss Florence Lang

MISS FLORENCE LANG.

Miss Florence I. Lang, whose coming recital at the Majestic on May 9 is exciting much interest in musical circles, has received some high praise in newspaper notices for her work. A few weeks ago Miss Lang sang with the Sherman Park Choral club, Chicago, in a performance of Rossetter Cole's "The Passing of Summer." A critic wrote: "The soprano role is a very difficult one and Miss Lang sang the work in a finished manner." The Music News said: "Miss Lang has a soprano voice of many possibilities which she uses in a pleasing manner. She has range and power and seemed to feel the meaning of the text throughout. Miss Lang has stage presence which is ingratiating and her style is indicative of experience."

AUTOMOBILE BURNS AT TRANSFER CORNER

A five passenger Maxwell automobile owned by D. J. Bruno, of 632 West Main street, and driven by Clarence B. Sapp was practically destroyed at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday evening when it burst into flames at the transfer corner. The driver leaped to a place of safety when the machine became enveloped in flames.

An alarm was sent in and the chemical lines soon extinguished the blaze. For a while the flames fanned by a stiff wind threatened the building which is occupied by the Alter cigar store. The fire occurred in the busiest part of the day and for a while traffic was badly congested.

The machine had just been filled with gasoline and the driver states that some had run over the running board while the tank was being filled. He believes that a lighted match or a cigar stub ignited the tank.

ESKIMO BELLES LOSE HEARTS TO GALLANTS OF RACE TRACK.

Nome, Alaska, May 3.—The reindeer race driver is the new hero among the Arctic natives.

Eskimo belles have lost their hearts to this gallant of the parka. The young village bloods envy him. And his children, when he's a married man, brag about their dad's prowess to their less famous companions.

News of the second snow tourneys ever held in the reindeer districts of Alaska, is just beginning to filter in here, though the events were held at Akiak, Shaktoolik, Igloo and Norvik on Feb. 14.

These reindeer fairs, hereafter to be held annually, have proved the social event of the Arctic mid-winter season, as well as a spur in the educational program of the government school bureau.

To enthuse the Eskimo in the possibilities of the industry initiated by Supt. William T. Lopp, is the chief purpose of the fairs.

The love-making, the feasting, the holiday festivities, and whatever passes for pink lemonade and peanuts in the far north these are incidental to the main idea.

The competitions this year included not alone races, but butchering, harnessing, hauling and everything related to the propagation and utilization of the antlered beast of burden.

Delegates from the various herd districts—the crack racers and champion cowboys of the frozen lands—came hundreds of miles across hill and tundra to demonstrate their prowess.

Fine, brawny fellows whose ardent glances set many a maiden's eider-down parka fluttering at the heart line. Young blades who were lionized in the honored igloos that knew them as guest. And most important of all, men who are opening the doors of their tribe to a new day under the midnight sun.

Reduce Your Ice Bills With This 'North Pole' Refrigerator

Exactly Like Illustration.

On Easy Payments

So frequently nowadays we hear that expression, "It isn't the original cost, it's the upkeep." Those words are particularly applicable to refrigerators. It isn't economy to buy a refrigerator that appears to save you a few cents on the purchase price if the saving is to be more than eaten up by the increased ice bills the first summer you use it. When you buy, consider "the upkeep" as well as "the original cost." And also consider whether or not the refrigerator will really do what it is supposed to—refrigerate the food kept in it.

The Last Word In Economy

The double joining, massive walls and infallible insulation of both the inside and outside walls of this North Pole Refrigerator cannot be excelled and for that reason you do not need as much ice to keep your foods at the proper temperature as in other makes of refrigerators. This pattern is so arranged as to constantly circulate the cold air over the ice and then into the provision chamber.

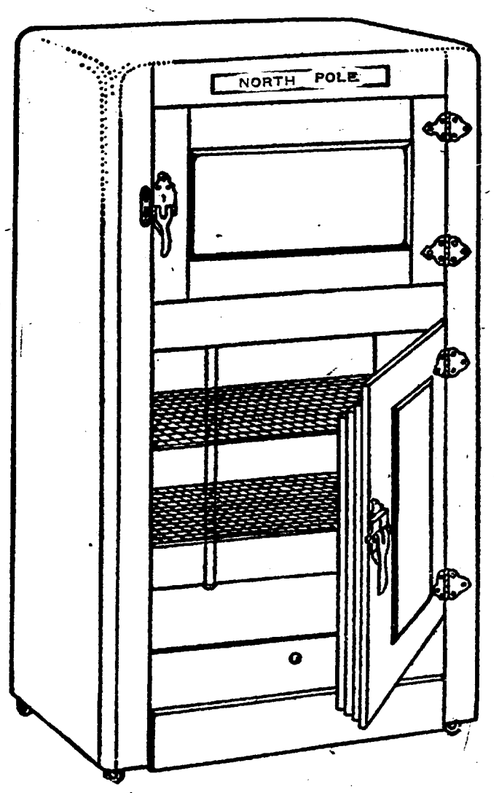
Every Nook and Corner Easily Cleaned

In this model the provision chamber is lined with plain galvanized steel—formed virtually into a one-piece compartment. Every nook and corner is easily reached for cleaning. The strong woven wire shelves and waste pipe are both removable for cleaning. This pattern aims to produce—and does produce—the largest storage capacity in proportion to the ice consumed. It is absolutely sanitary, convenient and economical.

Same Style--White Enamel Lined $19.00

A larger sized refrigerator than the one illustrated finished by an infallible baking process in a flint-hard, glass-smooth, non-absorbent pure white surface which will not chip from its metal base.

Either this or the above model is so arranged to give maximum storage capacity with the minimum floor space. It is of ample size for the average family.



26 Other Models to Select from--$12 and up

One advantage of purchasing at Pickard's is that you may compare more different models side by side than you will find anywhere elee. We have 26 different models that we recommend. They range in price from $12.00 up. Any one of them can be purchased on easy payments, and they are every one an excellent value for the price asked.

See the Genuine "Stone White" Refrigerator

"White Mountain" Refrigerators are probably the most widely known make in the whole United States. They are the only refrigerator actually lined with natural stone. The purity, cleanliness, rich lustre and cold gleaming white of the "Stone White" provision chambers of these refrigerators will speak for themselves if you will come into this store to look at them.

Don't Be Fooled By Mere Cheapness

You can hold a penny so close to your eye that it will hide a dollar. Remember that in buying your refrigerator. The cost of ice and spoiled provisions not to mention the extra care required to keep a "cheap ice-box" clean more than make up for a slightly higher original purchase price. North Pole and White Mountain Refrigerators are unexcelled for the price. They are a lasting investment. And you owe it to yourself to see them before buying.

Have You Heard This "Wondertone" at

Here's a phonograph that will play any record regardless of size and make, and play them with all the clearness and tone of a $100.00 or $150.00 machine. The tone-chamber is of genuine Sheffield steel, contrived and constructed with as much care as the sounding-board of a high-priced piano.

The result is clear, resonant tone-waves impossible to secure except in models costing over $100.00. Finished in mahogany. Plays any record with a single winding. Do come in and hear it so that you will appreciate that it is all its name implies—a Wonder-tone.

WAGE DIFFERENCE STILL A WIDE ONE

Cleveland Street Railway Situation as Yet Very Uncertain.

Cleveland, O., May 3.—With a difference of $403,000 in wages for two years between the carmen's demands and the offer of the Cleveland Railway company officials, union leaders today were seeking a hall for mass meetings of the men tonight when a strike vote will be taken. Both sides made concessions at conferences held late yesterday under the direction of Mayor Harry L. Davis, who is trying to avert a strike without endangering 3-cent fare.

Today the mayor said: "I wouldn't bet either way on the question of whether there will be a strike. I know that the final word has been said as far as the city and the company is concerned. More concessions will endanger 3-cent fare and the administration does not intend to permit that."

The men originally demanded 40 cents an hour and a minimum day of eight hours for 90 per cent of the men. The company offered 30 cents for first year men and 33 cents for others at once and a further increase of a cent an hour to all May 1, 1917. The men now get 29 and 32 cents.

MEAT SUPPLY DEPOT SEIZED.

Concern at Mexico City Is Taken Over by Government.

Mexico City, May 3.—A meat supply depot belonging to a foreign corporation with a large capital, was taken over by the government today on orders of the secretary of the interior. The organization formerly was known as the Popo Meat company, and was largely financed by London capitalists. It had exclusive rights to slaughter and provide beef and other meats to the city. Lately it was managed by C. A. Mallory, an American. The government has appointed Hipolito Aguirre as general manager.

BEGIN TRAINING CITIZEN SOLDIERS

Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., May 3.—Work of training a citizen soldiery began with the formal opening here today of the southern military training camp. Hundreds of business and professional men from various parts of the country, particularly the east and south, were on hand ready for enrollment.

Lieut. Col. D. W. Ketcham, of the coast artillery, is in charge of the camp. He is being assisted by a large staff of officers of the regular army in directing the training work.

After enrollment applicants for military training were to draw full infantry equipment, be assigned to tents and organized into companies of 150 men each in command of a captain of the regular army. The men were to be given their first drill instructions today.

WHAT EVERY HOME NEEDS.

Richmond, Ind., May 3.—Every home in this city should have three or more children i nit, according to Mayor W. J. Robbins. He made the assertion while discussing the population of the city. Richmond, he said, compared to other industrial centers, should have a population of 30,000, but he added that he doubted if it came within 5,000 of that figure. Then followed his plea for more children. He asserted there were hundreds of homes in Richmond in which there were no children.

MILITIA DRILLS PUBLIC.

Indianapolis, May 3.—As a means of increasing the interest of the public in the state militia and preparedness, F. L. Bridges, adjutant general of the Indiana National Guard, recently made public a letter to a number of chamber of commerce bodies inviting them to visit the armories and watch the militiamen go through their maneuvers.

Battery A, of Indianapolis, drills each Sunday morning, the weather permitting, at the state fair grounds, and these drills have been made public by order of General Bridges.

S. K. RANDALL'S BIRTHDAY.

Kendallville, Ind., May 3.—Sumner K. Randall, for over seventy years a resident of Allen township, Noble county, and for nearly three years a resident of this city, celebrated his seventy-third birthday yesterday. Mr. Randall spent a part of the day at his old home, half a mile west of Avilla, wandering about the house in which he was born and in which three score and ten years of his life were spent. It was built in 1842 and was one of the first frame dwellings built in that section. There, as infant, boy and man Mr. Randall was reared and grew up, reared his own family and spent all the years of an active and successful career. For many years he was the leading merchant in Avilla, retiring some years ago and coming to this city to make his home. He is a brother of the late Hon. Perry A. Randall, of Fort Wayne.

Warsaw, Ind., May 3.—Word has been received here stating that Otis Tolan, aged 19, the young man who created much excitement a year ago, when it was thought he had drowned himself in Yellow Creek lake, south of Burket, and was later found hiding under a shed, has been drowned in a small lake near Balla, Canada. Young Tolan drowned a week ago Friday, when a boat in which he and the man for whom he was working upset. The employer was saved but Tolan failed to come to the surface. The young man resided with his mother, who lives between Burket and Akron, and left several months ago for Canada to work. Latest word to relatives stated that the body had not yet been recovered.

"Curly" Rademacher, as he is best known, was obliged to suffer amputation of the member to arrest the progress of blood poisoning, due to injury received trimming a corn, the heroic expedient being necessary to save his life. When his days have fully come and he is laid to his final rest the amputated leg will be placed with his remains and again given burial. This is his own request.

A court of inquiry will be held and Prosecutor Sprague has been notified of the incident. The boys who figured prominently in the scrap were Marvin Steed, Howard Flannery and John Gable, of Hartford City; George Davis, Colonel Foy and Reber Figley, of this city.

One of the boxings became heated and set fire to day which was wrapped around it. In addition to the loss of the structure Mr. Watson lost ten tons of baled hay, and a mow filled loose hay, about twenty tons in all, two hundred bushels of corn, a quantity of rye and two calves. Clayton told the girl that he would bring in some wood and build a fire if she would leave him out of the cell. The door was unlocked and Clayton brought one load of wood then left to get the second. When he reached the wood house he forgot to come back. Clayton, whose home is in Milford, had served 79 days in jail on a conviction of carrying concealed weapons.

at Wilkesbarre owing to a strike of street car men for several months and could not be called away from the city.

Quiet Through Night.

Quiet prevailed throughout the night in Braddock. Fearing another outbreak citizens sworn in as deputy sheriffs patrolled the streets, while more than 300 guards armed with riot guns guarded the Edgar Thompson works of the Carnegie Steel company where yesterday's rioting occurred. During the rioting yesterday Mrs. Igna Cius Hillo ran into the midst of the rioters crying and wringing her hands. She said her baby was dying and that she wanted her husband. A number of men aided her in finding her husband and they hastened to the bedside of her sick baby.

When the mobilization order was received at the headquarters of the Eighteenth infantry last night all the men in the building were put to work at telephones, while others were sent to order automobiles.

The uniforms of some of the men had been loaned to members of a club which was giving an amateur theatrical performance in a downtown theater. The militiamen went to the theater and the show was interrupted for a short time while the members of the cast could return the uniforms.

Governor's Troop Arrives.

The governor's troop arrived on a special train in East Pittsburg soon after 10 o'clock this morning and quickly detrained for duty in the Turtle Creek and Monongahela valleys. The troop, commanded by Capt. George C. Jack, of Harrisburg, was the first of the national guard commands ordered last night by Gov. Brumbaugh to the disturbed district. Troop H, Capt. Charles C. McGovern, was held in its armory here, and will march to Braddock later in the day. The Sheridan troop of Tyrone experienced much difficulty in securing mounts and was not expected to reach East Pittsburg before nightfall.

Meantime, the Eighteenth infantry had been mobilized at its armory here, and the Tenth infantry was assembling at Greensburg, fifty miles from the strike section. Large forces of coal and iron police were still on guard in the plants of the United States Steel Corporation in the Monongahela valley, but experienced no trouble.

Interest in the strike situation shifted during the morning to McKeesrocks, where large forces of the Pressed Steel Car company's men struck yesterday. Three hundred riveters returned to work at 7 o'clock but by 10 o'clock they had induced the workmen in six departments of the plant to walk out. The shops were immediately closed and it was said the entire plant with its 10,000 workmen would be closed this afternoon.

GERMANY WILL MEET THE ISSUE SQUARELY

The news was that instructions to submarine commanders would be such as to encourage hope of a favorable outcome of the long dispute, but all decision is being reserved until the newest German communication can be analyzed and thoroughly considered. Until President Wilson has had opportunity to consider it finally no one can say whether it will meet the requirements of the United States or postpone or avert a diplomatic break.

The state department was still without any report from Ambassador Gerard today and has received nothing since last Friday. It was stated that in view of the developments in Germany, including Emperor William's participation in framing the reply, and the American ambassador's visit to grand headquarters, the length of time taken by the Berlin foreign office to answer the American note is not considered unreasonable, but it was made clear that unless such important developments had intervened to make for delay, it would not have been considered that the American demand for immediate action had been met.

Action was indefinitely postponed today by the senate foreign relations committee on all pending resolutions affecting foreign affairs of the United States, either with Mexico or peace in Europe. The committee determined that the time was inopportune for any action or expression of opinion, relating to peace or to war.

der. The entire force has been on duty prisoners were marched through the city today under strong military escort. They included many youths in their teens and several women.

It is said several thousand prisoners have been taken by the military.

In an order of the day thanking the troops for the suppression of the rebellion Lieut. Gen. John Maxwell, the military commander, says that owing to the tireless efforts of the soldiers all the rebels in this city have now surrendered.

300 LANDED IN WALES.

Additional Prisoners from Ireland, Some Wounded, Are Transported.

Holyhead, Wales, May 3.—Three hundred more prisoners from Ireland, of whom 20 were wounded, were landed here early today. The prisoners included a considerable number of persons evidently of somewhat higher station than those landed two days ago. Some of them were intellectuals who heretofore have been identified mainly with the Irish literary movement. Others were clerks, sportsmen, tradesmen or farmers. Most of them appeared to be greatly exhausted.

Although the prisoners were men's clothing it was reported that several were women, thirty or forty of whom have been made prisoner. Only about 5 per cent of the prisoners wore the Sinn Fein uniform. There are undoubtedly many prisoners who were truthful in saying they knew nothing of the impending revolt when they were mobilized. Whether that will in any way mitigate their treatment by the government is not known. A number of the prisoners indicated their willingness to turn states evidence and it is believed some alarming evidence will come to the government.

STRUCK ON HEAD BY HORSESHOE; DIES

As a result of being struck on the head by a horse shoe in a pitching contest, Cloice Tucker, aged sixteen years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tucker, of Claypool, died at 9 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Lutheran hospital. He was admitted to the institution Tuesday afternoon.

Sunday afternoon while he and a few companions were pitching horse shoe he was accidentally struck on the head by a shoe. He apparently suffered only a slight bruise and after completing the game walked home. After he had told his mother what had happened he lapsed into unconsciousness. His condition grew worse and he was hurried to the Fort Wayne hospital. Death was due to a hemorrhage of the brain.

The young boy was a student in the high school of his home town and was well known. The body was shipped to Claypool, via the Nickel Plate, Wednesday noon.

The 24 Free Centennial Pageant tickets will be announced in circulars in Perfection Bread on Thursday instead of Wednesday as previously advertised.

A delegation of fifty business and professional men of Fort Wayne will go to Muncie next Tuesday afternoon in a special car over the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, where they will inspect the Young Men's Christian association building.

The trip is being promoted and agitated by those back of the Y. M. C. A. building campaingn to start in this city on May 16 and continue for ten days. The building at Muncie is modern and up-to-date in every respect and those making the trip will be enabled to get a better idea of what would be most desirable for Fort Wayne. The traction company will charge $1.90 for the round trip.

At the meeting of the captains for the Y. M. C. A. campaign, Tuesday at the Y. W. C. A., announcement was made by Campaign Director E. L. Mogge that a pre-campaign subscription of $1,000 will be divided among the four captains who first report a complete line-up of ten workers. The amount will be distributed $400 to the first, $300 to the second, $200 to the third and $100 to the fourth. The full quota of two hundred workers for the business men's committees is to be secured by Saturday noon.

George P. Evans has been named chairman of the committee to equip the campaign headquarters in the Shive building. President E. A. Hanley, of Franklin college, has been added to the list of speakers who will be here to participate in field day on Sunday, May 14.

HAVE COME TO AN AGREEMENT

First Chief Carranza. Because of the difficulties of Mexican telegraph it is thought his reply will not reach here until after Washington has made its answer. Neither Gen. Scott nor Gen. Obregon would talk of the deliberations.

The reported agreement is said to be based on the general proposition that the American troops will further retreat toward the border and operate against Villa bandits in a restricted district where their presence and activities will not provoke further hostility of the Mexican people. It is understood the troops are to remain there until the Washington government is convinced that the defacto government is able to cope with the bandits. Reports that the American troops will withdraw in either thirty or sixty days are in no way confirmable.

WOMEN MUST TAKE HARD EXERCISE TO DO MAN'S WORK, SAYS LADY CONSTANCE.

LADY CONSTANCE RICHARDSON.

MANIAC ASSAULTS TURNKEY AT JAIL

Deputy Sheriff Dan Current, turnkey at the Allen county jail, was furiously assaulted Wednesday forenoon in the large hospital ward on the second floor of the jail by James Warcup, of Huntertown, who is insane and at times becomes violent. Warcup was tearing the wooden partions of the ward to splinters and Turnkey Current had entered the room to quiet the maniac, when he was set upon and beaten with a chair. The turnkey got out of the door before he was seriously injured, but he received some painful bruises about the head and face. Warcup was placed in the padded cell. He had been confined in the padded cell Tuesday night, but becoming calm had begged to be let out. During Wednesday forenoon he was armed with another part of furniture and sought to destroy the hospital ward. Warcup is a well known citizen of Huntertown, and has been engaged in grain buying. He was adjudged insane last Saturday. He probably will be taken to the county asylum for confinement until he can be received at the Easthaven hospital. He is a large and powerful man and when violent is difficult to handle.

LABORER FATALLY HURT IN SHOPS

Piece of Broken Wheel of Crane Crushes Head of G. Liberato.

Joseph Liberato, aged thirty-three years, residing at 344 Brandriff street, died at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Joseph's hospital, a half hour after he had been struck on the head by a piece of a gear wheel of a traveling crane at the Pennsylvania erecting shops.

The hoisting gear of one of the big 90 ton traveling cranes broke when the operator was sending the hoist up to allow it to pass over some locomotives. A piece of the big cog wheel struck Liberato as he was passing under it and knocked him to the floor. The ambulance was called to convey the injured man to the hospital, but it was evident that he could not survive. The crown of his head was crushed in and he did not regain consciousness, but died a half hour after the accident, as the surgeons were preparing to operate upon him.

H. L. Bevine, the crane director, was near Liberato when the gearing broke and was struck by a flying piece and slightly injured. None others were near the scene except G. Weaver, the crane operator, who was in the cage above and who did not know that anyone was injured until told about it.

The deceased was an Italian and had been a resident of Fort Wayne for fourteen years. He had been employed at the Pennsylvania railroad shops for the past seven years. He formerly lived on Melita street but recently moved to Brandriff street.

Misfortune has struck this family twice within the past week. Friday evening the nine-year-old son of the deceased, Julius Liberato, was caught under the wheels of a freight car on the Wabash railroad and lost his one limb. He is now a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, making a heroic fight for life.

Mr. Liberato is survived by the widow, three children and two brothers, the latter residing in Louisville, Ohio.

Nearly 200 People Enjoyed the B. L. A. Ball.

The ball at the Elks Temple last night, given in celebration of the twenty-eighth anniversary of Friendship division, No. 18, Grand International Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was a most pleasant event and was well attended. There was good music and the manner in which the people on the dance floor and in the card room were handled was excellent and was a matter of special notice by the guests. Prizes at pedro were won as follows: First ladies', cut glass berry dish, Mrs. Frank Fox; second ladies', cut glass vase, Mrs. Stroupe; first gentleman's prize, six cut glass tumblers, F. J. Regan, Nickel Plate engineer, and second gentleman's prize, cut glass tumblers, to John McIntyre, Pennsylvania engineer.

OPERATORS KEEPING MUM.

None Willing to Talk About Probable Strike.

If the members of the Telegraphers' union at this point who are employed on the Nickel Plate expect to go out on strike tomorrow, they are not showing it by any undue action or excitement. All are working today as if they have no thoughts of trouble. The local superintendents this morning were advised by General Manager A. W. Johnston that he had been notified by the representatives of the union telegraphers that they would go on strike Thursday if their demands were not granted. It is said that a good percentage of the operators on the Chicago and Fort Wayne divisions belong to the union.

He Flirts With the Lady on the Dome

W. H. Roberts should worry if the life and accident insurance agents are too thick. For they give him a wide berth. Roberts is engaged in gilding the ball under the Lady on the court house, and Tuesday afternoon posed for a picture for The Sentinel. In the upper picture he is seen balancing on the dome and below is his sunny southern smile.

Machinists to Suspend Movement for Increase a Few Days.

At a special meeting of the Machinists' union in the K. of C. hall last night, for the purpose of taking a vote to get the sentiment of the majority on a probable strike if the demands of the men at the shops of S. F. Bowser & Co., the Wayne Oil Tank and Pump works, the Fort Wayne Engineering company, the Fort Wayne Foundry and Machine works, the Western Gas Construction works and the American Steel Dredge company are not granted, it was decided to defer action a few days. It is hoped the matter can be adjusted and that it will not be necessary to resort to strike.

AWAIT ARRIVAL OF THE WABASH PLANS

Board Hopes to Be Able to Decide on Pennsy's Elevation Plans Soon.

Mayor William J. Hosey, the board of works, the city engeering department and City Attorney Guy Colerick have not yet reached a decision as to rejection or acceptance of the Pennsylvania railroad's plans for track elevation at Hanna street, and probably will defer judgment until the plans of the Wabash railroad, already overdue, have come in, showing what that railroad proposes at the same thoroughfare. The Pennsylvania plans are being thoroughly studied, though with not very satisfactory results.

It is held at the city hall that the modified plans agreed upon a few weeks ago in respect of Hanna street have been wholly ignored and the details of the railroad's second plans adopted. The plans for Lafayette street are satisfactory.

Mayor Hosey insists that the plans for Hanna street will create well nigh intolerable conditions as respects the approaches, more especially on the north side.

Hon. J. H. Bass, of the Bass Foundry and Machine company, whose manufacturing plant will be affected both by track elevation and the south approach at Hanna street, was in consultation with the board Wednesday.

According to the estimates the city will pay $94,000 for its share of the work, exclusive of the south approach at Hanna street, which cannot yet be figured, and the Pennsylvania will pay $379,000 for the work. The company appears to have assumed without question 75 per cent of the cost, which was not the case in other track elevation work affecting that road.

The board hopes to be able to reach a decision respecting the plans of the Pennsylvania railroad within a day or two.

AGAIN HELD UP BY RAINS.

All outdoor work on public improvements, especially paving and sewers, was at a standstill Wednesday forenoon, owing to the heavy rains during the night. The Grace Construction company had just begun the excavations for the East Creighton avenue pavement and that delay is especially regretted.

DENIES HE IS PAPA OF HIS WIFE'S CHILD

Gordon Davis Hits Hard in His Cross-Complaint Against Wife.

Gordon Davis hits back with a vim in the cross complaint he has filed in the superior court to the original divorce complaint filed by Elizabeth Davis. He says that when he married he was unaware of certain events about to transpire and denies that he is the papa of the child of which his wife is the mother. Besides this he says she treated him cruelly during the short time they lived together and that she refused to abide with him in the home he had prepared. He accuses her of conduct unbecoming a wife. The wife's complaint charges that from the time the child in question was four months old her husband refused to support it. They were married in 1911. Ryan, Ryan & Aldrich appear for the cross comulainant.

Wed Twenty-Eight Years; Estranged.

After living with her husband for twenty-eight years, during all of which period she says she has suffered cruel and inhuman treatment at his hands, Nancy Zimmerman, 1622 Calhoun street, has sued David Zimmerman for divorce. She says he called her names too vile to put in a complaint, is an habitual drunkard and when drunk would strike her. Of four children one is a minor and the plaintiff asks the custody of this offspring. The couple separated last September. McAdams & Hartzell appear for the plaintiff.

Case Taken From the Jury.

In the suit of Herman J. Bosse vs. the Pennsylvania Railroad company for $2,000 damages, on trial in the Wells circuit court at Bluffton on change of venue from Allen county, Judge W. H. Eichhorn, on Tuesday afternoon, ordered the jury to retire and return a verdict for the defendant. This was done. The plaintiff had completed his case when the court's order to the jury was given. It was testified by the plaintiff that an injury he received on one of his legs while working in the defendant's shops in Fort Wayne was at first merely a bruise and that he continued at work after receiving it from Tuesday until Saturday. He alleged that necessity to have his leg amputated arose from this injury.

Notes of the Courts.

In the suit of Ethel A. Sunday, of this city, against Shirley A. Sunday, now of Lansing, Mich., for divorce the defendant's attorney has forwarded here for filing in the superior court a voluminous answer to the complaint and a rejection of the plaintiff's attorney respecting an assumption of costs and support money.

In the superior court Henry Wolf has sued Joseph Pepe on account for $250. William Freuchtenicht appears for the plaintiff.

R. L. Romy has begun action in the superior court against Charles F. C. Koenig to quiet title to real estatee.

The superior court has granted a decree of divorce to Alice Treuchet from Louis Treuchet and permitted to resume her maiden name, Wagner.

The complaint and all cross complaints in the suit of John C. Capron vs. Minnie and James F. Morse have been dismissed from the superior court.

MAY ABANDON AUTO TRIP.

Owing to the heavy rains of Tuesday night and Wednesday morning it is probable that County Commissioners W. C. Schwier, Albert J. Black and Henry A. Wetzell and County Auditor Will Johnson will abandon their purpose to make a trip to Putnamville by automobile Thursday and willl go by rail instead. The party is going to visit the state penal farm to procure ideas for the buildings and other appointments for the penal colony the commissioners propose to establish on the new county farm north of the city. At a meeting of the county council Saturday the commissioners will ask an appropriation of $4,000 to carry out their plans.

MANY COMPOSITIONS HAVE BEEN SUBMITTED

More than 200 compositions by the children in the parochial and public schools on "Why Clean-Up and Beautify" have been submitted to Mrs. Josephine L. Nesbit and the work of grading them by a committee of newspaper men will start in a few days.

Twelve thousand application blanks for the children to sign who expect to enter the back yard contest have been distributed and Mrs. Nesbitt is confidently expecting between 5,000 and 6,000 children to enter. One woman 44 years old has sent in her acceptance.

Mrs. Nesbitt is particularly anxious to interest the business men in the downtown district to beautify their stores and windows with flower boxes. She believes that if a few of the merchants will make a start the plan will become contagious and all the merchants will fall in line.

DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL TRACK MEET SATURDAY

Four Schools are Ready for Big Athletic Event Saturday Afternoon

The northeastern Indiana district high school track and field meet will be held in this city Saturday afternoon with four schools participating, and it is expected that a crowd of several thousand people will be present.

The school meet is the first thing of the kind to be held here in several years and marks the beginning of a new era in Fort Wayne high school athletics. The interschool idea has been frowned upon by school authorities for years, and districts and even county meets were not considered.

However, Principal Ward and other members of the faculty have encouraged the boys this year in the track and field events, and Mr. Ward went so far as to take care of all the correspondence personally and to assist the boys in every possible way. J. J. Ritter, who has been prominent in sport and athletic circles here for a dozen years, is assisting Mr. Ward.

Fort Wayne, Bluffton, Columbia City and Decatur are to send teams of contestants in the meet, and Capt. George Byroade will act as referee, assisted by a number of his Concordia students.

PORT DOPE

That socialist mayor at Milwaukee is the unusual critter. The Brewers are at the bottom of the Association heap, and Mayor Dan Hoan ups and says: "Anyone can get along without a welcome when he's winning; it's when he's losing he needs to be cheered." Then he pressed the button and told his pri. sect. to have four bands at the station to meet the home-coming heroes.

Ralph Miller seems to be making good with a punch at Cedar Rapids. The local basketballer started his professional baseball career with the Cedar Rapids team this spring, and has found everything going lovely so far, and the fans already are warming up to him.

The Wabash machinists and the Wabash erecting shop are represented by a pair of ball teams and will play Saturday afternoon at Randall field.

Rey Smyth, the former local man, who went to Brooklyn and then was sent to Montreal is lead-off man for the Canadians, but his hitting eye seems to have dulled a bit.

Give Freddie Bratchi three more weeks at his present pace and he'll be up among the top pitchers among Association hitters.

TRAINING WITH THE TRACK STARS—HINTS FOR YOUNG ATHLETES ON PUTTING 16-POUND SHOT.

Arlie Mucky, University of Wisconsin, All-American Intercollegiate Shotputter.

(By Harold Johnson.)

Weight events require strength, weight and speed. Success attends the powerful, heavy man who has perfected form in getting the hammer, discus or shot away. Constant practice alone will develop form

Coaches recommend two ways of holding the shot. Some insist that the main weight rest on the fingers. A strong hand and wrist makes this system available. Scholastic contestants, not fully matured should avoid this style as few possess the required strength. It's better to let the shot rest securely in the palm of the hand while the fingers simply steady the weight. Learn to "reverse," or start, by holding the left side in front, the left arm out and up and the body bent back, down and half way around. Double the right arm back, down and half way around. Double the right arm back, holding the shot close to the shoulder. The motion following when the shot is put will push the right arm out and up with the right leg pushing forward with the left arm and leg both drawn back.

Put all possible force and speed behind the motion, push the right arm straight from the shoulder, get the thighs and shoulders into motion and above all elevate the weight. Practice these moves until you perfect them.

The glide is another important feature of the put. The position at the rear side of the circle is identical with that beginning the reverse. Start the glide, left foot front and take two steps. Bring the right foot up to the left heel, which should be immediately advanced one stride, then repeat. This will carry you to the other side of the circle and in the same position as at the start of the reverse. Aim to speed the motion before the heave.

Five workouts a week should suffice in training. Do a little sprinting to strengthen the legs and keep them supple for the best results in the glide.

SEEKS NEW INFORMATION.

Uncle Sam Wants to Know Regarding Foreign Loans by Banks.

Washington, May 2.—The comptroller of the currency has taken steps to ascertain to what extent American banks have financed European nations at war. Revised blanks mailed to all members of the federal reserve system to be used in the next bank call require each bank to report the mount of bonds, obligations or acceptances of foreign governments it holds.

This information never before has been sought. It is to be asked for at the next bank call to provide accurate information on the subject and to dispose of an assortment of guesses and reports that are believed to have placed the total sum loaned on foreign securities far in excess of the real amount. The banks of the country, official analysis of the showing on the last call discloses, were never in a stronger position before and it is believed that the time is opportune for disposing of reports that the amounts loaned on foreign securities are unduly large.

GREIST BOOSTS BASEBALL AMONG THE SHOPMEN AT PENNSYLVANIA

THAT the officials of the various institutions are interested in their teams in the Fort Wayne Industrial league, is attested by the manner in which the heads of the concerns are boosting the game. Mechanic E. E. The following letter from Master Greist has been posted about the Pennsy shops:

Messrs. Baseball Fan:

Gentlemen—I asked Al Ringle this afternoon if our team in the Industrial league was up to the usual high standard, and what the prospects were for a first division team. Al was very optimistic and told me that the team was high-class and with some support would lead the first division. We all know that the manager and secretary will do their part, but what will you do?

You generously assisted in purchasing good equipment but equipment will not win games. What the team needs is your support, and you can't give it your support without attending the games. So if you want the team to lead in the league it is up to you to attend as many games as possible, root enthusiastically, whether winning or losing, and you can rest assured that the team will have plenty of "pep." Don't "knock" if the team should lose a few games; be a booster all the time and our team will do the rest.

The first game will be played at 2 p. m. Saturday, the 6th, at Lawton park. There will be a parade before the game. The parade starts from the market house on Barr street at 1:30 p. m. If everybody who owns an automobile or can borrow one will turn out with it, the size of the Pennsylvania delegation will insure a win. There will be a good number of cars so you might get a ride, but report at the market house at 1:30 and you will have good company to march with to Lawton park.

I would like to know how many automobiles can be gotten together, and if you have a car or can get one, will you not please advise Al Ringle or Harry Hamm?

But be sure and show up at the market house at 1:30 Saturday afternoon.

Yours truly,
E. E. GREIST,
Master Mechanic.

HONOR LINCOLN'S SISTER

Spencer County Women to Dedicate Monument Over Grave.

Evansville, Ind., May 3.—In memory of Sarah Lincoln Grigsby, a sister of Abraham Lincoln, the women of Spencer county have erected a monument over her grave in the old Pigeon cemetery in Spencer county near Lincoln City, where the mother of the war president is buried. Governor Ralston will make the dedicatory address on May 30. James W. Wartmann, of this city, United States commissioner, who knew Lincoln, has received a letter from Judge L. Bretz, of Jasper, a member of the commission named by Governor Ralston to care for the grave, asking him to take part in the exercises, and he will speak of his recollections of Lincoln. Mr. Wartmann says Sarah Lincoln was the youngest sister of Abraham Lincoln, and was married to Aaron Grigsby when the Lincolns lived near what is now Lincoln City. She died soon after her marriage. All trace of the grave was lost for years, but it was found recently through the efforts of Mrs. Fred Walker and other women of Rockport, and Jess Weik, of Greencastle.

EASTERN ENVOYS OF SUFFRAGE INVADE THE WEST FOR VOTES

Members of the congressional union waving a greeting to California women just after their special train reached San Francisco at the end of a transcontinental journey in the interests of nation-wide suffrage for women. They were whirled through downtown streets in an automobile parade to the city hall, where Mayor James Rolph, jr., gave them an official welcome, declaring himself strongly in favor of woman suffrage. The trip to the west coast was made to enlist the women voters in California in a movement to compel the democratic party to consider at this session of congress the Susan B. Anthony amendment providing for universal suffrage in the United States. In spite of social events in their honor the eastern envoys never for a minute lose sight of the real purpose of their visit and are making a vigorous fight for their cause while in the west.

AT LEAST 500 DEAD AND 1,500 WOUNDED

Totalling Up Rebel Losses Sustained During the Irish Revolt.

Dublin, May 3.—At least 500 rebels were killed and 1,500 wounded in the seven days of fighting in the streets of Dublin, it was estimated today by soldiers who completed a canvass of the city.

This estimate is conservative, officers said. Rebel bodies were found beneath the ruins of the general postoffice, which was wrecked by British shell fire; in Liberty hall and in a number of other buildings demolished by artillery or burned to the ground.

Bodies Beneath Ruins.

The number of casualties was far in excess of early estimates and many bodies are believed to lie beneath ruins still unsearched.

The Dublin hospitals are overflowing with wounded, including many women and children noncombatants. As rapidly as possible, persons suffering from slight wounds are discharged to make room for those whose condition is more serious.

Lord Donoughmore, former commander of the British forces in Egypt and a former member of the British cabinet, is among the wounded. He was shot while motoring to his country home north of Dublin, escaping, however, with only a flesh wound.

Last Volley Fired.

A small body of rebels, determined to die hard, fired the last volley of the Dublin rebellion last night from a position near the Westland station, which was captured by the rebels early last week. The crackle of government machine guns followed—then ominous silence. The whole party had been wiped out.

In other parts of the island there was still some fighting, though it too was dying down. Official announcement was made that the Sinn Feiners of Cork lay down their arms. Military authorities of Wexford county are making wholesale arrests among the rebels.

WIFE TRIES PLAN; FATHER URGES SON

Herman Schroeder, Himself Relieved, Wants Others to Use Tanlac.

Herman C. Schroeder, 59 years old, a well known Fort Wayne carpenter and boat builder, who lives at 1727 Wheeler street, is one of the hundreds of residents of this city and vicinity who warmly praise Tanlac, the Master Medicine, because of relief they gained through its use. Mr. Schroeder recently said:

"All this last winter I suffered with muscular rheumatism in my sides and my right knee. I had severe pains over my ribs around the body. I'd lay awake at night for hours unable to sleep because of the pains. My right knee was so sore and stiff I could hardly bend it. I couldn't walk more than one square at a time. My appetite was very poor.

"I saw in the papers accounts of Tanlac's work and I decided to try it. I noticed results while taking my first bottle of the medicine. The terrible pains in my sides and ribs are just about all gone now. My right knee also is in much better shape. I can walk down town and back now without any trouble. The tired feeling I formerly experienced has disappeared and I feel energetic. I sleep soundly now and my appetite is fine.

"Already I have recommended Tanlac to many of my friends and now I wish to recommend it to the public. My wife has just started the use of Tanlac and I am urging my son to try it. I had tried everything without results, but Tanlac certainly gave me relief."

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complaints, rheumatism, nervousness, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and the like and is a fine spring tonic.

Tanlac is now being introduced in Fort Wayne at the Wayne and Calhoun streets store of the Meyer Drug Co., where the Tanlac Man is explaining the new remedy. It also may be obtained at the other Meyer stores, Calhoun and Columbia, 1420 Calhoun and Broadway and Taylor.—Advertisement.

CALLS CANNED GOODS PURE.

Unreasonable Fear Adds to High Cost of Living, Says Gorrell.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 3.—That part of the high cost of living is due to unreasonable fear of canned goods will be the gist of a talk by Frank E. Gorrell, secretary of the National Canners' association at the Indiana Canners' association convention, which will be held here May 18-19.

The national association has been collecting information on alleged ptomaine poisoning cases, where canned foods were said to have been responsible. In 57 cases investigated in 1914, and in 64 cases investigated in 1915, no single instance was found, it is stated, where the poisoning was directly traceable to the canned food, which was publicly given credit.

In a poison case investigated recently, according to Harry McCartney, secretary of the Indiana canners, blame was placed on canned beans, but an inquiry showed that the beans had not been canned, but were home cooked.

Tin is a safe pack for foods, according to the canners, and is not a cause of ptomaine poisoning.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get about two ounces of plain powdered neroxin from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin—pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become hard. The powdered neroxin and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anybody troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.—Advertisement.

RELIGION, TEMPERANCE AND HEALTH

Sin Cannot Stand Erect in the Presence of Holiness.

No where in literature is there a finer illustration of the transforming power of real Christian grace and virtue than in the treatment of Jean Valjean by Bishop Myriel in Hugo's Les Miserables.

Jean Valjean had been given a leave of absence from the galleys where for nearly twenty years he had been known only as No. 5,623. Already embittered against humanity because of earlier experiences he became doubly so as he found every door closed against him and every assistance denied him. The inn keepers said, "Be off with you" and the farmers had no room for a "villian." He finally crept into a dog kennel mistaking it for the shelter of a road-mender and a vicious mastiff drove him out and as he skulked along he said, "I am not even a dog."

But when he knocked at the door of the good Bishop Myriel a surprise awaited for him. The old bishop bade him enter, ordered a room prepared for him and had him sit at supper with the household. But that night Jean Valjean's evil self held the mastery and as he awoke in the night time he arose and went down stairs and made off with the silver he had seen on the table. But he was taken by the police and brought back to the bisop's house. Then you may recall what took place. The old saint pretended that he had given the silverware to the man, asked him why he had not taken the candle-sticks also and dismissed the officers of the law.

When they were gone he turned to the astonished thief and called him his "brother," and said, "Jean Valjean, my brother, never forget that you have promised to employ this silver which I have given you in becoming an honest man. You belong no more to evil but to good. I have bought your soul. I withdraw it from black thoughts and the spirit of perdition and I give it to God."

For a moment the man was stunned. Victor Hugo says, "Like an owl that suddenly witnessed a sunrise the convict had been dazzled and as it were blinded by virtue." And then commenced a struggle between his wickedness and his goodness, and if you want to know something of the change that took place in him and made him one of the noblest characters fiction has ever given us read the twenty-sixth chapter of Hugo's masterpiece. True, almost the first thing he did when he went out was to sin but the same night at about 3 a. m. the mail carrier saw a man kneeling in prayer on the pavement in front of the good bishop's house. The man was Jean Valjean.—W. E. B.

Sleep Best for Frayed Nerves--How to Avoid a Break-Down

When one is indulging in natural sleep, forces within us are busy repairing the delicate nervous system and putting it in first class order for another day of wear and tear.

Forced to do without this nightly recuperation the nerve cells are weakened, they lose their normal vigor and size and if continued for too long a period nervous prostration and all its attendant ills is brought on.

Children in grammar school should never have less than ten hours sound sleep while those from 13 to 17 years should have almost as much. After 18 years of age the majority of people need a regular allowance of from eight to nine hours sleep.

When one cannot sleep naturally for the required number of hours do not have recourse to drugs. If you do your nerves and then your health, will suffer.

There are more hygienic ways of inducing sleep such as a brisk walk in the open air followed by complete muscular relaxation, (a habit which every one should acquire) a hot bath or a drink of warm milk.

Either one or a combination of these will bring sleep to almost any normal person, providing they do not allow themselves to worry.

With sleep of this kind one should awake in the morning refreshed and ready for a day's work.

Then one must not starve the nerves. To be kept in perfect condition the nerves demand an abundance of the proper food in the blood, especially an abundance of fat-making properties.

To keep our nervous apparatus in the best possible condition we must also take plenty of muscular exercise. Exercise that will send the blood coursing through the veins and yet does not wear the brain by requiring any great degree of thought is the best.

If one observes these prime principles of diet and exercise and adds to them the proper amount of sleep then the nerves will take care of themselves.

Bedside disinfection is the best means of preventing the spread of typhoid fever. The patient's body and bed linen should be disinfected frequently with an antiseptic.

The ordinary every-day man by avoiding the excesses of life can easily add five years to his life.

Most of the diseases that suddenly strike home after a man has put his forty-fifth birthday behind are due to excesses. These excesses are over-eating, indulgence in alcoholic stimulants and overwork.

A moderate amount of good food with not too much meat, particularly at this time of the year, and drinking plenty of water will keep the digestion and kidneys in such condition as to avoid many of the troubles of later life.

Temperance in eating and drinking, the avoidance as much as possible of any nervous strain, and the indulgence in 15 or 20 minutes of exercise night and morning—these give the best insurance of a long and happy life.

Some physical defects, however, will develop in all people as they pass middle life. Everyone over 40 years of age should have a complete physical examination once a year by a competent physician so that any disease may be detected at its beginning and checked before it does its deadly work.

For the man of middle age walking offers the best possible form of exercise for keeping physically fit. At that age most men, having settled down more or less to a sedentary life, should make it a point to walk at least several miles a day and more if there is nothing organically wrong with the system.

It is not only a natural form of exercise, but it is exercise in the open air. People can go for days without food and water, but the moment fresh air is cut off the whole system suffers.

But to maintain health and even life itself the lungs must draw in air that has not been robbed of its oxygen by another person just having used it. The lungs must be supplied with air free from the poisons given off from the bodies of people crowded into poorly ventilated places, such as overheated rooms or crowded street cars.

A bad temper usually originates in a bad digestion.

The winter season, with its increased amount of trouble and excitement caused by hard work, late hours, social affairs and rigorous weather has left its mark on many people in the form of coughs, cold or a feeling of indolence or lack of vitality showing that the extra burden placed upon the system by the severe condition of the season has lowered the natural resisting powers of the normal body.

With the coming of spring there is much talk of "spring medicine" and "spring tonics."

Far too many people turn to such sources for relief. There are many good reasons why these alluring "tonics" should be avoided. One is that they rarely do any good and another is that they may often do serious harm.

Regular habits, a proper amount of exercise, fresh air and good food are common sense remedies for the feeling of lassitude which is felt at this season of the year.

If you do feel ill enough to need medicine, consult a skilled physician instead of doctoring yourself.

Be Careful How You Judge

"Did you notice how late it was when Nellie Clarke came into church this morning?" Linda Mitchell asked of Lulu Hill, as the two walked leisurely homeward, one beautiful Lord's Day. "I must say it doesn't look well in her."

"I quite agree with you," returned the other; "anyone who is a teacher in Sunday school and so prominent in church work, ought to be particular about her example."

"And she hasn't been at evening service for several Sundays"; observed Miss Mitchell. "It's evident she is losing interest in such things." Just here a voice broke into the conversation: "Are you speaking of Nellie Clarke?" asked old Miss Robbins, stepping briskly alongside the girls. Both the critics were silent. "Speakin' of Nellie Clarke?" she persisted.

"Yes, we were,' at length answered Linda, a trifle haughtily.

"My! but she's one out of a thousand," remarked Miss Robbins, her keen eyes shining. "Probably everybody noticed her comin' in late to church this mornin', but I don't s'pose half knew the reason. You see, Nellie gets up a little earlier on Sunday mornin's, and hurries round to get the house in order by the time her mother is fairly awake. Then when breakfast dishes are done she runs over to Mrs. Redd's, who's got four children not countin' the baby, and she don't keep a girl; so the whole family has got out of the way of goin' to church, till Nellie took them in hand. She goes over and washes and dresses those little boys, and then their papa takes the lot of 'em to Sunday school. But there's a sight of work in dressing four wigglin' children, and so quite often Nellie is late to church herself."

The two listeners looked at each other: but Miss Robbins went on relentlessly: "Maybe you've noticed, too, that she hasn't been out on Sabbath evenin' for a few weeks. Lucinda Bailey told me about that. Lucinda's mother is bed-ridden, and Lucinda hadn't heard a sermon for years, till Nellie Clarke came in and offered to sit with the old lady on Sunday nights. Lucinda said it was like water to a thirsty soul for her to hear preachin' again. Well, here's my corner; good-bye."

As she turned down the cross street, she looked back over her shoulder. "Mighty temptin,'" she soliloquized; "this judging by appearance, but mighty deceivin' and unfair."

A covetous man is continually robbing himself.

(From the Journal, New York)

"Mother's Day" is May 14. Let it be given a place in the program of each Sunday school and church in the land.

Obey Your Father

A young man is not safe when he is at enmity with his father. Those who have investigated tell us that the large proportion of young men in our penitentiaries and prisons, began their downward career through disobedience to parents. A young man is not safe who keeps bad company. One friend met another in the street, and began to upbraid him for his drinking habits. They stood near a saloon. The one reprimanded, invited the other to go in there, and he would listen to him. They went in and sat down among those who were carousing. The result was that about one in the morning, both were taken home in separate carriages, wholly intoxicated. A young man is not safe who indulges in expensive habits. Absalom prepared him "chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him." Ah! he was not safe. Fondness of display has blighted many a young life. Extravagant living has wrecked many a strong business firm. A young man may be a member of a Christian church, and on the way, apparently, to honor and prosperity, but if he indulges in liquor, tobacco, stylish clothing, suppers and theaters, he is not safe. A young man is not safe who is proud of his personal appearance, or his accomplishments. Poor Absalom! He had the misfortune to be "much praised for his beauty," and he was correspondingly vain. A young evangelist who had been most successful, and was much flattered, said, one day to a company of friends, "The whole of Europe it at my feet. I can move the spirits of men hither and thither as I please." From that moment the power of God departed from him.

PAYING HER WAY TO HEAVEN

Being in a store one day on business, I took the opportunity of speaking to one of a number of women out shopping about her soul. Giving her a tract, I asked her if she was saved. "No, sir," she replied, "I cannot say I am. I think that would be a very hard question for anyone to say 'yes' to." "Well," I said, "I have been able to say 'yes' to it for a number of years." "Well, sir," she remarked, "I have been a member of the church for sixteen years, and ever since I joined I have paid a good sum as my share for the support of the minister, and other expenses of the church. I try my best to do what is right with all, and I am hoping in the mercy of God, for He is merciful." "True," I answered, "He is merciful, but it is impossible for Him to lie, and He says, 'Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.' (John 3:3). Have you been born again?" "No, sir; I do not think I have." "Then you could not 'see the kingdom of God' if you die as you are. Hell would be your portion." "Now, sir," she exclaimed in a somewhat excited manner, "if that is true what is the use of belonging to the church, and paying out hard-earned money to keep it up, if, after all, one has got to go to hell if not 'born again'?" "It is Christ alone that saves," I replied, "and Satan is seeking to cheat you out of your soul by making you rest upon your church membership, moral character, and so-called good works, instead of resting, as a guilty sinner, on the finished work of Christ." "Ah, well," she replied, "I suppose we must do the best we can, and hope in the mercy of God."

After a few plain words, in which I sought to show her the foundation of sand on which she was building her hopes, I left the store, never, perhaps, to meet her again in this world.

This woman was being deceived by the devil, the enemy of God and man, and though not born again, was made by him to hope she was going to heaven. To tell a poor sinner that if he belongs to the church and does his best he will get to heaven, is not the Gospel of the Bible, but "another gospel" invented by Satan, and the object is to lead those who believe it more securely and comfortably down to hell than they would otherwise go. Beware, then, of resting your soul on anything short of Christ, and what He did on the cross for the ungodly.

God says: "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Rom. 6:23). Mark, then, eternal life is not "wages"—it is the "gift" of God, therefore it is to be received, not purchased. Again we read: "By grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works, lest any man should boast." (Eph. 2:8).

Do you ask: "What must I do to be saved?" If so, we answer you in the words of Scripture, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." (Acts 16:31). Come to Him as you are in all your sins; come to Him just now.

"Do not tarry till you're better,
Or you'll never come at all."

GOD-SENT WATCHMEN

The following occurrence was related by Missionary Von Asselt, a Rhenish missionary in Sumatra from 1856 to 1876, on a visit to Lubeck:

"When I first went to Sumatra, in the year 1856, I was the first European missionary to go among the wild Battas, although twenty years prior, two American missionaries had come to them with the Gospel; but they had been killed and eaten. Since then no effort had been made to bring the Gospel to these people, and naturally they had remained the same cruel savages.

"What it means for one to stand alone among a savage people, unable to make himself understood, not understanding a single sound of their language, but whose suspicious, hostile looks and gestures speak only a too-well-understood language—yes, it is hard for one to realize that. The first two years which I spent among the Battas, at first all alone and afterward with my wife, were so hard that it makes me shudder even now when I think of them. Often it seemed as if we were not only encompassed by hostile men, but also by hostile powers of darkness; for often an inexplicable fear would come over us, so that we had to get up at night and go on our knees to pray or read the Word of God, in order to find relief.

"After we had lived in this place for two years, we moved several hours' journey inland, among a tribe somewhat civilized, who received us more kindly. There we built a small house with three rooms—a living room, a bed-room, and a small reception-room—and life for us became a little more easy and cheerful.

"When I had been in this new place for some months, a man came to me from the district where we had been, and whom I had known there. I was sitting on the bench in front of our house, and he sat down beside me, and for a while talked of this, that, and the other. Finally he began:

"'Now, tuan (teacher), I have yet one request.'

"'And what is that?'

"'I would like to have a look at your watchmen close at hand.'

"'What watchmen do you mean? I do not have any.'

"'I mean the watchmen whom you station around your house at night to protect you.'

"'But I have no watchmen,' I said again; 'I have only a little herdsboy and a little cook, and they would make poor watchmen.'

"Then the man looked at me incredulously, as if he wished to say: 'Oh, do not try to make me believe otherwise, for I know better.'

"Then he asked: 'May I look through your house, to see if they are hid there?'

"'Yes, certainly,' I said, laughing; 'look through it; you will not find anybody.' So he went in and searched in every corner, even through the beds, but came to me very much disappointed.

"Then I began a little probing myself, and requested him to tell me the circumstances about those watchmen of whom he spoke, and this is what he related to me:

"'When you first came to us, tuan, we were very angry at you. We did not want you to live among us; we did not trust you, and believed you had some design against us. Therefore we came together, and resolved to kill you and your wife. Accordingly, we went to your house night after night; but when we came near, there stood always, close around the house, a double row of watchmen with glittering weapons, and we did not venture to attack them to get into your house. But we were not willing to abandon our plan, so we went to a professional assassin (there still was among the savage Battas at that time a special guild of assassins, who killed for hire any one whom it was desired to get out of the way), and asked him if he would undertake to kill you and your wife. He laughed at us because of our cowardice, and said, "I fear no God, and no devil. I will get through those watchmen easily." So we came all together in the evening, and the assassin, swinging his weapon about his head, went courageously on before us. As we neared your house, we remained behind, and let him go on alone. But in a short time he came running back hastily, and said, "No, I dare not risk to go through alone; two rows of big strong men there, very close together, shoulder to shoulder, and their weapons shine like fire." Then we gave up killing you. But now, tell me, tuan, who are these watchmen? Have you never seen them?'

"'No, I have never seen them.'

"'And your wife did not see them also?'

"'No, my wife did not see them.'

"'But yet we have all seen them; how is that?'

"Then I went in, and brought a Bible from our house, and holding it open before him, said: 'See here; this book is the Word of our great God, in which He promises to guard and defend us, and we firmly believe that Word, therefore we need not to see the watchmen; but you do not believe, therefore the great God has to show you the watchmen, in order that you may learn to believe.'"

ONE WOMAN'S EXPEDIENCE.

We had four children, a small salary and my health was not very good. We had a six-room house, comfortably furnished and I did all the work, sewing and everything that goes with a home and family.

The first two and a half years of our married life my husband did not drink but he had the most terrible temper one could imagine. I tried so hard to please him but at the least provocation he would swear and throw things—his dinner plate, for instance, would be thrown on the floor upside down. One day he jumped up and down on the foot-tub until he bent it all in; another day he would kick the door or throw his pipe.

I know now that it was the craving for liquor that made his ugly temper so much worse. He had been a periodical drinker. He began to drink again periodically and later the periods came near until it was one huge spree. My household goods were wearing out. I finally replaced my carpets with cheap matting; my bed linen was so low that I had to wash and dry and often use it without ironing as I did the table linen.

The children were half clothed and I did try so hard to keep my head up and raise those darling children as they should be. Finally I decided I would have to leave my husband, tho' I did not know where to turn for help.

I applied for a divorce. When they notified my husband he was still pretty "full" but he realized what I had done, so he did not come home but went out to the city hospital for treatment, got himself cleaned up and came home with one of the best men this city has ever known. They talked to me and begged for one more trial. I did withdraw the suit and my husband went to the liquor cure. He has not touched liquor for fifteen years. We have a lovely home and an eighty-five acre farm.

NEW LIFE.

By George Venn Daniels.

Springtime and summer are seasons of joy because they are seasons of growth. Nothing is more grateful to the life than development. Every green leaf is a poem of praise, and every blossom is a benediction. The rigors of winter are forgotten in the vernal season. The tender shoot has strength to turn our thoughts in the direction of its own growth. We follow the smiling gaze of the flowers and look up. God comes very near to us in his handiwork if only we will see him there. If the heavens declare the glory of God, the earth speaks of his goodness. Nothing is more eloquent than nature for those who have ears to hear. He must be deaf indeed to whom the massage of the green fields make no appeal. Heaven's own choir finds its echo in the song of the feathered chorus, and the re-echo ought to reverberate in every human breast. Truly, at this festive season, "the man that hath not music in his soul is fit for treasons, strategems, and spoils."

Winter does not follow summer; it precedes spring. The beginning of the round is in the fastnesses of the frost, and the completion of the circle is in the rich yield of the bounteous harvest. Winter enfolds the bud that spring unfolds. Winter is a bundle of unknown potentialities; spring is the manifestation of inherent possibilities. Winter wraps the parcel tight against the coming morrow; spring unwraps the parcel in the full view of today. What winter hid, spring reveals. And what a revelation it is! Then the year wakes up and, as it were, smiles at the morning. It is good to be alive; better to be alive and out of doors; best of all to be keen of hearing and open-eyed for all the sounds and sights in the glad earth, with a heart of appreciation for all the good so fresh again from the hand of God. "O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and for his wonderful works." Springtime is nature's resurrection, and nature is God at work in his world.

TELL YOUR EXPERIENCE.

The new convert should use every opportunity to tell what Christ has done for him. Paul used to tell his experience and it had great influence.

There is a story to the effect that a Christian once asked Mr. Huxley, the great scientist, to go to church with him. The agnostic declined, but asked his friend to visit him at his home and talk with him about religion. The man was unwilling to do this, saying, "You are too clever for me; you will try to make me doubt my religion." Huxley replied, "Stay at home and tell me what religion has done for you." The Christian friend spent some time with the great Huxley, telling about Jesus Christ, and the agnostic listened with tears in his eyes, and thanked his friend for his story.

Do not hesitate to tell what Jesus Christ has done for you.

One Saturday evening in the latter part of November, the captain of a steamboat in Boston started off on a trip to Portland. The wind was blowing hard and he was told not to go. He did not heed the warnings, but foolishly started on the trip.

The wind rose into a tempest, and the steamer, the captain and all his passengers and crew went down to the bottom of the sea.

A great many boys and young men are told not to touch a drop of liquor. They do not heed the warnings, but, like the rash captain, they run the risk and finally become drunkards.

Boys and girls! Let me tell you that everything depends on the right start in life. Start with the solemn resolution to obey your parents, to pray for God's help, to keep the Sabbath, to read your Bible, and to never touch a drop of intoxicating liquor.

I am glad that I signed the total abstinence pledge when I was ten years old.—Dr. T. L. Cuyler.

Your Prayer Habits.

By S. D. Gordon.

"At five minutes before noon daily, by the eastern standard time, every Western Union Telegraph company's instrument cuts its connection and is put in communication with the instrument in the naval observatory in the city of Washington. At five seconds before twelve a warning tick sounds over the wires. When the skilled operator in the observatory sees, by his delicately adjusted instrument, that the sun is for a single moment directly over the imaginary line of longitude passing through the city, that moment the fact is flashed over thousands of miles of wire and every one of the company's clocks made true. Then business is resumed. The work of the day is planned with reference to this appointment. The company's rule is to be absolutely accurate in the matter of time; to test that accuracy every day; and to test it by the standard set in the heavens. All this is purely for commercial purposes. Shall not we, whose lives are so utterly dependent upon the Master, cut clean our connections with every outside thing at least once in every twenty-four hours, and put our heart's beating in time and in tune with His heart, that He may have a chance to set and keep us true, and that we may not be misrepresenting Him?"

A place, a time, memories, associations, and hopes all woven together make the prayer habit. Among the Hebrews each family had a precious possession, a prayer shawl. The head of the household put on this shawl when he gathered all the family up into the fellowship of prayer. When a boy was eleven years of age, this shawl was put upon his shoulders and he was taught to say the prayers not only for himself, but for the family; in order that he might carry on the duties of the family when his father should die. Let us make our prayer habits like the prayer shawl, a wonderful possession, a pride, a joy, and a responsibility.

HOME WHERE MOTHER IS.

A little child being asked, "Where is your home?" replied, "Where mother is."

"You touched a chord in my heart when you spoke of home," said a drunkard to a friend, "if there ever was a good man it was my father." Let Jesus into your heart and home and life will be "hapy" continually in His presence.

WALK TO YOUR WORK

Don't coddle yourself.

If you live within three miles of your place of business, whether you are a shop worker, an office man or woman, or even an out-of-door toiler—walk to your work.

Too many of us, quick to adopt every fresh convenience, forget that the most precious possession of all, health, is endangered by the softening luxuries of present-day civilization.

It is the usual thing, especially in our larger cities, for us to climb aboard a stuffy, ill-ventilated street car and ride to business; sometimes only a matter of a dozen blocks.

Walk to your work. Fill your lungs with clean, fresh air; throw off the lethargy of the night's sleep, brace your shoulders and walk!

This business of riding every distance covered by a few city blocks is a custom that belongs in the class of French cookery, hermetically-sealed bed chambers, and such.

Don't coddle yourself!

WHY SHOULD WE PRAY?

Hillel had a wise disciple whose name was Maimon. In natural gifts he greatly delighted. But soon Hillel perceived that his youthful friend trusted too much in his own wisdom, and wholly discarded the aid of prayer. The youth said in his heart, "Why should we pray? Does the Almighty need our words in order to aid and bless us? Then He is human. Can man's sighs and petitions change the counsels of the eternal? Will not the All-merciful of Himself bestow what is good and needful?" Such were the young man's thoughts. But Hillel was grieved in his soul that Maimon considered himself wiser than the Divine Word, and he determined to reprove him. One day when Maimon went to Hillel, he found him sitting in his garden, leaning his head upon his hand, and he said, "Master, where are thy thoughts?" Then Hillel raised his head and answered in these words, "I have a friend who lives upon the produce of his lands, which until now he has cultivated with care, and has been richly rewarded for his pains. But now he has thrown aside plough and mattock, and no more cultivates his field. Thus he will soon come to poverty, and lack the necessaries of life." "Has a spirit of ill-humor seized him, or has he become a fool?" asked the youth. "Neither,' answered Hillel; "he is well skilled in all human and sacred wisdom. But he says, the Lord is almighty, so that He can easily supply my wants without my bending my head to labor. He is good, so that He will open His kind hand to bless my table. And how can it be contradicted?" "How?" said the youth: "is it not tempting the Lord God? Hast thou not told him so, master?" Then Hillel smiled, and said, "I will do so now. Thou, my beloved Maimon, art the friend of whom I spake." "I!" said the youth, in amazement. "Ay," said the old man; "does thou not tempt the Lord? Is prayer less than labor? and are spiritual gifts less than the fruits of the field? And is He who commands thee to labor for earthly goods other than He who bids thee to raise thy heart to heaven to implore heavenly blessings? O, my son, be humble, believe, and pray!" So spake Hillel, and Maimon went away to pray, and henceforth his life was a godly one.

PLEASURES OF THE HOME FRUIT GARDEN

The Maintenance of a Fruit Garden Brings Healthful Employment, and as One's Interest in Growing Plants Increases, This Employment, Instead of Proving a Hardship, Will Become a Source of Pleasure.

A fruit garden consists of an assemblage of fruit-bearing trees and shrubs, maintained for the purpose of supplying the family with fruits. In its general purposes, then, the fruit garden is intended to accomplish results similar to those of the vegetable garden. In distinction from an orchard, the fruit garden is more restricted in area: it is intended for home rather than market purposes, and consequently comprises a much greater variety of fruits.

Considering the general desire for and appreciation of fruits by people of all classes, it is amazing that even those who have suitable situations and facilities for raising them, and who can not purchase them because of remoteness from markets, have not established home fruit gardens.

With the growth of the commercial fruit interests of the United States the home fruit garden has been lost sight of. Only a few years ago the owners of home gardens not only led in the production of fruits, but were our authorities as to how and where to grow them. To-day these gardens, while no less numerous or important, are overshadowed by the orchards where fruit is grown for commercial purposes.

While both the home garden and the orchard are essential to the good of the community, they bear very different relations to the fruit interests of the country as a whole. The home garden is always the forerunner of commercial development, and even in those localities where climatic and soil conditions are adverse to conducting such industries on an extensive scale the home fruit garden of the enthusiastic amateur is certain to be found. All the success attained today by the fruit interests of the United States has grown out of the persevering efforts of a few men whose home fruit gardens served not only as testing stations for determining the fitness of given sorts for new and untried localities, but they were the propagating grounds from which sorts of the highest quality and greatest commercial value originated.

The testing of varieties in new localities and the development and dissemination of new sorts by the amateur is an important work, but the greatest good accomplished by him is to be found in the wholesome influence which he exerts on the community in which he lives. A community is certain to profit aesthetically as well as financially from the influence of such growers, and it is to them that we owe our appreciation for high quality. A discriminating taste developed in a neighborhood creates a demand which it pays well to gratify, and the amateur who grows fruits for quality will find a ready market in such a section.

The inhabitants of this country are notably a fruit-loving and fruit-eating people. Notwithstanding this, however, fruit culture has grown to be classed among the specialties, and few persons who consume fruit are actual growers. The possibilities in fruit culture upon restricted areas have been very generally overlooked, with the result that many persons who own a city lot, a suburban home, or even a farm, now look upon fruit as a luxury. This can all be changed, and much of the land which is now practically waste and entirely unremunerative can be made to produce fruits in sufficient quantity to give them a regular place upon the family bill of fare and at the same time add greatly to the attractiveness of the table and healthfulness of the diet. The home production of fruit stimulates an interest in and a love for natural objects which can only be acquired by that familiarity with them which comes through their culture. The cultivation of fruits teaches discrimination. A grower is a much more intelligent buyer than one who has not had the advantages of tasting the better dessert sorts as they come from the tree. If every purchaser was a good judge of the different kinds of fruits, the demand for fruits of high quality, to produce which is the ambition of every amateur, as well as every professional fruit grower, would become a reality. But until some means of teaching the differences in the quality of fruits can be devised the general public will continue to buy according to the eye rather than by the palate. The encouragement of the cultivation of fine fruits in the home garden will do much toward teaching buyers this discrimination.

Raspberries Between Apple Trees.

Besides increasing the fruit supply and cultivating a taste for quality, the maintenance of a fruit garden may be made a great source of pleasure. The possession of a tree which one himself has planted and reared to fruit production carries an added interest in its product, as well as in the operation by which it was secured. The unfolding of the leaf, the exposure of the blossom buds, the development of the flowers, and the formation of the fruit are all processes which measure the skill of the cultivator, and when the crowning result of all these natural functions has been attained in a crop of perfect fruit, the man under whose care these results have been achieved will himself have been made happier and better.

To those familiar with the facilities at command for the culture of fruit and the general interest in the subject, the remarkable absence of successful fruit gardens about city, suburban, and country residences can be explained only on the ground that those who would be most likely to give attention to their care and maintenance have no object lessons or literature at hand to guide them in laying out such gardens.

Most persons engaging in the cultivation of a home fruit garden will have as their chief aim the production of fruit for the family table and the pleasure it affords; others will go a step farther and find an added source of pleasure in the problems of cross-pollination and the production of new forms. In a majority of cases, however, the aim will be the one first mentioned, and it is to assist such that the suggestions contained in this article are offered.

In order to prove a source of constant pleasure and gratification a fruit plantation must claim the attention of its owner from early spring to late autumn; its products, too, must be so planned as to cover the greatest possible portion of the seasons between frosts. The problem presented involves a succession of fruits, from earliest to latest, as well as a combination of light-loving and shade-enduring plants. The intensive culture and the liberal feeding to be given demands that all plants be of types which bear early and heavily in proportion to their size. The question of longevity is of no moment; immediate fruit production is the object. With this view of the question, taken in connection with the great variety of conditions presented both by the extent of the country and the manner of life of those interested, it is manifestly impossible to make general statements.

The interest of a fruit garden may be greatly enhanced by growing therein plants not adapted naturally to the climatic region in which the garden is located, as, for instance, the growing of figs as far north as the latitude of Philadelphia. The summers of the region are sufficiently long and warm to induce a strong growth in the fig, but as the fruits normally require a long period in which to mature, the plant becomes useless as a fruit producer unless sufficient protection is afforded to carry over winter the immature fruits set the previous fall. This can be successfully accomplished in several ways. The most hardy sort should be selected, in addition to which the fruiting shoots may be wrapped in matting, covered with straw, and the fruits thus successfully protected; or, if it seems desirable, temporary sheds may be built over the plants, and these thatched with straw or fodder sufficiently to protect them from frost. Then, again, semihardy sorts may be tipped over by cutting the roots on one side, bending the branches close to the soil, pinning them down, and then covering the whole plant with matting and earth or a straw thatch and earth. At the extreme northern limit of fig culture it has been found that the covering of earth is preferable to any other method, while at the South, where only slight protection is necessary, bending down and covering with pine boughs or thatching with corn stalks has proved most successful.

By the use of one or the other of these methods of protecting plants the peach has been grown and successfully fruited in the southern central part of South Dakota, along the Missouri River.

Besides these protective devices, sheltered places, where growth is retarded in spring, may be taken advantage of in order to hold back such early blooming plants as apricots, Japanese plums, etc. Apricots planted and trained on the north wall of a building are frequently sufficiently retarded at blooming time to insure a crop, while if planted in the open and trained as a "standard" the fruit crop will be killed by late spring frosts.

For commercial purposes the use of most of these protective measures is precluded on account of expense. The commercial grower can not indulge in such expensive devices unless he has the assurance of obtaining a fancy price for his product. In a home fruit garden, however, it is different. The expense of protecting a half dozen plants is trifling, and many amateurs will incur it for the sake of the novelty of securing fruits naturally adapted to other climatic regions.

*For specific recommendations as to varieties of fruits adapted to the various fruit sections of the United States, send to Washington, D. C., for Farmers' Bulletin No. 208, "Varieties of Fruits Recommended for Planting."

The most intensive system of growing strawberries is to set the plants about fifteen inches apart in the rows, with the rows sixteen inches apart, and to cultivate both ways.

Lost Three Months Going to Water

The following account is taken from an Oklahoma paper:

"How many unnecessary steps do you take each day in your routine of work? Just listen to this story of an Oklahoma farmer who lost more than three months in leading horses to water, and then do a little figuring on your own part.

"In Hughes County, Oklahoma, a farmer watered his horses from a spring 200 yards from his barn. Every time his work horses got a drink the farmer and his horses walked 400 yards out of their way. One day the county agricultural agent, T. A. Millstead, visited the farm and noticed that the farmer was taking many unnecessary steps. The agent suggested that a well be dug near the barn.

"The agent believed that water could be struck at twenty-three feet. The farmer doubted this, but said he was willing to dig fifty feet if he could be assured of finding a plentiful water supply. Finally he proceeded to the digging of a well, and to the surprise alike of the farmer and the county agent, a bountiful supply of water was struck at only eight feet.

"Then the agent and the farmer got to figuring how much time was saved by the well. The farmer found that he spent thirty minutes on each trip to the spring and back. During the time he had lived on the farm he had spent ninety-one days of ten hours a day leading horses to water. The time of the horses was also lost; so the farmer figured that his eight-foot well was about the biggest investment on his place."

How many farmers could effect an equal saving by putting in a pipe line and tank or by digging a well?

THE CARE AND MARKETING OF SQUABS

Whether or Not the Squab-Raising Industry is Profitable, Depends Upon the Kind of Treatment the Birds Receive, and Upon the Accessibility and Nearness of the Plant to a Good Market.

It is a debatable question with squab breeders today whether birds should be kept in small or large flocks. While one will advocate keeping not over fifty pairs in a loft, another will advocate keeping twenty-five, and a third will claim that there is no harm in keeping 200 pairs together. Observations have led the writer to believe that forty pairs can be kept together quite successfully. These should have about fifty square feet of floor space and the lofts should be at least six feet high.

There should also be a fly from six to eight feet high the width of the loft and from twenty to thirty feet in length. Some breeders make the fly high enough so that it will extend over part of the roof of the pigeon house, in order that the birds may sit in the sun. This is not only injurious to the roof, but encourages the birds to lazy habits, whereas to get successful results in breeding they must be kept working, or at least not encouraged to idleness.

The estimated cost of feeding a pair of pigeons varies from $1 to $1.50 a year. Reports from a number of pigeon farms give an average cost of $1.32.

Clear drinking water, grit, broken oyster shell, and charcoal should be kept before the pigeons all the time. Salt is fed to pigeons in various forms, and a supply of this material is generally considered essential. Pigeons not accustomed to eating fine salt are apt to eat too much if given a large quantity at one time, although fine salt is used with good success by many careful feeders. Salt may be fed in a lump form, such as rock salt or as fine salt moistened and baked into a hard lump, without danger of the pigeons eating too much. Salt may also be fed mixed with grit, charcoal, and oyster shell.

Pans of water should be provided daily except during the winter and placed in the yards or flyways. These bath pans are usually filled in the morning and emptied about noon. They should be used only about twice a week during the winter but should then be kept on the floor of the house.

As squabs are reared and fed by both of the parent birds on a thick, creamy mixture called pigeon milk, produced in the crop of the pigeons, it is essential that pigeons rearing squabs have a plentiful supply of grain to insure rapid growth of the young. Pigeons usually feed the squabs shortly after they themselves are fed and should not be disturbed at that time, thus making it advisable to water them before they are fed. Care should always be taken not to frighten or disturb pigeons or squabs any more than is absolutely necessary.

Common Type of Pigeon House.

Squabs are ready for market usually from 3½ to 4½ weeks of age, and up to this time they are fed by their parents. They must be sent to market promptly as the period during which they are in best condition rarely exceeds one week. Squabs are in good market condition when fully feathered under the wings, which is usually about the time they begin to leave the nest. If they are not killed at this time they soon lose their baby fat and their flesh begins to harden.

Catch the squabs to be marketed in the morning before they are fed by their parents, so that their crops will be empty. Squabs are usually killed in the same manner as poultry by cutting the arteries in the back part of the roof of the mouth and piercing the brain, but if sent to market without plucking they are usually killed by wringing or breaking the neck. The latter is done by pressing the thumb against the place where the bones of the neck join the head, until the head is dislocated. In sticking, the squabs are hung by their legs on nails or hooks, with their wings double-locked. After they are stuck the feathers are immediately plucked clean with the exception of the head, and the birds are cooled either by placing them in cold water or by hanging them in a cool place. The crop should be cut open and thoroughly cleaned if it contains any feed.

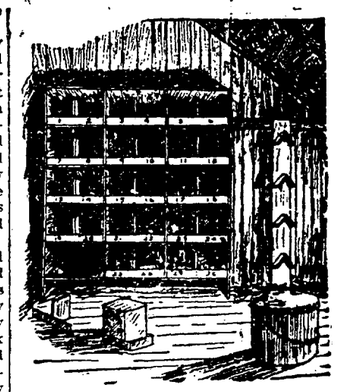
Squabs should be graded according to size and quality, as dark-colored and small squabs tend to lower the price paid for an entire shipment of mixed squabs. They are usually packed for shipment in a good supply of cracked ice, breasts up, with paraffin paper between each layer of ice and squabs. Some express companies have a special rate for squab shipments, which should be secured wherever possible. The express charges on small shipments of squabs reduce the profit materially, making it difficult to sell the squabs from a small flock at a profit if they have to be shipped to commission men. As the period at which a squab is right for market is not over one week, it is necessary to have a good-sized flock to have over one dozen squabs ready for market at one time. A local market which will take any number of squabs is a great aid to the small producer. Where one has a small flock it usually pays best to build it up until it is large enough to make good-sized shipments of squabs. This, however, requires a constant outlay without any return for some time.



Type of Nests With Movable Front and Partitions.

The production of squabs from each pair of breeders varies from 1 or 2 to as high as 10 or 11 pairs a year, but an average of from 6 to 7 pairs is a fair estimate, although some squab breeders do better than this. Squabs usually sell at the highest prices during cold weather, as pigeons do not breed as freely during the winter as during the spring.

Provided breeding stock was healthy when secured, cleanliness in pens, flyways and yards is the best preventive against canker and "going light," the most common diseases of pigeons. There is very little chance of making money from squabs unless through cleanliness in yards and pens is practiced and pigeons can be kept comparatively free from diseases and insect parasites.

The stock should be carefully watched and any sick birds removed from the breeding pens. The house should be kept dry, clean, well ventilated, and free from drafts. The yards should be kept clean either by scraping the surface and adding fresh sand or gravel or by cultivating the land and planting it to grain if possible. Only good, sound grain should be fed.

DEPTH FOR OATS.

The best depth to sow oats varies with the soil and the season. In any case they should be covered with half an inch to an inch of moist soil. They should be sown deeper in sandy soils than in loams or clays. Deeper seeding is also necessary when the ground is dry than when it is moist. On the average the best depth is from 1 to 1½ inches.

HOW TO CONTROL THE DESTRUCTIVE CATALPA SPHINX

By F. H. CHITTENDEN.

Our native species of catalpa are comparatively free from insect attack but there is one insect, however, the caterpillar of the catalpa sphinx, which feeds normally and exclusively on the foliage of these trees and in some seasons does very considerable injury, often completely stripping the leaves from individual trees and sometimes from an entire grove. Owing, doubtless, to the increased planting of these trees outside the regions in which they are found in the wild state, this insect has extended its natural range, and its injury is more widespread now than formerly.

There are several methods by which the catalpa sphinx may be readily destroyed. The caterpillars may be gathered by hand, the foliage of the trees may be sprayed with arsenical poisons, the pupae may be destroyed by spading the ground around the tree trunks in the fall, and, indirectly, the sphinx may be destroyed by protecting the parasitic insects which attack it. Owing to its large size, the caterpillar is easily seen and can be controlled by hand picking. A long ladder and a 12-foot pole pruner or similar device will be necessary in this work.

Where hand picking is difficult the application of an arsenical spray or combination of arsenicals and Bordeaux mixture is the best method of their control. The proper arsenical spray would be made with either 1 pound of Paris green or 3 pounds of arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water. When the combined spray is used the same quantity of arsenical should be mixed with 50 gallons of Bordeaux mixture instead of the water. The danger that free arsenic may burn the foliage is lessened and the Bordeaux mixture may control leaf spot and other similar diseases which affect the catalpa. The spray may be applied with a small outfit for young trees or with a large high-power machine such as is used in spraying high trees along city avenues.

The caterpillar is attacked by a number of parasites and the entomologists advise tree owners to encourage the propagation of these natural enemies of the sphinx. One of these, a minute four-winged, wasplike fly, lays its eggs in the sphinx caterpillar. This is the same fly which attacks tobacco and tomato hornworms. The eggs of these parasites hatch into white, maggot-like larvae which develop in the body of the caterpillar and then eat through its skin and spin little white cocoons attached to the outside of its body. As these parasites are mostly in evidence in September and October and largely destroy the last generation of caterpillars, it is unwise at such times, especially if the white cocoons are visible, to kill the caterpillars by other means. Where beneficial parasites are in evidence and caterpillars can be easily gathered, it may pay to pick them from the leaves and transfer them to barrels or large boxes covered with wire netting. This will prevent the caterpillars from getting out or falling a prey to birds or other animals and will insure the issuance of the parasites through the meshes. A few holes, small enough to prevent the caterpillar from escaping, should be bored in the bottom of the barrels to prevent the accumulation of water which might drown the insects or cause them to putrefy.

When Spray Doesn't Stick

According to the Experiment Station Record, two Frenchmen, V. Vermorel and E. Dantony, have perfected a means of making bordeaux mixture stick, and to better enable it to wet the foliage to which it is applied. This process is through the addition of casein to the spray mixture.

"For the preparation of the casein," says the Record, "it is suggested that 50 grams of powdered casein be added to 100 grams of freshly slaked powdered lime, mixed with a small amount of water in the form of a paste. After this has stood for a short period, an additional amount of water may be added, until about a liter of liquid is obtained. This is then added to 100 liters of bordeaux mixture and is said to increase the adhesiveness very greatly.

"Gelatin has been found to confer upon sprays containing it an excellent spreading and wetting capacity and perfect adherence. Casein proved to be one of the best agents for increasing the wetting capacity of a spray, and to leave almost entirely intact the chemical composition of the precipitate, which it is adapted to distribute and fix upon the leaves.

DO YOUR HORSES EARN THEIR BOARD?

Statistics in Minnesota on a number of farms indicate that the horse is a costly item of equipment on the farm. Assuming average State yields of grain and hay for the last five years and considering the amount of feed fed annually to a horse it is apparent that the average farmer is giving close to 4.5 acres of his best land to each work horse. This is besides the straw consumed and the pasture, which also may be very productive land. Be sure the horse is giving you back an equivalent in productive work on a sufficient acreage.

"DONT'S" FOR THE MILKERS.

Don't put the can under the cow until her udder is clean.

Don't tie it too short.

Don't put your fingers in the milk. If you want to soften the teats, milk a drop into the palm of your hand and rub them with this.

Do not use high temperatures in the greenhouse or hotbeds. Weak, tender plants too often result.

CONCRETE MANURE PITS SAVE VALUABLE FERTILIZER

The use of concrete on the farm is long past the experimental stage. It is a necessity. The first cost of concrete is higher than for structures built of wood, but concrete is much cheaper in the long run.

For maintaining or restoring the fertility of the fields, there is nothing better than barn-yard manure. By the ordinary methods of piling manure on the ground or storing it in wooden pens or boxes, 30 to 50 per cent of its fertility is lost. This loss is brought about in two ways: First, by leaching or washing due to heavy rains; second, by fermentation or heating caused by lack of sufficient moisture. Since concrete pits are waterproof, manure may be kept in them as moist as may be necessary and such an enormous waste in the fertility of the manure may thus be entirely prevented. One load of manure from a concrete pit is worth 1½ to 2 loads of manure as usually stored. Moreover, with concrete pits the supply of manure is increased by all the liquid manure, the richest part, from the barn gutters and feeding floors.

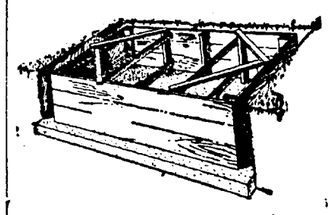
Shallow manure pits do very well where the manure can be frequently hauled to the fields. The walls and floor should be five inches thick. The clear dimensions of a convenient pit are: Depth, 3 feet; width, 6 feet; length, 12 feet. Dig the trench 3 ft. 5 in. x 6 ft. 10 in. x 12 ft. 10 in. By keeping the sides vertical only an inside form will be needed. Have enough woven-wire fencing 7½ feet long to cover the bottom of the pit. Lay the wire with an even division of the extra length, so that it may project upward into the side walls. The wire is laid after 2 inches thickness of concrete has been put in. The remaining three inches should be tamped in after the wire has been placed. Remove the forms after the concrete has set four days. The pit may be used after 10 days.

Where manure is to be stored for a considerable length of time, larger pits or basins are required. Such pits are seldom made over 5 feet deep (in the clear at the deeper end) and are wide enough that the manure may be loaded on a spreader in the pit and drawn up a roughened concrete incline or run. The slope for such a run must not be steeper than 1 foot up to 4 feet out.

In laying out the large pit bear in mind that the concrete walls and floors should be 8 inches thick and make due allowance for same when digging. With a spade trim the sides and the deep end vertical.

In order to form a sump hole from which the liquid manure can be pumped, in one corner at the deep end of the pit dig a hole 18 inches deep by 2½ feet in diameter.



Manure Pit Forms.

Do not forget that dirt in the concrete may make a poor wall, so if the top of the earthen wall tends to crumble, hold it back with 1-inch boards braced against the forms. To keep out flood water, the pit may be extended 6 inches above the ground by using the lower half of a 1-foot board to hold back the dirt, by allowing the remainder to project above the ground level, and by adding 6 inches to the height of the inside form.

DUCK FEEDING.

Young ducks should be fed from four to six times a day, according to the variety. Pekin ducks are the larger feeders, and grow very fast; they require more feed than other ducks, although they must not have feed that is highly concentrated. That is, it should be sufficiently nourishing but not too fattening.

Farm boys and girls are, as a rule, industrious and very anxious to learn.

HOW TO CUT SPINACH.

As convenient a way as any for cutting spinach is to use a sharp hoe to slice off the large plants as soon as they reach edible size, thus leaving the smaller ones for a week or two to grow larger. By so doing the season can be somewhat extended without risk of having the plants develop seed stalks, which they will start to do at the first hint of warm weather.

If horses have poor teeth their grain should be ground.

FEEDING CHICKS.

For the first three days chicks may be fed a mixture of equal parts hard-boiled eggs and stale bread, or stale bread soaked in milk. When bread and milk are used, care should be exercised to squeeze all milk out of the bread. From the third or fourth day until the chicks can eat wheat and cracked corn, commercial chick feed is a good ration.

WHY SHEEP SHOULD BE KEPT.

They should be kept to consume the waste products. On every farm these abound not only in the form of weeds but in the form of grasses of various kinds. These are found numerously in the grain fields after the grain has been reaped. They are found in the highways beside the farms, and they are found along fence borders whatsoever may be the build of these. The sheep that are given access to these will virtually clean up everything and in good form. The food thus eaten would otherwise be wasted, at least it would in large measure.

Old raspberry canes, that is, canes which have once borne fruit, may be cut out as soon as the crop is off. These canes never bear again.

An acre of pasture furnishes ample grazing for twelve 100-pound sheep.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

If nuts are soaked in hot water a few hours the meats will come out whole and with much ease.

After boiling beets, drop them into cold water, and the skins can be easily rubbed off by the hands.

When you wish to cut citron in thin slices place it in the oven and let it heat through.

The green shoots of a chives plant are excellent for flavoring when one wants only the faintest suspicion of onion.

KEEP THE LAWN CLEAR.

Do not put flower beds on the lawn. They should be at the rear in the garden, or at the side of the lawn. A good open lawn is better in every way than one littered with shrubs and trees.

TO PROTECT TOOLS FROM RUST.

It is a hard matter to keep the tools that have been laid away for the winter from rusting, and any remedy ought to be welcomed by the farmer. The following has been recommended, and there does not seem to be any reason why it should not do the work:

Take a quantity of good lard, add about two ounces of common resin, melt them slowly together, stirring as they cool. This may be applied with a brush or a cloth, just enough to give a thin coating to the metal surface to be protected.

If you hear a farmer say "Luck's against me," look around a bit. You will probably find his farm tools and implements standing in the fence corners where they were left in the fall.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, May 3.—Reports confirming green bug damage to the Oklahoma crop turned the wheat market up grade today after a weak opening.

The close was firm, ⅝c to ¾c net higher, with May at $1.15½ and July at $1.16¾@1.16⅞.

The opening, which ranged from ⅜c off to ¼c up, with May at $1.14⅝ to $1.15, and July at $1.15 ¾ to $1.16½, were followed by a moderate upturn all around.

Corn sagged in sympathy with the early weakness of wheat. After opening unchanged to ⅛c down, prices averaged slightly lower than yesterday's finish.

The close was steady, unchanged to ⅜c higher.

Oats eased off owing to the bearish action of corn.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, May 3.—Some of the better known specialties displayed marked heaviness on the resumption of trading today, Bethlehem Steel falling 14½ points, with declines of a point or more for Crucible Steel, the locomotives, Marines preferred, Studebaker, Butte and Superior and Great Northern ore. On the other hand the more hopeful feeling regarding Mexican affairs found reflection in the improvement of Mexican Petroleum and American Smelting, those issues recovering much of yesterday's loss. U. S. Steel was unchanged and rails were fractionally lower, while the balance of the list was irregular at nominal changes.

Prices hardened and activity increased later, intimations of an early and encouraging statement from Berlin being the chief factor. Gains of two to four points were numerous, the rise being extended by extended short coverings. Mexicans continued strong despite reports of confiscation of foreign owned concessions. U. S. Steel was in better demand than recently and Reading and Norfolk and Western were among the prominent rails. Bonds were irregular.

Some specialties, including Marines, Studebaker, American Can and Tennessee Copper, were at lowest prices in the last hour. The closing was heavy.

AGED SISTER OF REV. J. H. OECHTERING DIES

Miss Antoinette Oechtering Expires at Sanitarium at Age of 83 Years.

Miss Antoinette Oechtering, sister of Rt. Rev. Mgr. John H. Oechtering, of St. Mary's Catholic church, and who had been a resident of Fort Wayne for thirty-six years, died Tuesday morning at Dearborn, Mich., at the advanced age of 83 years. She had entered the sanitarium of that place just before Easter in hopes of regaining her health which had been failing for the past two years. However, she steadily declined until the final call came.

Miss Oechtering came to Fort Wayne with her brother, July 14, 1880, and had resided here since. She continued her duties as housekeeper for her brother and during her residence in Fort Wayne had won the friendship and high esteem of hundreds of people. Her many noble traits of character and her frequent acts of charity endeared her to many who will remember her in years to come.

The deceased was born in Lingen, Hanover, Germany, but came to America in 1869 with her brother, who was ordained to the priesthood in that year. He was first assigned to Elkhart, but resided in Mishawaka, where his sister served him as housekeeper. The following year he was transferred to Laporte, where he and his sister resided for ten years. Then they came to Fort Wayne.

Surviving she leaves two brothers—Rt. Rev. Mgr. J. H. Oechtering, of Fort Wayne, and Herman Oechtering, of Lingen, Hanover, Germany; a sister, Mrs. Mary Schindler, of Fort Wayne, six nephews and a niece.

The remains, accompanied by her brother and Herman Berghoff, will arrive in Fort Wayne Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock and after 4 o'clock friends may view the remains at St. Mary's rectory, 430 East Jefferson street.

Funeral services Friday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's Catholic church. Rt. Rev. J. H. Oechtering will be celebrant at solemn requiem high mass; Rev. Nicholas Allgeier, of Garrett, deacon; Rev. George Hasser, sub-deacon. In accordance with the wish of the deceased there will be no sermon. Friends are also asked to omit flowers.

FUNERAL NOTICES.

Struntz—Private funeral services for Christian G. Struntz will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, 333 East Berry street, Rev. Jacob Miller officiating. Interment at Concordia. Omit flowers.

Landstofer—Funeral services for Mrs. Theresa Landstofer will be held Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the residence near Sheldon and at 10 o'clock at St. Aloysius Catholic church.

Racht—Funeral services for Nicholas Racht will be held Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the late residence, 327 West Leith street, and at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's Catholic church. Interment at the Catholic cemetery.

YOUNG SPEEDER IS GIVEN GRACE DAYS

Jack Underwood Hitting Up Forty-Two Miles an Hour.

Jack Underwood, a youth with a motorcycle and a mania for speed, was proved in the city court Wednesday morning to have been hitting the asphalt of Lake avenue at the snail's pace of forty-two miles an hour when Motorcycle Officer Elmer Young clocked the youngster's gait at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon. The motor cop had to unleash his own racer and let the indicator climb to fifty-five miles an hour before he could catch up with the scorcher. Underwood admitted he was going some, but thought he was not going as fast as the officer's speedometer proved. Officer Young caught Underwood reeling off thirty-five miles an hour last Sunday on State boulevard and warned him. Then he happened on him Tuesday hanging up new marks on Lake avenue, and sent him in.

"Are you Tom Underwood's son?" inquired the court of the boy speed-merchant.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Well, you report to me next Saturday," said the court and the youngster marched away on his own recognizance and held levee with some of his young friends in the market plaza, while he tuned up his machine for another ride.

Junker Gets a Fine.

The state's case was vastly less conclusive but the results were a deal more positive in the matter of Albert Wilson, a junk dealer at 1933 Fairfield avenue, who was charged in an affidavit with receiving stolen goods. Two little boys about 9 years old and uncommonly bright testified that they had taken two old handsaws from a barn on Williams street and sold them to Wilson for a dime apiece, after forging to cards the junker gave them, to take home the names of their respective fathers. The lads went out of the shop, strolled about fifteen or twenty minutes and returned with the cards duly signed and authorizing the junk merchant to purchase the broken and rusty old saws that were surely no bargain at ten cents each. The same lads had sold some burlaps and a horse blanket to the dealer's wife later. This stuff also was taken from barns.

Judge Kerr fined Wilson $10 and costs, which was paid.

Other City Court Cases.

John Kelly, just out of jail Tuesday morning after fifteen days, found himself in such a plight from rheumatism begotten of life in the bastile that he forgot he was going to leave town and instead got drunk again. He was very abusive when arrested and fought the police. He made several compromise propositions to the court, but with a plea of guilty and two previous convictions $25 and costs did not appear excessive and he went back to jail.

John F. Fisher, a drunk, was turned loose and John Rogers, also drunk, drew similar leniency, while Ed Poulson drew eleven days.

Ora Farrell, an 18-year-old youth picked up drunk in the W[illegible] road yards with a pint of whisky still outside of himself, was turned out, being unable to identify the barkeep who sold him liquor.

The charge of neglecting his wife, filed against Clarence Osterman by that lady herself, was dismissed by Prosecutor John C. Hoffman when she failed for the second consecutive day to appear.

Fred Dammeyer, bartender in the Walter Baals saloon, 1413 Hanna street, was fined $35 and costs for selling drinks to John Krauter, a minor who got drunk and was arrested.

Joe Tuosky, charged with keeping a gambling device in the Fairfield avenue store, was continued until May 24.

Berlin's Reply To Be Definite

Dublin Rebels Sent To Death

GERMANY WILL MEET THE ISSUE SQUARELY

Associated Press is Permitted to Give This Assurance, But Tenor of Answer to U. S. is Still a Secret.

Berlin, May 3.—(Via Wireless to the Associated Press Via Sayville.)—The draft of the German reply to the American note has been finished. The reply is subject to minor alterations which May result from interchanges of views between Berlin and general headquarters.

The attitude of Germany will be stated in clear and precise terms. The note will leave no room for doubt concerning the exact position assumed by Germany, which will communicate the definite nature of instructions that will be given to submarine commanders and other data on which Washington itself can judge the situation.

The Associated Press is permitted to make these statements, although the censorship on dispatches tending to reveal the tenor of the German reply is still effective. The date of delivery of the answer has not been fixed.

NEW INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN.

Fact Raises Hope in Washington for Peaceful Adjustment.

Washington, May 3.—The announcement from Berlin that new and definite instructions are to be given to German submarine commanders is the first positive indication of how Germany will attempt to meet President Wilson's final demand that she declare and effect an abandonment of the present methods of submarine warfare.

Whether the new instructions will meet the terms of the last American note and thus prevent a break in diplomatic relations can only be determined by a close and careful examination.

President Wilson is reported by those closest about him as unshaken in his determination that the issue is not negotiable; that a settlement cannot be delayed by discussion of side issues, such as the British blockade and retaliatory measures and that the controversy between the countries can proceed further in diplomacy only if Germany effectually stops destruction of ships without warning and adopts measures to bring her submarine operations otherwise within the confines of international law. With a declaration that such orders have been given and evidence that they will be carried out in good faith, the president is willing to discuss the conduct of submarine warfare, but only that basis.

There is no relaxing of the determination that the issue shall not be further delayed and complicated by related issues which take the discussion afield. Until this morning Germany's delay in making reply and the absence of any definite report from Ambassador Gerard have led American officials to fear that the Berlin foreign office was planning to send an answer which the United States could not consider other than inconclusive and therefore unsatisfactory.

CAVALRY NOW AT BRADDOCK

State Troops Meet No Opposition at Scene of Fatal Strike Riot.

OFFICERS MAKE MANY ARRESTS

First Step Taken Toward Westinghouse Strike Settlement.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 3.—The first move toward a settlement of the Westinghouse strike was made today when 8th strikers, in secret meeting, appointed a committee to confer with Patrick Gilday, chief of the Pennsylvania bureau of mediation and arbitration, with a view to having him intervene with the company as mediator. Clifton Reeves, of the federal department of labor, addressed the meeting, which was so quietly called it was over before East Pittsburg knew it had been called.

The governor's troop on guard in East Pittsburg rode down into Braddock this afternoon but met with no opposition from the crowds which filled the streets near the Edgar Thompson mills. R. R. Raharin and Joseph Nysecic were arrested by deputies today after a search which included many houses in Braddock. Raharin had been shot in the head and Nysecic in the thigh and hidden by their friends. All the other wounded rioters were arrested at noon and guards placed at their bedsides.

STATE TROOPS ON MOVE.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 3.—Four cavalry detachments of the Pennsylvania National Guard were expected to arrive in Braddock today following the fatal riots there yesterday when two persons were killed, four probably fatally wounded and a score less seriously injured.

Brigadier Logan, commander of the Second brigade, remained all night at his headquarters in a local hotel working out details for the movement of troops. Later he moved his headquarters to the Eighteenth regiment armory and from there will take direct charge of the trouble.

It is the first time in fourteen years that the national guard has been called out for strike duty. In 1902 troops were sent into the anthracite coal regions, but since that time the state constabulary has been able to preserve order.

PROMINENT FORT WAYNE WOMAN WHO IS CLAIMED BY DEATH.

MRS. E. C. RURODE.

MRS. E. C. RURODE IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Prominent Ft. Wayne Woman Succumbs After Illness of Several Months.

After an illness of about two years, which, however, did not take a turn for the worse until last Thursday, Mrs. Emeline Peddecord Rurode, 68 years old, wife of E. C. Rurode, president of the Rurode Dry Goods company, who has been engaged in the mercantile business longer than any other man in Fort Wayne, passed away at 8:40 o'clock Tuesday evening at the family residence, 238 West Berry street, surrounded by members of her immediate family.

Mrs. Rurode was operated upon two years ago and while in failing health she was able to be up and around practically every day until a week ago when she suffered a relapse. From that time on she gradually grew worse till the end, which came peacefully.

Mrs. Rurode was conscious till late Tuesday and realized the seriousness of her condition, but she did not complain. Throughout her entire illness she was exceptionally courageous. Mrs. Rurode was a beautiful character, and a woman with a most charming personality. She was also a devoted mother and homemaker, her greatest pleasure being in making her children and the environments of the home happy and cheerful. As a hostess she was particularly charming and visitors to her home always found a cordial greeting and welcome.

Mrs. Rurode had been a resident of Fort Wayne forty-three years, coming to this city shortly after her marriage to Mr. Rurode at her home in Decatur, Ill., on October 1, 1873. During the years she resided here she always took an active part in the social circles of the city, and possessed an unusually large circle of friends to all of whom her death comes as a great shock.

Mrs. Rurode was born in Decatur, Ill., a daughter of Jasper P. Peddecord and Elizabeth Oglesby. Her mother was a sister of Col. Richard J. Oglesby, who served three times as governor of Illinois and also as a United States senator from that state. Mrs. Rurode spent much of her childhood with Governor Oglesby. She was his favorite niece.

The deceased had been a member and always took an active part in the Trinity English Lutheran church during almost her entire residence in Fort Wayne.

Besides the grief-stricken husband, Mrs. Rurode is survived by three children as follows: Mrs. Howell C. Rockhill, Miss Emeline P. Rurode and Ernst Carl Rurode, jr., of this city, and a sister, Mrs. Isabel P. Vehnigerholz, of Decatur, Ill.

Funeral services Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence, Rev. Samuel Wagenhals officiating. Interment at Lindenwood will be private.

LEADERS IN REVOLT EXECUTED IN LONDON

Provisional President Pearse and Three Others Shot After Trial by Court Martial--Birrell Resigns.

London, May 3.—(3:40 p. m.)—Four signatories to the republican proclamation in Ireland have been tried by court martial and found guilty and were shot this morning.

Patrick H. Pearse, the "provisional president of Ireland," was among those shot.

Three other signers of the proclamation were sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Premier Asquith made an announcement to this effect in the house of commons this afternoon.

Another of the rebels found guilty and shot this morning was James Connelly, who was styled "commandant general of the Irish republican army."

Of the other signatories of the republican proclamation found guilty and shot were Thomas J. Clark and Thomas MacDonough.

A dispatch made public on April 30 gave the text of the proclamation issued by the insurgents at Dublin at the outbreak of the revolt, with the signatures of Thomas J. Clark, S. MacDiarmad, Thomas MacDonough, P. P. Pearse, E. Ceannt, James Connelly and Joseph Plunkett.

Birrell Has Resigned.

Provisional Pact in Mexican Situation Awaits Official O. K.

U. S. TO OPERATE IN LIMITED AREA

Troops Will Remain Until Carranza Shows Ability to Handle Case.

El Paso, Texas, May 3.—Advices from Mexico City and Washington are awaited today to set the seal of approval upon a provisional agreement that is understood to have been reached at the informal conference between Alvaro Obregon, minister of war of the Mexico de facto government, and Major General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the United States army.

The conference was not ended until after midnight and the two conferees emerged from the meeting place in good humor. Gen. Scott immediately arranged for the dispatch of a code message to Washington giving the details of the understanding reached with Gen. Obregon.

This detailed report is not expected to reach Washington until late today and its consideration probably will delay the answer to Gen. Scott until Thursday. A similar report is being sent

REFUSE DEMANDS OF TELEGRAPHERS

Nickel Plate and New York Central Announce Final Decision.

New York, May 3.—The demands of telegraphers and signal men on the lines of the New York Central and Nickel Plate railroads for increased wages and better hours will not be granted, it was announced here today by A. T. Hardin, a vice-president of the New York Central. A strike which, according to the employes would involve 5,000 men, had been set to begin tomorrow, but H. B. Perham, president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, said today that reasonable time would be granted the railroad officials to give further consideration to the demands. Mr. Perham had not been informed officially of the announcement of Mr. Hardin and said the next move by the employes would depend on the road's future attitude.

Mr. Hardin would not discuss published reports that the roads have been rushing men to various cities between here and Chicago to act as strike breakers should the telegraphers and signal men walk out.

"The New York Central is a public service corporation and any strike will not affect operation of train service," Mr. Hardin said. "We do not expect that the men will quit except in a few isolated cases. We have offered to meet them and to deal fairly with them and if they decide to strike we shall have other men ready to fill their places. There will be no interruption of schedules."

BIG GUNS ROARING AT DEAD MAN'S HILL

War Activity in Verdun Region is Confined to Artillery.

London, May 4.—The activity of the opposing armies in the Berdun region has been confined to their artillery, but the big gun fire has assumed considerable intensity in the vicinity of Dead Man's hill, west of the Meuse, and of Donaumont, northeast of the fortress, indicating a probable resumption of infantry operations in these sectors in the near future.

Paris reports a sharp conflict in the Argonne region, just west of Verdun, the Germans gaining a foothold in advanced French positions after liberally shelling them with gas-carrying projectiles. The French subsequently drove out the German troops, inflicting heavy losses upon them.

Dublin suffered damage to the extent of something like $8,000,000 during the recent disturbances, according to estimates by the city's fire department chief. The situation in the districts of Ireland outside of Dublin, where the rebellion had gained headway, is now well in hand, today's advices state, while in Dublin itself conditions are gradually returning to the normal.

WILL ASK HIGHER STREET CAR FARES

Pittsburg, Pa., May 3.—In a full-page newspaper advertisement this morning addressed to the people of Pittsburg, the Pittsburg Street Railways company announces that by the terms of the settlement of the street car strike yesterday the pay roll of $2,500,000 is increased $500,000, which the company is unable to meet from its earnings, and it is proposed to increase street car fares. Notice is served on the Pittsburg council that immediate steps will be taken to this end.

"Night cars are notoriously unprofitable," the statement says. "The fare for this special privilege is now five cents within the city limits. It should be ten cents."

Up to a few years ago street car fares after midnight were doubled and within the city were ten cents.

The announcement also says that fares to the adjoining boroughs should be increased and that "any ride exceeding three and a half to four miles in length is made at a loss to the company."

The railways company also announced that the "merchant mediators expressed it as their belief that the facts and conditions warranted an adjustment of fares to secure increased revenue."

KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS WHEN BICYCLE BREAKS

Just as he was nearing the bottom of the hill on Broadway near Cottage avenue, at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, Clifton Clapesattle, son of George A. Clapesattle, druggist on South Broadway, was thrown with violence to the pavement when the front fork of his bicycle broke. People residing nearby heard groans coming from the street and upon investigation found him lying in the center of the car track, unconscious.

He was taken home in an automobile, where he soon regained consciousness. However, he was so dazed by the fall that he could not tell what had happened to him or what he had done the entire day. He is suffering from a deep cut on his forehead and several painful bruises about his face.

It was thought at first that he had been run into by an automobile but the bicycle gave evidence of the fact that this was not the case. The young man had made a delivery to the county farm and was on his way back when the accident occurred.

HOUSE VISITS PRESIDENT.

Washington, May 3.—Col. E. M. House, President Wilson's closest adviser, arrived here today for a visit at the white house. He is expected to discuss the submarine situation.

ENUMERATION SHOWS SLIGHT DECREASE

There are 753 children in Wayne township between the ages of 6 and 21 years, according to the numeration which is now being completed. There was a decrease of 97 children from last year, which Trustee Henry P. Scherer explains is due to the fact that that a small portion of the township had been taken into the city. The enumerators this year were S. J. Brubaker, Elmer Fox and James Graham.

TEACHERS ARE ORGANIZING.

American Federation's Efforts to Be Nation-Wide.

Chicago, May 3.—An organization known as the American Federation of Teachers today started work in the interest of teachers throughout the United States. At a meeting here last night the organization of the federation was effected and officers were elected. The federation will have as its members organizations of teachers throughout the country which have affiliated with the labor movement. Charles B. Stillman, Chicago, was elected president.

DON'T LIKE THE TIME, NOW.

Tamaqua, Pa., May 3.—Because in granting an eight-hour day the Lehigh Coal and Navigation changed the hour for starting work from 7 to 7:30 a. m., commencing today, the employes went on strike this morning, rendering idle the Panther Creek valley collieries, employing several thousand. A committee will be sent to interview company officials later in the day. The men wan to start at 7, preferring to quit an hour earlier as a result of the company's eight-hour agreement.

WHITE HOUSE WINE BRINGS CRITICISM

Resolution of Censure is Offered in Methodist Conference.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 3.—Criticism of President Wilson for providing wine for guests at banquets at the white house was expressed in resolutions submitted to the Methodist general conference today by Rev. James W. Anderson, of Oregon, Mo. The resolution was referred to the committee on temperance. Although the resolution was offered by Dr. Anderson as an individual the entire Missouri delegation supported the action.

The conference resumed its session today with the process of organization nearly completed and the way opened for the introduction of resolutions, memorials and reports upon which action to be taken on proposed church legislation will be based. Suggestions made by the board of bishops in its report are being considered by fifteen committees which will also receive and discuss all memorials before they are submitted to the conference for final decision.

The election of bishops which usually takes place during the latter part of the month will not have an important part in the sessions until the committee on Episcopacy has decided the number to be chosen.

The results of an "every member" canvass authorized by the general conference of 1912 intended to promote the unity and efficiency of the financial plan, were outlined today by Dr. Thomas Nicholson, representing the commission on finance. He stated that although the change has worked satisfactorily in some churches others have devoted nearly their entire income to church building, music and their own purposes, leaving but little for home and foreign missions. Amendments designed to strengthen the plan were suggested.

More than $1,200,000 was paid by the Methodist Episcopal church during 1915 toward the support of superannuated and retired ministers and the widows of ministers. This fact was shown in the report presented by the board of conference claimants.

PAGEANT INFORMATION.

All who desire special information concerning the pageant arrangements should call phone 3990, where Secretary Harry W. Muller, of the pageant committee, will answer all questions. This office is located in Shrine hall, Saengerbund building, corner of West Main street and Maiden Lane.

The general headquarters of the Centennial celebration in charge of R. B. Garmire, is located on the second floor of the Commercial club, where matters of concern, aside from the pageant, will receive attention.

Not only will every band in Fort Wayne be engaged for the four days of the celebration, but the band contest which is being arranged under the direction of James L. Shields' committee on contests and the music committee, of which Ross Franklin is the chairman, will bring to the city a large number of excellent musical organizations. Besides these, the committee in charge of the Industrial exposition will bring to the city some world-famous bands, which will remain at the exposition during the entire week.

At the pageant, each evening, a band of fifty pieces, composed entirely of Fort Wayne musicians, will provide the music which will form a great element of the success of the production.

Prizes for Band Music.

The band organizations of the middle west will be interested in the announcement that the Centennial association offers $350 in prizes to the five best bands which will enter into the contest to be held during the week of the Centennial. The prizes are as follows:

For the best visiting band entering the contest, $150. Second best, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25, and fifth, $25. It will be observed that the Fort Wayne bands are excluded from the competition, as are also all organizations which may be hired to discourse music during the week.

The announcement of the band contest will be sent to every city and town within a broad territory around Fort Wayne and a good response is expected. Every band which may be interested in the contest is asked to send for particulars of the event to the secretary of the Centennial, Commercial club, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Cast Grows to More Than 1,000.

The historic pageant has gone away beyond the expectation of those who undertook the production. From a production of 500 or 600 people, the cast has been enlarged to exceed 1,000.

"It had to be done," explains Pageant Master Robertson. "With one hundred volunteers from the Moose lodge, as many from the Rotary club, a large number from the Knights of Columbus, the Red Men, Buffaloes, Concordia colleges and elsewhere, we find ourselves equipped with people filled with enthusiasm to create the greatest historic pageant ever seen in America. With these great groups trained to present their parts, the result will be beyond your present comprehension."

The rehearsal of the large bands of savages, the armies of Kentucky volunteers, the civil war troops and others is considerably simplified by the fact that groups of well acquainted, congenial people are volunteering to assume the responsibility for the success of the individual parts of the play.

The children alone will number one hundred and forty.

The rehearsals of the various scenes of the pageant will continue nightly—except on Sunday—up to the evening of the production. Up to and including Saturday night, May 27, all rehearsals will be held at Shrine hall, Saengerbund building, West Main street and Maiden Lane. Beginning with Monday evening, May 28, rehearsals will be held at the pageant grounds, which, by that time, will be entirely enclosed. The final rehearsals will be in complete dress. On the evening of May 31, a try-out of all scenery, properties and lighting effects will occur, and then, for the last four remaining nights the full company of over 1,000 people, will rehearse in complete form the pageant on the stage, which will be used on the three nights of the production.

County Headquarters.

It is discovered that so many residents of other counties are coming to Fort Wayne in large numbers during the Centennial, plans are under way to establish headquarters where the people may assemble for reunions and such demonstrations as they desire to indulge in. At these headquarters the visiting bands and other organizations which might otherwise become "lost" or scattered in the vast crowds, can arrange to assemble at specified times.

THE SUNDAY SERVICE.

Monster Union Meeting to Be Held Just Before the Pageant.

The plan of holding a monster outdoor union sacred song service at the pageant grounds on the afternoon of Sunday, June 4, has met with immediate approval. Every church in Fort Wayne will be invited to participate by attending the union service, which will consist largely of music and an address by Donald Robertson, pageant master.

AN INCENTIVE TO WORK HARD

Understudies Have Eyes on Places of Principals in Pageant.

In arranging the cast for the historic pageant, Donald Robertson has cast two persons for each of the principal characters. The first is termed the principal and the second his understudy. Both will be rehearsed in the parts—in fact, the understudies are urged to attend all rehearsals which summon their particular scenes so as to drop into the parts in case of the absence of the principals. If a principal is absent from rehearsal two consecutive times, he automatically forfeits his place to his understudy.

Since the mass meeting of Monday night, when the people first expressed themselves in uncertain terms as recognizing the pageant as the great opportunity to express the story of Fort Wayne to an interested world, there has been a real desire to become identified with the big production, and many have been disappointed in failing to enroll in time. In case of the failure of any of those enrolled to fulfill their promised loyalty, there will still be opportunities for those who have expressed a willingness to enter the cast.

HOLD DINNER SESSIONS

Centennial Boosters Meet Each Noon to Talk it Over.

The heads of the departments of activity of the centennial celebration began Tuesday noon to hold daily dinner sessions at the Commercial club. On these occasions, business is combined with mastication and talk, with the result that the work of the various committees will go forward with greater facility than would be the case if matters of common interest were deferred until the regular meetings of departments. These dinner sessions will result in greater enthusiasm—if such a thing be possible—and the activities of each department will be spurred through a closer acquaintanceship with the efforts of every other department.

A private dining room has been turned over to the use of the centennial boosters.

NORMAL SCHOOL'S GOOD WORK

Will Place Descriptive Signs to Point Out Historic Spots.

To show their deep interest in the historical element of the centennial celebration, the young ladies of the Normal (Lakeside) school have announced their decision to provide temporary "markers" for all of the unmarked historic spots in Fort Wayne. Miss Flora Wilber and her assistants have planned to provide black wooden signs to be lettered in white, to be mounted on low posts and be placed in such spots as will serve as a guide not only to the thousands of centennial visitors but to the home people as well. B. J. Griswold has been asked to furnish the descriptive matter for these "markers" and to suggest the spots to be thus designated.

The places to be selected will probably include several of the early French sites and those of the English occupation, as well as the spots made famous by Harmar, Wayne, Hunt, Whistler, Vose and other American leaders. Unless the work becomes too burdensome to the young ladies, it would seem wise, also, to point out the route of the famous Maumee-Wabash portage, the route of the Wabash and Erie canal, Colerick's famous opera house, the Rockhill house, the Hedekin house, and many of the more modern, but none the less interesting historical spots.

HONORS CONFERRED ON SEVENTEEN GRADUATES

Annual Commencement of St. Peter's Catholic School Held.

Seventeen students of St. Peter's Catholic parochial school were graduated Tuesday night at the seventeenth annual commencement exercises held in the new school hall. The new hall was crowded to its capacity and all listened with interest to the address delivered by Rev. Charles Thiele, who also conferred the honors and presented the children with their diplomas.

Norman Christen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Christen, was the salutatorian and the subject of his address was, "Praise Ye the Father." As valedictorian, Harold N. Mettler was heard in an elegant address on the class motto, "Finis Coronat Opus—The End Crowns the Work." Both young men showed considerable ability in writing and delivery.

The entire program was enjoyed by all who attended. "The Thief of Time," a playlet in one act, was cleverly produced by six young men. The young ladies of the class gave a playlet entitled "The Ninth Promise Fulfilled."

The members of the class are: Young men—John J. Deck, Norbert A. Christen, Leo C. Koehl, Harold N. Mettler, Elmer A. Molitor, Joseph A. Neher, Clement J. Phillip and Wilfred F. Rohyans. Young ladies—Helen A. Biskie, Frances M. Burke, Marie M. Gaffer, Ignatia A. Hoffman, Clara B. Junk, Belzonia A. Kever, Grace V. Ohse, Genevieve B. Suelzer and Loretta G. Vorddran.

REAL ESTATE MEN IN ANNUAL BANQUET

About 150 Attend First Annual Affair at Anthony Hotel.

Three speakers furnished the postprandial program for the first annual banquet of the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange, Tuesday evening, in the ball room of the Anthony hotel, which was attended by about 150 members of the organization, business and professional men and their wives. The success of the affair was well worth the frequent postponements, which had become a standing joke among the members of the exchange. Lute H. Moore, president of the exchange, presided.

Following a sumptuous "feed" Mr. Moore introduced Charles Langhlin, of Cleveland, Ohio, vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges of America, as the first speaker. Mr. Laughlin paid a high tribute to the energy and progressiveness of the members of the local exchange when he declared that the Fort Wayne organization had been in a large measure responsible for the success of the Indiana Real Estate association, which is regarded as the livest and best state organization in the country.

Attorney Niezer Speaks.

Attorney Charles M. Niezer was the only local speaker, his address proving to be one of the big treats of the evening. He spoke on "Our Share." "No community can thrive with the savage and the lemon sucker in its midst," he declared. "We find in everything two parts—the part we get and that which we give. The part we get is already here. We are enjoying it. That which we give goes on to the next generation."

Charles L. Dering, of Chicago, ex-president of the chamber of commerce, was the last speaker. He spoke on "Commercial Organization," and during the course of his remarks, urged a merchants marine and national preparedness. Before launching into his address Mr. Dering declared that he had been brought to Fort Wayne under false pretenses. He said he had no idea he would be placed up against the boy orator of Fort Wayne, referring to Mr. Niezer, who had preceded him.

"There are two words most impressed upon us—opportunity and responsibility," he said. "You cannot own one and disown the other. Opportunity knocks at every door in this country. He predicted a wave of great prosperity in this country at the conclusion of the awful struggle now being waged in Europe. He also predicted a better class of immigrants.

One of the big features of the evening was the musical numbers by a quartet composed of Mrs. Zollars-Bond, Miss Ethel Doud, Clinton R. Willson and Earl Thompson. Throughout the banquet music also was furnished by a quartet. The festivities of the evening closed with a dance.

In statements made by Green and Kurrasch they explained that they wanted a revolver and decided to get one from the night watchman.

NEW PURDUE ARMORY PLANS ARE COMPLETE

Trustees Expect to Get Money from State by Lawsuit.

Lafayette, Ind., May 3.—Plans and specifications for a new $250,000 armory for Purdue university to replace the building recently destroyed by fire have been ordered prepared and will be submitted at the next regular meeting of the board of trustees of the university. The trustees, according to W. V. Stuart, of this city, a member of the board, are expecting to get the money to pay for the building from the state through a lawsuit instituted some time ago. Former legislature appropriated $121,000 to Purdue for specific purposes, but the money was withheld on the opinion of the attorney general that it was not available on account of another act repealing the appropriation act. Mr. Stuart said $121,000 was due Purdue from last year and an equal amount for this year. This will about cover the cost of the building if obtained.

The university won the suit for the money in the lower court but an appeal was taken. Governor Ralston in a meeting with the trustees lately expressed himself as of the opinion that the university was not entitled to the money. The trustees will receive bids for a new biology building to cost $100,000.

Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Royal, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?"

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

Royal Baking Powder contains no alum nor phosphate.

Miss Dulcia Hall.

Absence of men in Australia during war times does not worry the women of that country. They are able to defend themselves. So declares Miss Dulcia Hall, champion woman jiu jitsu wretsler. The other women of her country have been studying the Japanes art of self-defense and are fully prepared to repulse any bold invader.

On a voyage to San Francisco recently she demonstrated her ability by downing several strong men who pooh-poohed the idea of a woman being able to defend herself. She says she has no fear of a masher or a purse snatcher and offers to throw most any sort of a man who should happen to molest her.

For a year she has been teaching Australian and New Zealand women the tricks of this means of defense.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.—Advertisement.

GIRL HERMITS SEEK HEALTH IN LONELY MOUNTAIN JUNGLE.

Left to right: Bertha Hannum and Mary Bogart and the crude implements with which they are eking out an existence in the wilds of the Santa Monica mountains.

Santa Monica, Cal., May 3.—Braving the loneliness and the rigors of the Santa Monica mountains, in a spot 15 miles from the nearest habitation, Bertha Hannum and Mary Bogart, daughters of two well known families of Lynn, Mass., are seeking health and vigor in associations with Mother Nature.

They have been in their mountain camp more than a fortnight now and will remain there, they say, until the first of September.

The girls have built a two-room hut from the branches, bark, grass and other available bits of the wilderness. They have planted a garden with the seeds they took into the mountains with them, and as both are adept with rod and gun they have no fear of a food shortage.

"We are in no danger of being molested or going hungry," said Miss Hannum. "With good fishing and mountains that teem with small game, and fresh vegetables aplenty from a garden at our back door—what more could one ask?"

Edward Hannum, a Lynn attorney, and brother of Miss Hannum, accompanied the girls to this city. When he left them, however, they bade farewell to all human companions.

Skirts have been discarded by the fair hermits and they have assumed the more convenient men's attire.

"In the course of our explorations," explained Miss Bogart, "we have discovered many Indian graves. We hope to find many interesting relics and even to make some discoveries that will be of value to science. Many prehistoric specimens have been unearthed in southern California and it is possible that we may find traces of some ancient and unknown race. This is one of the purposes of our trip."

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

Matt 28:16-20.

16 Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.

17 And when they saw him, they worshiped him: but some doubted.

18 And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

19 Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptising them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost:

20 Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen.

Paul fares forth to his heroic task, blest humanly, above most missionaries. But, while the plan was born out of their prayers, it was the Lord's command that urged them on. Prayer and scripture can have but one outlet: "Go." And as we respond we may in all confidence expect divine guidance. The poverty of the church comes from over-activity and frugal waiting. Wait, thou, upon God."

Health Officers in Conference.

That Indiana has never more highly appraised public health as an asset than she is now doing is given new emphasis by the fact that some three hundred health officers from cities, towns and villages of the state have been turning their annual conference at Indianapolis into a very practical school. They have been not merely discussing theories. They have been seeking the tried methods that will get results in the banishment of disease and the conservation of health in their respective localities. It is rather notable and highly creditable as well to see a great convention of this sort impressed with the idea that it has a real purpose in view, and is not merely an occasion for a vacation or a vehicle by which finely spun but doubtful theories are to be carried over the state.

Some big, outstanding facts are being given new emphasis at the Indianapolis meeting. Among them are these: A chief cause of high taxes is preventable disease. Fifty per cent of all taxes is used to support our defectives, delinquents and dependents. Seventy per cent of defectiveness, delinquency and dependency is caused by ill health and disease. Hygiene can prevent ill health and disease.

Some of us, perhaps, have failed to always realize the importance of these truths, or even to grasp them at all. The emphatic manner in which they are now being set forth by the Indiana health officers is bound to bring good results. It will be an excellent thing if the general public as well as the health officials come into a deeper realization of what the public health effort means and what it will be able to accomplish if it is given the support and the co-operation its vital importance deserves.

Men who have money invesed in the American production of dyestuffs estimate that within the past eighteen months this country's output of this commodity has more han doubled. Spurred into action by the impossibility of obtaining the customary supplies in European markets, American genius has been bending itself to its new task with much vigor and with a most encouraging degree of success. Not all the skill of the European experts has yet been matched, and the output is far from sufficient to meet American needs, but we are making distinct progress. There should be the most prompt and cheerful co-operation in the way of legislation that will safeguard and develop this very essential industry.

The suggestion of Cashier Henry R. Freeman, of the First National bank, that systematic provision for the payment of life insurance policies might be made along lines similar to those of the Christmas money clubs has been eagerly seized upon by the local life underwriters as a most excellent idea, and they will seek to induce policy-holders to put it into practice. Behind it, of course, is the basic idea of thrift that urges immediate conservation and persistent adherence to the saving habit. It will work as well in any other avenue as in Christmas savings or in life insurance, and it is a most excellent thing everywhere and all the time.

The World's Court League, at its sessions in New York, is giving emphatic endorsement to the proposal for an international tribunal for the adjustment of all international disputes. As a matter of fact, everybody is in favor of it, and no lands more so than those which are now engaged in the gigantic European struggle. They will cheerfully admit as much. The difficulty has always been in transmitting to actual practice the theory which all agree is a most excellent one, and which would work out very handsomely were it not for the other fellow.

The marrying justices of the peace at Jeffersonville are the latest to feel the crushing force of an assault upon human liberties. For a good many years there have been maintained at this Hoosier Gretna Green insistent "runners" who lay in wait for incoming bridal couples and directed them to their employers to have the marriage knot tied. Now the city council has forbidden this practice under the penalty of a $50 fine. You are now permitted to select your own 'squire if you want marrying done in Jeffersonville.

It is now announced that more than one thousand actors will take part in the presentation of the historical pageant which is to be a part of Fort Wayne's centennial celebration next month. In other words, Fort Wayne believes that what is worth doing at all is worth doing well, and on a scale that measures up to the importance of the occasion.

Of course, after the fizzle of the Irish revolution, it is supremely necessary to have a goat for the occasion, and there are multiplying indications that the English government has picked on Mr. Birrell, the secretary for Ireland, to enact that role. Mr. Birrell, too, appears to appreciate the fact that he is "it."

James E. Watson is going into Virginia to spend a few days in campaigning for a republican nominee for congress in that state. Mr. Watson will reserve his 42 centimetre artillery, however, for his own battle for the senate here in Indiana. That Virginia affair is merely a skirmish, anyhow.

WOUD ABOLISH PARTIES

(Pittsburg Dispatch).

Former Congressman W. D. Bynum, of Indianapolis, thinks the change from nomination by conventions to direct primaries has not been an improvement, but, unlike many of those who oppose the direct primary, he would not return to the convention system. The one, in his opinion, is as bad as the other, and as ineffective. His remedy is much more sweeping. "I would repeal every law upon our statutes that recognizes political parties. I would provide for the nomination of candidates by safely guarded provisions by petitions. It would have but one ticket upon which should be printed the names of all candidates for a particular office under a single caption without any distinguishing mark to indicate their politics."

This, he admits, would not necessarily abolish parties, but he thinks it would put an end to long, expensive campaigns for nominations and enable the non-professional members of a party to nominate a candidate acceptable to the better element. Our political evils, he believes, spring from the abuse of power officially conferred in the party organizations. Further, he asserts that the demand on an elector that he support the nominee of any party is unwarranted and offensive and that our political machinery is unconstitutional in so far as it excludes voters from the free exercise of their political rights.

Yet even in non-partisan primaries factions or parties have been able to hold together, and it is a fair assumption that they would be just as able if primaries were abolished and the only vote was at the general election. Mr. Bynum's theory seeks to find a mechanical remedy for defects that in the end cannot be cured except by the individual voter. So long as the professional politicians are allowed to monopolize to a large extent interest in nominations and elections, so long as the better element puts up with professional leadership and dictation, either by complacent acceptance of it or by failing to vote at primary or election, no automatic reform can be expected.

SOCIETY GIRL, ON A DARE, DANCED WITH SNAKE TO AID CHARITY.

Miss Florence McCoy in one other poses of her snake dance.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—On a dare Florence McCoy, 22, danced with a snake. Miss McCoy is no ordinary snake dancer, nor is she even a public entertainer. She frequently dances privately, however, at entertainments within her own social set.

But a circus was to be given in public, the proceeds to go to the charity institutions of this city, and Miss McCoy was dared to dance with a snake.

"If you will do it," said Fred H. Soloman, socially prominent here, "I will give a check of a hundred dollars to any charity you choose to name."

So for the sake of the good that would come of the check, Miss McCoy, who detested crowds, and possessed an inborn hatred of snakes, performed before the public at the indoor circus every night for a week with a snake, thus helping to swell the charity fund.

"I can't say that I enjoyed it particularly," she said, "but it was for a good cause, and the snake proved to be really very harmless."

It is the Bright, Active, Clear-eyed, Healthy individual who meets success, at work or at play, socially or financially.

CADOMENE TABLETS Mean Health to Men

Health is Life, Strength, Vitality, Ambition, the ability, the desire to live, to enjoy, to accomplish. Without health and strength in fullest measure you may not hope to enjoy the fullest measure of success in any undertaking. You cannot make the best of conditions and opportunities. If your mind, your power of reasoning and concentration are dulled or inactive, to any extent, naturally you are less capable to the same extent to make them perform as you would have them to.

CADOMENE TABLETS represent a scientific combination of the most vital elements for building and strengthening cell and tissue. Cadomene Tablets produce buoyancy of spirit, a regaining of vitality and endurance, renewed efficiency of body and mind. Amazing and lasting improvement results from Cadomene Tablets in chronic or recent cases of Nervousness or Failing Vitality.

So if you are a victim of overwork, worry, disease, excesses or dissipation of the mental and physical forces—if you feel tired, weak, nervous, trembling, and suffer with headaches, melancholy, pain in spine and back of head, cold extremities, dreadful dreams of direful disasters, a feeling of timidity and a general inability to act naturally at all times, if you have "the blues" and the pleasures of life are no longer enjoyable, then you need Cadomene Tablets to brace and build you up—to put new ambition, energy and strength into your system and reinforce and nourish the bodily structures. Cadomene Tablets are sold on a money-back-if-not-satisfied-guarantee, and if you are not pleased with results you get every cent of your money back. It belongs to you and we want you to have it.

Cadomene Tablets help men out of the rut of nervous discontent and ill-health, and restore to them the capacity for more complete enjoyment of the pleasures of life. All druggists sell 3-grain Cadomene Tablets in sealed tubes.

Lansing, Kan., May 3.—Cowering in fear behind six feet of stone wall and heavy iron bars, Fred Bissell, charged with the murder of 9-year-old Edna Dinsmore at Topeka, is in daily dread of being lynched by fellow-prisoners.

crime, shouted: "Come on, boys; let's get him!" With difficulty guards kept the prisoners in line.

Ever since there have been mutterings against Bissell in the prison yard. Prison officials fear an outbreak.

Bissell was brought here in a motor car, having first been taken to Lawrence from Topeka, where he was arrested after the blazing Dinsmore home disclosed the murder.

Topekans in autos crowded to the running boards, followed to Lawrence, threatening to lynch Bissell, but when they reached the county jail there, and a few were admitted, Bissell and his captors were far on the road to Leavenworth.

From Leavenworth he was brought to Lansing.

Edna Dinsmore's funeral in Topeka was conducted by the leading woman's club and attended by a large portion of the population.

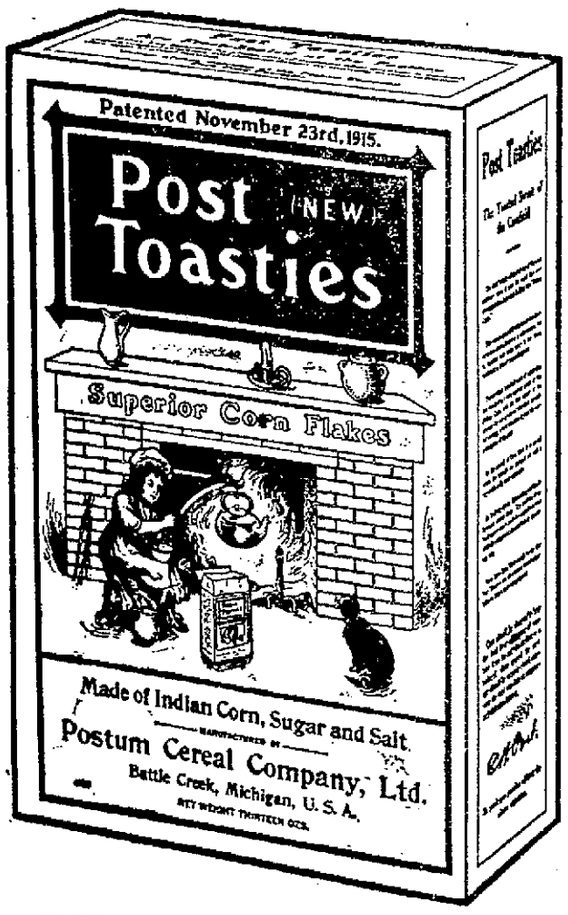
The U. S. Patent Office

---Recognizing Something New

Has Granted a Patent, Both on the Form of Flake and Process of Manufacture of

New Post Toasties

This remarkable recognition—no other corn flake on the market has achieved it—marks this new food as something distinctly different from "corn flakes" of the past.



Patented November 23rd, 1915.
Post Toasties (NEW)
Superior Corn Flakes
Made of Indian Corn, Sugar and Salt.
Postum Cereal Company, Ltd.
Battle Creek, Michigan, U. S. A.
NET WEIGHT THIRTEEN OZS.
Post Toasties

What Is This Difference?

Compare New Post Toasties with the average corn flake--observe the tiny bubbles which cover their surface. These bubbles are caused by a new method of cooking, rolling and toasting under quick, intense heat.

By this process the true corn flavour is developed in all its sweetness. Eaten dry they are a delicious morsel. With cream or milk they are a revelation to the taste. Note the "substance" of New Post Toasties. Unlike old-style "corn flakes" they do not break or "chaff" in the package. They do not mush down under milk or cream. They are wonderfully delicious.

And they come to you direct from the giant ovens of our three great Toastie Factories, untouched by human hand and triply sealed in a moisture-proof container which preserves their fresh, Golden Goodness for your table.

The closing meting for this season of the parent-teacher club of the high school, was held on Tuesday afternoon. Dr. M. F. Porter gave a practical talk to the club on the subject of the conservation of health and laid emphasis on the prevention of disease by healthful living and said such was the business and possibility of the people, rather than of the physicans. Dr. Porter told of the cause of much illness and physical defects with which children come into the world; of causes of mortality of infants, and of young children from being fed impure milk, cheap and many times impure sweets, poorly prepared food and then having their pains quieted with medicines bought ready prepared. Dr. Porter gave statistics to prove his assertions and declared that sunshine, pure air and plenty of sleep are better health makers than a shopful of drugs. The election of officers resulted in A. L. Hadley being chosen to succeed himself, as president; H. G. Keegan, vice president; Mrs. J. S. McCurdy, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. J. P. MR. FAVERSHAM IN "THE HAWK."

Star Company and Play Delight Large Audience.

In a play that permits him to display his finished art and with a company of splendid calibre, William Faversham again delighted his admirers in Fort Wayne by appearing for the first time in his present play, "The Hawk," at the Majestic last evening. The play is exceedingly well written and has many lines of wit and sense. The play is by Francis De Croisset and its people are of the wealthy and titled class of Paris, but it is a clean play with no suggestion of an undercurrent of indecency so often characteristic of comedies of similar location. Mr. Faversham has had wholesomer roles and those more picturesque, but perhaps none that has given him an opportunity to display emotion in a finer way than in this. The company was one demanding unqualified praise and the costumes were rich. Miss Arleen Hackett gave one of the best exhibitions of emotional acting ever seen in Fort Wayne and she is also a charming woman to watch. A. S. Byron, as the American, was equally delightful in his role, which appealed especially to the audience, while Edwin Cushman, Grace Henderson and Elise Oldham were others of the fine company whom a brief notice needs must mention in fairness to their art.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Any Man's Sister," a Great Play of Modern Times.

Oscar O'Shea, stage director, who created the part of Stephen Rockwell in the "Any Man's Sister" production, delights in telling of an experience he had when a boy. Like many other recognized actors of the present day, he began his career carrying the spear for Warde and James, Thomas Keene, Robert Mantell, Modjeska, Julia Marlowe, Richard Mansfield, Otis Skinner and Henry Irving when these great actors visited his native town.

On one of those occasions Thomas Keene was presenting "Julius Caesar." O'Shea was on hand to carry a spear, but instead he was selected to play the part of the dead body of "Caesar." When the body was carried on in the Forum scene, covered with a mantle which was covered with dust, due to the carelessness of the property man, Charles B. Hanford, who was playing Marc Antony, had just begun the famous oration, when some of the dust from the mantle, getting into O'Shea's nose, he was seized with a wild desire to sneeze. He held his breath, gritted his teeth and clinched his fists; nearly strangled himself at the time. "Then make a ring about the corpse of Caesar, and let me show you him that made the will." Hanford descended from the platform and gently raised the mantle from the corpse's face, which accentuated the tickling sensation in O'Shea's nose. It was beyond human endurance. "Kerchoo." First, a titter and then a roar from the audience, a smothered oath from Marc Antony. "If you have tears prepare to shed them now," Hanford went on. As the scene finished, the corpse beat a hasty retreat out the stage door.

St. Mary's Alumnae banquet postponed indefinitely.

AT KEITH PALACE

GERTIE VAN DYKE AND BROTHER.

Versatile Protean Singing Act Features New Bill at Palace.

That most versatile of vaudeville entertainers, Gertie Van Dyke, with her brother will be one of the features on the new bill to open Thursday afternoon at the New Palace. The Van Dykes present a protean singing act in which they appear in a score of costumes, making their changes in the wink of an eye.

The Neverfeld Baboons, the most wonderful trained animals in the show business this season are actually riding motorcycles, not bicycles but power propelled two wheelers, as one of their myriad of startling tricks. These baboons are the funniest of our common ancestors and will appeal especially to the children, for which reason the New Palace has arranged a special matinee for the kiddies on Saturday afternoon.

Closes Tonight.

The current bill will close this evening. It includes a quintet of clever acts that have proved hits in Fort Wayne, among them being the singing novelty, "A Night in the Park;" The Choy Hung Wha troupe of Chinese marvels; Grace Ayres and company in their skatorial oddity; Senator Francis Murphy and his ludicrous political speech and Wilson and Wilson, the senegambian entertainers.

AT THE TEMPLE.

"BOSS OF THE RANCH" TONIGHT.

"The Shepherd of the Hills Comes on Thursday Night.

The Temple players, who scored twice at the Empress yesterday in "The Boss of the Ranch" are back on their own stage at the Temple today and will be seen in the final performance of the great western drama tonight. The matinee followed by the tango tea and informal reception was greatly enjoyed yesterday.

Beginning tomorrow night the attraction at the Temple for the last half of the week will be "The Shepherd of the Hills," one of the greatest back-to-nature dramas ever written. There will be performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights with the usual Saturday matinee. The temple players are perfecting themselves for a dramatization of this great piece which will measure up to the highest expectations formed by a perusal of the book. Popular prices will prevail and for the first time in the history of Fort Wayne, "The Shepherd of the Hills" will be presented in stock the same as given by high priced road companies.

AT THE GRAND

"The Song of the Wage Slave."

"The Song of the Wage Slave," in which Edmund Breese, the eminent dramatic actor, has created the stellar role, will be shown at the Grand today. The story of this five-part photodrama, based on the poem of the same name by Robert W. Service, author of "The Spell of the Yukon," is a distinct departure from the ordinary run of motion pictures, and teems with tense situations. Throughout the picture runs a story of the remarkable love of a man who is called upon and willingly makes the greatest sacrifices possible for the woman he loves. He not only marries her to save her name, after she has been compromised by another, but disappears so he is believed to be dead, in order that she can marry the sweetheart of her youth. Ultimately he sacrifices his life to save hers, after a series of intense dramatic situations.

Compliments for Miss Florence Lang

MISS FLORENCE LANG.

Miss Florence I. Lang, whose coming recital at the Majestic on May 9 is exciting much interest in musical circles, has received some high praise in newspaper notices for her work. A few weeks ago Miss Lang sang with the Sherman Park Choral club, Chicago, in a performance of Rossetter Cole's "The Passing of Summer." A critic wrote: "The soprano role is a very difficult one and Miss Lang sang the work in a finished manner." The Music News said: "Miss Lang has a soprano voice of many possibilities which she uses in a pleasing manner. She has range and power and seemed to feel the meaning of the text throughout. Miss Lang has stage presence which is ingratiating and her style is indicative of experience."

AUTOMOBILE BURNS AT TRANSFER CORNER

A five passenger Maxwell automobile owned by D. J. Bruno, of 632 West Main street, and driven by Clarence B. Sapp was practically destroyed at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday evening when it burst into flames at the transfer corner. The driver leaped to a place of safety when the machine became enveloped in flames.

An alarm was sent in and the chemical lines soon extinguished the blaze. For a while the flames fanned by a stiff wind threatened the building which is occupied by the Alter cigar store. The fire occurred in the busiest part of the day and for a while traffic was badly congested.

The machine had just been filled with gasoline and the driver states that some had run over the running board while the tank was being filled. He believes that a lighted match or a cigar stub ignited the tank.

ESKIMO BELLES LOSE HEARTS TO GALLANTS OF RACE TRACK.

Eskimo race driver, and Arctic belle on the snow course at Igloo, Alaska.

Nome, Alaska, May 3.—The reindeer race driver is the new hero among the Arctic natives.

Eskimo belles have lost their hearts to this gallant of the parka. The young village bloods envy him. And his children, when he's a married man, brag about their dad's prowess to their less famous companions.

News of the second snow tourneys ever held in the reindeer districts of Alaska, is just beginning to filter in here, though the events were held at Akiak, Shaktoolik, Igloo and Norvik on Feb. 14.

These reindeer fairs, hereafter to be held annually, have proved the social event of the Arctic mid-winter season, as well as a spur in the educational program of the government school bureau.

To enthuse the Eskimo in the possibilities of the industry initiated by Supt. William T. Lopp, is the chief purpose of the fairs.

The love-making, the feasting, the holiday festivities, and whatever passes for pink lemonade and peanuts in the far north—these are incidental to the main idea.

The competitions this year included not alone races, but butchering, harnessing, hauling and everything related to the propagation and utilization of the antlered beast of burden.

Delegates from the various herd districts—the crack racers and champion cowboys of the frozen lands—came hundreds of miles across hill and tundra to demonstrate their prowess.

Fine, brawny fellows whose ardent glances set many a maiden's eider-down parka fluttering at the heart line. Young blades who were lionized in the honored igloos that knew them as guest. And most important of all, men who are opening the doors of their tribe to a new day under the midnight sun.

Reduce Your Ice Bills With This 'North Pole' Refrigerator

Exactly Like Illustration.

On Easy Payments

So frequently nowadays we hear that expression, "It isn't the original cost, it's the upkeep." Those words are particularly applicable to refrigerators. It isn't economy to buy a refrigerator that appears to save you a few cents on the purchase price if the saving is to be more than eaten up by the increased ice bills the first summer you use it. When you buy, consider "the upkeep" as well as "the original cost." And also consider whether or not the refrigerator will really do what it is supposed to—refrigerate the food kept in it.

The Last Word In Economy

The double joining, massive walls and infallible insulation of both the inside and outside walls of this North Pole Refrigerator cannot be excelled and for that reason you do not need as much ice to keep your foods at the proper temperature as in other makes of refrigerators. This pattern is so arranged as to constantly circulate the cold air over the ice and then into the provision chamber.

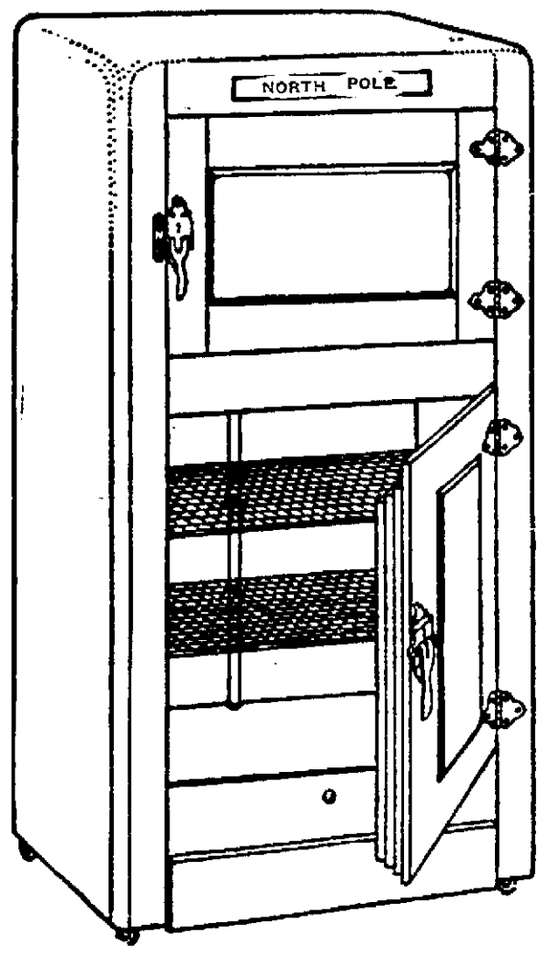
Every Nook and Corner Easily Cleaned

In this model the provision chamber is lined with plain galvanized steel—formed virtually into a one-piece compartment. Every nook and corner is easily reached for cleaning. The strong woven wire shelves and waste pipe are both removable for cleaning. This pattern aims to produce—and does produce—the largest storage capacity in proportion to the ice consumed. It is absolutely sanitary, convenient and economical.

Same Style--White Enamel Lined $19.00

A larger sized refrigerator than the one illustrated finished by an infallible baking process in a flint-hard, glass-smooth, non-absorbent pure white surface which will not chip from its metal base.

Either this or the above model is so arranged to give maximum storage capacity with the minimum floor space. It is of ample size for the average family.



26 Other Models to Select from--$12 and up

One advantage of purchasing at Pickard's is that you may compare more different models side by side than you will find anywhere else. We have 26 different models that we recommend. They range in price from $12.00 up. Any one of them can be purchased on easy payments, and they are every one an excellent value for the price asked.

See the Genuine "Stone White" Refrigerator

"White Mountain" Refrigerators are probably the most widely known make in the whole United States. They are the only refrigerator actually lined with natural stone. The purity, cleanliness, rich lustre and cold gleaming white of the "Stone White" provision chambers of these refrigerators will speak for themselves if you will come into this store to look at them.

Don't Be Fooled By Mere Cheapness

You can hold a penny so close to your eye that it will hide a dollar. Remember that in buying your refrigerator. The cost of ice and spoiled provisions not to mention the extra care required to keep a "cheap ice-box" clean more than make up for a slightly higher original purchase price. North Pole and White Mountain Refrigerators are unexcelled for the price. They are a lasting investment. And you owe it to yourself to see them before buying.

WAGE DIFFERENCE STILL A WIDE ONE

Cleveland Street Railway Situation as Yet Very Uncertain.

Cleveland, O., May 3.—With a difference of $403,000 in wages for two years between the carmen's demands and the offer of the Cleveland Railway company officials, union leaders today were seeking a hall for mass meetings of the men tonight when a strike vote will be taken. Both sides made concessions at conferences held late yesterday under the direction of Mayor Harry L. Davis, who is trying to avert a strike without endangering 3-cent fare.

Today the mayor said: "I wouldn't bet either way on the question of whether there will be a strike. I know that the final word has been said as far as the city and the company is concerned. More concessions will endanger 3-cent fare and the administration does not intend to permit that."

The men originally demanded 40 cents an hour and a minimum day of eight hours for 90 per cent of the men. The company offered 30 cents for first year men and 33 cents for others at once and a further increase of a cent an hour to all May 1, 1917. The men now get 29 and 32 cents.

MEAT SUPPLY DEPOT SEIZED.

Concern at Mexico City Is Taken Over by Government.

Mexico City, May 3.—A meat supply depot belonging to a foreign corporation with a large capital, was taken over by the government today on orders of the secretary of the interior. The organization formerly was known as the Popo Meat company, and was largely financed by London capitalists. It had exclusive rights to slaughter and provide beef and other meats to the city. Lately it was managed by C. A. Mallory, an American. The government has appointed Hipolito Aguirre as general manager.

BEGIN TRAINING-CITIZEN SOLDIERS

Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., May 3.—Work of training a citizen soldiery began with the formal opening here today of the southern military training camp. Hundreds of business and professional men from various parts of the country, particularly the east and south, were on hand ready for enrollment.

Lieut. Col. D. W. Ketcham, of the coast artillery, is in charge of the camp. He is being assisted by a large staff of officers of the regular army in directing the training work.

After enrollment applicants for military training were to draw full infantry equipment, be assigned to tents and organized into companies of 150 men each in command of a captain of the regular army. The men were to be given their first drill instructions today.

WHAT EVERY HOME NEEDS.

Richmond, Ind., May 3.—Every home in this city should have three or more children i nit, according to Mayor W. J. Robbins. He made the assertion while discussing the population of the city. Richmond, he said, compared to other industrial centers, should have a population of 30,000, but he added that he doubted if it came within 5,000 of that figure. Then followed his plea for more children. He asserted there were hundreds of homes in Richmond in which there were no children.

MILITIA DRILLS PUBLIC.

Indianapolis, May 3.—As a means of increasing the interest of the public in the state militia and preparedness, F. L. Bridges, adjutant general of the Indiana National Guard, recently made public a letter to a number of chamber of commerce bodies inviting them to visit the armories and watch the militiamen go through their maneuvers.

Battery A. of Indianapolis, drills each Sunday morning, the weather permitting, at the state fair grounds, and these drills have been made public by order of General Bridges.

S. K. RANDALL'S BIRTHDAY.

Kendallville, Ind., May 3.—Sumner K. Randall, for over seventy years a resident of Allen township, Noble county, and for nearly three years a resident of this city, celebrated his seventy-third birthday yesterday. Mr. Randall spent a part of the day at his old home, half a mile west of Avilla, wandering about the house in which he was born and in which three score and ten years of his life were spent. It was built in 1842 and was one of the first frame dwellings built in that section. There, as infant, boy and man Mr. Randall was reared and grew up, reared his own family and spent all the years of an active and successful career. For many years he was the leading merchant in Avilla, retiring some years ago and coming to this city to make his home. He is a brother of the late Hon. Perry A. Randall, of Fort Wayne.

BURKET YOUTH IS DROWNED.

Warsaw, Ind., May 3.—Word has been received here stating that Otis Tolan, aged 19, the young man who created much excitement a year ago, when it was thought he had drowned himself in Yellow Creek lake, south of Burket, and was later found hiding under a shed, has been drowned in a small lake near Balla, Canada. Young Tolan drowned a week ago Friday, when a boat in which he and the man for whom he was working upset. The employer was saved but Tolan failed to come to the surface. The young man resided with his mother, who lives between Burket and Akron, and left several months ago for Canada to work. Latest word to relatives stated that the body had not yet been recovered.

SEVERED LEG IS INTERRED.

Decatur, Ind., May 3.—The amputated leg of Cornelius Rademacher, formerly a well known liquor dealer of this city, and now engaged in the same business in Fort Wayne, was properly interred in the family lot at St. Joseph cemetery, this city, yesterday afternoon by his son Leon and his son-in-law, Tom Ehinger. "Curly" Rademacher, as he is best known, was obliged to suffer amputation of the member to arrest the progress of blood poisoning, due to injury received trimming a corn, the heroic expedient being necessary to save his life. When his days have fully come and he is laid to his final rest the amputated leg will be placed with his remains and again given burial. This is his own request.

BOYS FIGHT IN MONTPELIER

Montpelier, Ind., May 3.—A jealous quarrel, arising from the visit of Hartford City boys to some Montpelier girls, led to a free-for-all fight when the interlopers were attacked by the local youngsters, in front of Deputy Prosecutor Sturgis' residence. Mr. Sturgis parted the fighters. Trouble had been brewing all afternoon when three or four local boys were heard to remark that they would go after the county seat lads. A court of inquiry will be held and Prosecutor Sprague has been notified of the incident. The boys who figured prominently in the scrap were Marvin Steed, Howard Flannery and John Gable, of Hartford City; George Davis, Colonel Foy and Reber Figley, of this city.

Bluffton, Ind., May 3.—The old Baptist church building at Linn Grove has just been sold to Noah Schindler, of that place, who will have it remodeled and converted into an establishment for his furniture and undertaking business. The congregation of the Linn Grove church disbanded several years ago and the trustees placed the property in the hands of Rev. O. R. McKay, of this city, for sale, and the deal was made following advertisement for bids by Rev. McKay. The proceeds of the sale will go to the Indiana State Baptists' association and will be refunded to the Linn Grove Baptists if at any time in the future the congregation there should be reorganized.

Mr. Watson had some insurance in the Huntington County Mutual company. The fire caught from a hay baler which was being operated near the barn by Rueben Miller. One of the boxings became heated and set fire to day which was wrapped around it. In addition to the loss of the structure Mr. Watson lost ten tons of baled hay, and a mow filled loose hay, about twenty tons in all, two hundred bushels of corn, a quantity of rye and two calves. A small hog house near the barn was burned.

Warsaw, Ind., May 3.—While Sheriff Hufer was absent from the city Shirley Clayton, an inmate of the county jail, secured captivity and is now at large. Late in the afternoon the inmates of the jail complained that they were cold as there was no fire in the stove at the time. Clayton told the girl that he would bring in some wood and build a fire if she would leave him out of the cell. The door was unlocked and Clayton brought one load of wood then left to get the second. When he reached the wood house he forgot to come back. Clayton, whose home is in Milford, had served 79 days in jail on a conviction of carrying concealed weapons.

at Wilkesbarre owing to a strike of street car men for several months and could not be called away from the city.

Quiet Through Night.

Quiet prevailed throughout the night in Braddock. Fearing another outbreak citizens sworn in as deputy sheriffs patrolled the streets, while more than 300 guards armed with riot guns guarded the Edgar Thompson works of the Carnegie Steel company where yesterday's rioting occurred. During the rioting yesterday Mrs. Igna Cius Hillo ran into the midst of the rioters crying and wringing her hands. She said her baby was dying and that she wanted her husband. A number of men aided her in finding her husband and they hastened to the bedside of her sick baby.

When the mobilization order was received at the headquarters of the Eighteenth infantry last night all the men in the building were put to work at telephones, while others were sent to order automobiles.

The uniforms of some of the men had been loaned to members of a club which was giving an amateur theatrical performance in a downtown theater. The militiamen went to the theater and the show was interrupted for a short time while the members of the cast could return the uniforms.

Governor's Troop Arrives.

The governor's troop arrived on a special train in East Pittsburg soon after 10 o'clock this morning and quickly detrained for duty in the Turtle Creek and Monongahela valleys. The troop, commanded by Capt. George C. Jack, of Harrisburg, was the first of the national guard commands ordered last night by Gov. Brumbaugh to the disturbed district. Troop H, Capt. Charles C. McGovern, was held in its armory here, and will march to Braddock later in the day. The Sheridan troop of Tyrone experienced much difficulty in securing mounts and was not expected to reach East Pittsburg before nightfall.

Meantime, the Eighteenth infantry had been mobilized at its armory here, and the Tenth infantry was assembling at Greensburg, fifty miles from the strike section. Large forces of coal and iron police were still on guard in the plants of the United States Steel Corporation in the Monongahela valley, but experienced no trouble.

Interest in the strike situation shifted during the morning to McKeesrocks, where large forces of the Pressed Steel Car company's men struck yesterday. Three hundred riveters returned to work at 7 o'clock but by 10 o'clock they had induced the workmen in six departments of the plant to walk out. The shops were immediately closed and it was said the entire plant with its 10,000 workmen would be closed this afternoon.

GERMANY WILL MEET THE ISSUE SQUARELY

The news was that instructions to submarine commanders would be such as to encourage hope of a favorable outcome of the long dispute, but all decision is being reserved until the newest German communication can be analyzed and thoroughly considered. Until President Wilson has had opportunity to consider it finally no one can say whether it will meet the requirements of the United States or postpone or avert a diplomatic break.

The state department was still without any report from Ambassador Gerard today and has received nothing since last Friday. It was stated that in view of the developments in Germany, including Emperor William's participation in framing the reply, and the American ambassador's visit to grand headquarters, the length of time taken by the Berlin foreign office to answer the American note is not considered unreasonable, but it was made clear that unless such important developments had intervened to make for delay, it would not have been considered that the American demand for immediate action had been met.

Action was indefinitely postponed today by the senate foreign relations committee on all pending resolutions affecting foreign affairs of the United States, either with Mexico or peace in Europe. The committee determined that the time was inopportune for any action or expression of opinion, relating to peace or to war.

dier. The entire force has been on duty prisoners were marched through the city today under strong military escort. They included many youths in their teens and several women.

It is said several thousand prisoners have been taken by the military.

In an order of the day thanking the troops for the suppression of the rebellion Lieut. Gen. John Maxwell, the military commander, says that owing to the tireless efforts of the soldiers all the rebels in this city have now surrendered.

300 LANDED IN WALES.

Additional Prisoners from Ireland, Some Wounded, Are Transported.

Holyhead, Wales, May 3.—Three hundred more prisoners from Ireland, of whom 20 were wounded, were landed here early today. The prisoners included a considerable number of persons evidently of somewhat higher station than those landed two days ago. Some of them were intellectuals who heretofore have been identified mainly with the Irish literary movement. Others were clerks, sportsmen, tradesmen or farmers. Most of them appeared to be greatly exhausted.

Although the prisoners wore men's clothing it was reported that several were women, thirty or forty of whom have been made prisoner. Only about 5 per cent of the prisoners wore the Sinn Fein uniform. There are undoubtedly many prisoners who were truthful in saying they knew nothing of the impending revolt when they were mobilized. Whether that will in any way mitigate their treatment by the government is not known. A number of the prisoners indicated their willingness to turn states evidence and it is believed some alarming evidence will come to the government.

STRUCK ON HEAD BY HORSESHOE; DIES

As a result of being struck on the head by a horse shoe in a pitching contest, Cloice Tucker, aged sixteen years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tucker, of Claypool, died at 9 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Lutheran hospital. He was admitted to the institution Tuesday afternoon.

Sunday afternoon while he and a few companions were pitching horse shoes he was accidentally struck on the head by a shoe. He apparently suffered only a slight bruise and after completing the game walked home. After he had told his mother what had happened he lapsed into unconsciousness. His condition grew worse and he was hurried to the Fort Wayne hospital. Death was due to a hemorrhage of the brain.

The young boy was a student in the high school of his home town and was well known. The body was shipped to Claypool, via the Nickel Plate, Wednesday noon.

The 24 Free Centennial Pageant tickets will be announced in circulars in Perfection Bread on Thursday instead of Wednesday as previously advertised.

Local Business Men to Inspect Y. M. C. A. Building at That Place.

A delegation of fifty business and professional men of Fort Wayne will go to Muncie next Tuesday afternoon in a special car over the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, where they will inspect the Young Men's Christian association building.

The trip is being promoted and agitated by those back of the Y. M. C. A. building campaign to start in this city on May 16 and continue for ten days. The building at Muncie is modern and up-to-date in every respect and those making the trip will be enabled to get a better idea of what would be most desirable for Fort Wayne. The traction company will charge $1.00 for the round trip.

At the meeting of the captains for the Y. M. C. A. campaign, Tuesday at the Y. W. C. A., announcement was made by Campaign Director E. L. Mogge that a pre-campaign subscription of $1,000 will be divided among the four captains who first report a complete line-up of ten workers. The amount will be distributed $400 to the first, $300 to the second, $200 to the third and $100 to the fourth. HAVE COME TO AN AGREEMENT

First Chief Carranza. Because of the difficulties of Mexican telegraph it is thought his reply will not reach here until after Washington has made its answer. Neither Gen. Scott nor Gen. Obregon would talk of the deliberations.

The reported agreement is said to be based on the general proposition that the American troops will further retreat toward the border and operate against Villa bandits in a restricted district where their presence and activities will not provoke further hostility of the Mexican people. It is understood the troops are to remain there until the Washington government is convinced that the defacto government is able to cope with the bandits. Reports that the American troops will withdraw in either thirty or sixty days are in no way confirmable.

WOMEN MUST TAKE HARD EXERCISE TO DO MAN'S WORK, SAYS LADY CONSTANCE.

LADY CONSTANCE RICHARDSON

Lady Constance Stewart Richardson believes in hard exercise for women who work. Women are doing the work of the "sterner sex" in war-torn Europe and Lady Richardson says her countrywomen (she is English of course) must go in for hard physical exercises to fit themselves to bear the brunt.

This is one of the parlor stunts she advocates for before-breakfast limbering-up.

MANIAC ASSAULTS TURNKEY AT JAIL

Deputy Sheriff Dan Current, turnkey at the Allen county jail, was furiously assaulted Wednesday forenoon in the large hospital ward on the second floor of the bastile by Sidney Warcup, of Huntertown, who is insane, and at times becomes violent. Warcup was tearing the wooden partions of the ward to splinters and Turnkey Current had entered the room to quiet the maniac, when he was set upon and beaten with a chair. The turnkey got out of the door before he was seriously injured, but he received some painful bruises about the head and face. Warcup was placed in the padded cell. He had been confined in the padded cell Tuesday night, but becoming calm had begged to be let out. During Wednesday forenoon he was seized with another spell of violence and sought to destroy the hospital ward. Warcup is a well known citizen of Huntertown, and has been engaged in grain buying. He was adjudged insane last Saturday. He probably will be taken to the county asylum for confinement until he can be received at the Easthaven hospital. He is a large and powerful man and when violent is difficult to handle.

LABORER FATALLY HURT IN SHOPS

Piece of Broken Wheel of Crane Crushes Head of G. Liberato.

Joseph Liberato, aged thirty-three years, residing at 344 Brandriff street, died at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Joseph's hospital, a half hour after he had been struck on the head by a piece of a gear wheel of a traveling crane at the Pennsylvania erecting shops.

The hoisting gear of one of the big 90 ton traveling cranes broke when the operator was sending the hoist up to allow it to pass over some locomotives. A piece of the big cog wheel struck Liberato as he was passing under it and knocked him to the floor. The ambulance was called to convey the injured man to the hospital, but it was evident that he could not survive. The crown of his head was crushed in and he did not regain consciousness, but died a half hour after the accident, as the surgeons were preparing to operate upon him.

H. L. Bevine, the crane director, was near Liberato when the gearing broke and was struck by a flying piece and slightly injured. None others were near the scene except G. Weaver, the crane operator, who was in the cage above and who did not know that anyone was injured until told about it.

The deceased was an Italian and had been a resident of Fort Wayne for fourteen years. He had been employed at the Pennsylvania railroad shops for the past seven years. He formerly lived on Melita street but recently moved to Brandriff street.

Misfortune has struck this family twice within the past week. Friday evening the nine-year-old son of the deceased, Julius Liberato, was caught under the wheels of a freight car on the Wabash railroad and lost his one limb. He is now a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, making a heroic fight for life.

Mr. Liberato is survived by the widow, three children and two brothers, the latter residing in Louisville, Ohio.

OPERATORS KEEPING MUM.

None Willing to Talk About Probable Strike.

If the members of the Telegraphers' union at this point who are employed on the Nickel Plate expect to go out on strike tomorrow, they are not showing it by any undue action or excitement. All are working today as if they have no thoughts of trouble. The local superintendents this morning were advised by General Manager A. W. AWAIT ARRIVAL OF THE WABASH PLANS

Board Hopes to Be Able to Decide on Pennsy's Elevation Plans Soon.

Mayor William J. Hosey, the board of works, the city engeering department and City Attorney Guy Colerick have not yet reached a decision as to rejection or acceptance of the Pennsylvania railroad's plans for track elevation at Hanna street, and probably will defer judgment until the plans of the Wabash railroad, already overdue, have come in, showing what that railroad proposes at the same thoroughfare. The Pennsylvania plans are being thoroughly studied, though with not very satisfactory results.

It is held at the city hall that the modified plans agreed upon a few weeks ago in respect of Hanna street have been wholly ignored and the details of the railroad's second plans adopted. The plans for Lafayette street are satisfactory.

Mayor Hosey insists that the plans for Hanna street will create well nigh intolerable conditions as respects the approaches, more especially on the north side.

Hon. J. H. Bass, of the Bass Foundry and Machine company, whose manufacturing plant will be affected both by track elevation and the south approach at Hanna street, was in consultation with the board Wednesday.

According to the estimates the city will pay $94,000 for its share of the work, exclusive of the south approach at Hanna street, which cannot yet be figured, and the Pennsylvania will pay $379,000 for the work. The company appears to have assumed without question 75 per cent of the cost, which was not the case in other track elevation work affecting that road.

The board hopes to be able to reach a decision respecting the plans of the Pennsylvania railroad within a day or two.

AGAIN HELD UP BY RAINS.

All outdoor work on public improvements, especially paving and sewers, was at a standstill Wednesday forenoon, owing to the heavy rains during the night. The Grace Construction company had just begun the excavations for the East Creighton avenue pavement and that delay is especially regretted.

DENIES HE IS PAPA OF HIS WIFE'S CHILD

Gordon Davis Hits Hard in His Cross-Complaint Against Wife.

Gordon Davis hits back with a vim in the cross complaint he has filed in the superior court to the original divorce complaint filed by Elizabeth Davis. He says that when he married he was unaware of certain events about to transpire and denies that he is the papa of the child of which his wife is the mother. Besides this he says she treated him cruelly during the short time they lived together and that she refused to abide with him in the home he had prepared. He accuses her of conduct unbecoming a wife. The wife's complaint charges that from the time the child in question was four months old her husband refused to support it. They were married in 1911. Ryan, Ryan & Aldrich appear for the cross complainant.

Wed Twenty-Eight Years; Estranged.

After living with her husband for twenty-eight years, during all of which period she says she has suffered cruel and inhuman treatment at his hands, Nancy Zimmerman, 1622 Calhoun street, has sued David Zimmerman for divorce. She says he called her names too vile to put in a complaint, is an habitual drunkard and when drunk would strike her. Of four children one is a minor and the plaintiff asks the custody of this offspring. The couple separated last September. McAdams & Hartzell appear for the plaintiff.

Case Taken From the Jury.

In the suit of Herman J. Bosse vs. the Pennsylvania Railroad company for $2,000 damages, on trial in the Wells circuit court at Bluffton on change of venue from Allen county, Judge W. H. Eichhorn, on Tuesday afternoon, ordered the jury to retire and return a verdict for the defendant. This was done. The plaintiff had completed his case when the court's order to the jury was given. It was testified by the plaintiff that an injury he received on one of his legs while working in the defendant's shops in Fort Wayne was at first merely a bruise and that he continued at work after receiving it from Tuesday until Saturday. He alleged that necessity to have his leg amputated arose from this injury.

Notes of the Courts.

In the suit of Ethel A. Sunday, of this city, against Shirley A. Sunday, now of Lansing, Mich., for divorce the defendant's attorney has forwarded here for filing in the superior court a voluminous answer to the complaint and a rejection of the plaintiff's attorney respecting an assumption of costs and support money.

In the superior court Henry Wolf has sued Joseph Pepe on account for $250. William Freuchtenicht appears for the plaintiff.

R. L. Romy has begun action in the superior court against Charles F. C. Koenig to quiet title to real estatee.

The superior court has granted a decree of divorce to Alice Treuchet from Louis Treuchet and permitted to resume her maiden name, Wagner.

In the suit of William Siples vs. the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company for $1,000 damages, the defendant has asked a change of venue from the superior court to some other county.

The complaint and all cross complaints in the suit of John C. Capron vs. Minnie and James F. Morse have been dismissed from the superior court.

MAY ABANDON AUTO TRIP.

Owing to the heavy rains of Tuesday night and Wednesday morning it is probable that County Commissioners W. C. Schwier, Albert J. Black and Henry A. Wetzell and County Auditor Will Johnson will abandon their purpose to make a trip to Putnamville by automobile Thursday and willl go by rail instead. The party is going to visit the state penal farm to procure ideas for the buildings and other appointments for the penal colony the commissioners propose to establish on the new county farm north of the city. At a meeting of the county council Saturday the commissioners will ask an appropriation of $4,000 to carry out their plans.

NO ANSWER FROM SCHERER.

More than 200 compositions by the children in the parochial and public schools on "Why Clean-Up and Beautify" have been submitted to Mrs. Josephine L. Nesbit and the work of grading them by a committee of newspaper men will start in a few days.

Twelve thousand application blanks for the children to sign who expect to enter the back yard contest have been distributed and Mrs. Nesbitt is confidently expecting between 5,000 and 6,000 children to enter. One woman 41 years old has sent in her acceptance.

Mrs. Nesbitt is particularly anxious to interest the business men in the downtown district to beautify their stores and windows with flower boxes. She believes that if a few of the merchants will make a start the plan will become contagious and all the merchants will fall in line.

DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL TRACK MEET SATURDAY

Four Schools are Ready for Big Athletic Event Saturday Afternoon

The northeastern Indiana district high school track and field meet will be held in this city Saturday afternoon with four schools participating, and it is expected that a crowd of several thousand people will be present.

The school meet is the first thing of the kind to be held here in several years and marks the beginning of a new era in Fort Wayne high school athletics. The interschool idea has been frowned upon by school authorities for years, and districts and even county meets were not considered.

However, Principal Ward and other members of the faculty have encouraged the boys this year in the track and field events, and Mr. Ward went so far as to take care of all the correspondence personally and to assist the boys in every possible way. J. J. Ritter, who has been prominent in sport and athletic circles here for a dozen years, is assisting Mr. Ward.

Fort Wayne, Bluffton, Columbia City and Decatur are to send teams of contestants in the meet, and Capt. George Byroade will act as referee, assisted by a number of his Concordia students.

TRAINING WITH THE TRACK STARS—HINTS FOR YOUNG ATHLETES ON PUTTING 16-POUND SHOT.

Artie Mucks, University of Wisconsin, All-American Intercollegiate Shotputter.

(By Harold Johnson.)

Weight events require strength, weight and speed. Success attends the powerful, heavy man who has perfected form in getting the hammer, discus or shot away. Constant practice alone will develop form

Coaches recommend two ways of holding the shot. Some insist that the main weight rest on the fingers. A strong hand and wrist makes this system available. Scholastic contestants, not fully matured should avoid this style as few possess the required strength. It's better to let the shot rest securely in the palm of the hand while the fingers simply steady the weight. Learn to "reverse," or start, by holding the left side in front, the left arm out and up and the body bent back, down and half way around. Double the right arm back, down and half way around. Double the right arm back, holding the shot close to the shoulder. The motion following when the shot is put will push the right arm out and up with the right leg pushing forward with the left arm and leg both drawn back.

Put all possible force and speed behind the motion, push the right arm straight from the shoulder, get the thighs and shoulders into motion and above all elevate the weight. Practice these moves until you perfect them.

The glide is another important feature of the put. The position at the rear side of the circle is identical with that beginning the reverse. Start the glide, left foot front and take two steps. Bring the right foot up to the left heel, which should be immediately advanced one stride, then repeat. This will carry you to the other side of the circle and in the same position as at the start of the reverse. Aim to speed the motion before the heave.

Five workouts a week should suffice in training. Do a little sprinting to strengthen the legs and keep them supple for the best results in the glide.

GREIST BOOSTS BASEBALL AMONG THE SHOPMEN AT PENNSYLVANIA

THAT the officials of the various institutions are interested in their teams in the Fort Wayne Industrial league, is attested by the manner in which the heads of the concerns are boosting the game. Mechanic E. E. Greist has been posted about the Pennsy shops:

Messrs. Baseball Fan:

Gentlemen—I asked Al Ringle this afternoon if our team in the Industrial league was up to the usual high standard, and what the prospects were for a first division team. Al was very optimistic and told me that the team was high-class and with some support would lead the first division. We all know that the manager and secretary will do their part, but what will you do?

You generously assisted in purchasing good equipment but equipment will not win games. What the team needs is your support, and you can't give it your support without attending the games. So if you want the team to lead in the league it is up to you to attend as many games as possible, root enthusiastically, whether winning or losing, and you can rest assured that the team will have plenty of "pep." Don't "knock" if the team should lose a few games; be a booster all the time and our team will do the rest.

The first game will be played at 3 p. m. Saturday, the 6th, at Lawton park. There will be a parade before the game. The parade starts from the market house on Barr street at 1:30 p. m. If everybody who owns an automobile or can borrow one will turn out with it, the size of the Pennsylvania delegation will insure a win. There will be a good number of cars so you might get a ride, but report at the market house at 1:30 and you will have good company to march with to Lawton park.

I would like to know how many automobiles can be gotten together, and if you have a car or can get one, will you not please advise Al Ringle or Harry Hamm?

But be sure and show up at the market house at 1:30 Saturday afternoon.

Yours truly, E. E. GREIST, Master Mechanic.

PORT DOPE

That socialist mayor at Milwaukee is the unusual critter. The Brewers are at the bottom of the Association heap, and Mayor Dan Hoan ups and says: "Anyone can get along without a welcome when he's winning; it's when he's losing he needs to be cheered." Then he pressed the button and told his pri. sect. to have four bands at the station to meet the home-coming heroes.

Ralph Miller seems to be making good with a punch at Cedar Rapids. The local basketballer started his professional baseball career with the Cedar Rapids team this spring, and has found everything going lovely so far, and the fans already are warming up to him.

The Wabash machinists and the Wabash erecting shop are represented by a pair of ball teams and will play Saturday afternoon at Randall field.

Rey Smyth, the former local man, who went to Brooklyn and then was sent to Montreal ,is lead-off man for the Canadians, but his hitting eye seems to have dulled a bit.

Give Freddie Bratchi three more weeks at his present pace and he'll be up among the top notchers among Association hitters.

SEEKS NEW INFORMATION.

Uncle Sam Wants to Know Regarding Foreign Loans by Banks.

Washington, May 2.—The comptroller of the currency has taken steps to ascertain to what extent American banks have financed European nations at war. Revised blanks mailed to all members of the federal reserve system to be used in the next bank call require each bank to report the mount of bonds, obligations or acceptances of foreign governments it holds.

This information never before has been sought. It is to be asked for at the next bank call to provide accurate information on the subject and to dispose of an assortment of guesses and reports that are believed to have placed the total sum loaned on foreign securities far in excess of the real amount. The banks of the country, official analysis of the showing on the last call discloses, were never in a stronger position before and it is believed that the time is opportune for disposing of reports that the amounts loaned on foreign securities are unduly large.

HONOR LINCOLN'S SISTER

Spencer County Women to Dedicate Monument Over Grave.

Evansville, Ind., May 3.—In memory of Sarah Lincoln Grigsby, a sister of Abraham Lincoln, the women of Spencer county have erected a monument over her grave in the old Pigeon cemetery in Spencer county near Lincoln City, where the mother of the war president is buried. Governor Ralston will make the dedicatory address on May 20. James W. Wartmann, of this city, United States commissioner, who knew Lincoln, has received a letter from Judge L. Bretz, of Jasper, a member of the commission named by Governor Ralston to care for the grave, asking him to take part in the exercises, and he will speak of his recollections of Lincoln. Mr. Wartmann says Sarah Lincoln was the youngest sister of Abraham Lincoln, and was married to Aaron Grigsby when the Lincolns lived near what is now Lincoln City. She died soon after her marriage. All trace of the grave was lost for years, but it was found recently through the efforts of Mrs. Fred Walker and other women of Rockport, and Jess Weik, of Greencastle.

EASTERN ENVOYS OF SUFFRAGE INVADE THE WEST FOR VOTES

Members of the congressional union waving a greeting to California women just after their special train reached San Francisco at the end of a transcontinental journey in the interests of nation-wide suffrage for women. They were whirled through downtown streets in an automobile parade to the city hall, where Mayor James Rolph, jr., gave them an official welcome, declaring himself strongly in favor of woman suffrage. The trip to the west coast was made to enlist the women voters in California in a movement to compel the democratic party to consider at this session of congress the Susan B. Anthony amendment providing for universal suffrage in the United States. In spite of social events in their honor the eastern envoys never for a minute lose sight of the real purpose of their visit, and are making a vigorous fight for their cause while in the west.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get about two ounces of plain powdered neroxin from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin—pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become hard. The powdered neroxin and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anybody troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.—Advertisement.

AT LEAST 500 DEAD AND 1,500 WOUNDED

Totalling Up Rebel Losses Sustained During the Irish Revolt.

Dublin, May 3.—At least 500 rebels were killed and 1,500 wounded in the seven days of fighting in the streets of Dublin, it was estimated today by soldiers who completed a canvass of the city.

This estimate is conservative, officers said. Rebel bodies were found beneath the ruins of the general postoffice, which was wrecked by British shell fire; in Liberty hall and in a number of other buildings demolished by artillery or burned to the ground.

Bodies Beneath Ruins.

The number of casualties was far in excess of early estimates and many bodies are believed to lie beneath ruins still unsearched.

The Dublin hospitals are overflowing with wounded, including many women and children noncombatants. As rapidly as possible, persons suffering from slight wounds are discharged to make room for those whose condition is more serious.

Lord Donoughmore, former commander of the British forces in Egypt and a former member of the British cabinet, is among the wounded. He was shot while motoring to his country home north of Dublin, escaping, however, with only a flesh wound.

Last Volley Fired.

A small body of rebels, determined to die hard, fired the last volley of the Dublin rebellion last night from a position near the Westland station, which was captured by the rebels early last week. The crackle of government machine guns followed—then ominous silence. The whole party had been wiped out.

In other parts of the island there was still some fighting, though it too was dying down. Official announcement was made that the Sinn Feiners of Cork lay down their arms. Military authorities of Wexford county are making wholesale arrests among the rebels.

A Symbol of Health.

The Pythagorians of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star, which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfils its ancient mission as a symbol of health. If you are troubled with indigestion, biliousness or constipation, get a package of these tablets from your druggist. You will be surprised at the quick relief which they afford. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

Herman Schroeder, Himself Relieved, Wants Others to Use Tanlac.

Herman C. Schroeder, 59 years old, a well known Fort Wayne carpenter and boat builder, who lives at 1727 Wheeler street, is one of the hundreds of residents of this city and vicinity who warmly praise Tanlac, the Master Medicine, because of relief they gained through its use. Mr. Schroeder recently said:

"All this last winter I suffered with muscular rheumatism in my sides and my right knee. I had severe pains over my ribs around the body. I'd lay awake at night for hours unable to sleep because of the pains. My right knee was so sore and stiff I could hardly bend it. I couldn't walk more than one square at a time. My appetite was very poor.

"I saw in the papers accounts of Tanlac's work and I decided to try it. I noticed results while taking my first bottle of the medicine. The terrible pains in my sides and ribs are just about all gone now. My right knee also is in much better shape. I can walk down town and back now without any trouble. The tired feeling I formerly experienced has disappeared and I feel energetic. I sleep soundly now and my appetite is fine.

"Already I have recommended Tanlac to many of my friends and now I wish to recommend it to the public. My wife has just started the use of Tanlac and I am urging my son to try it. I had tried everything without results, but Tanlac certainly gave me relief."

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complaints, rheumatism, nervousness, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and the like and is a fine spring tonic.

Tanlac is now being introduced in Fort Wayne at the Wayne and Calhoun streets store of the Meyer Drug Co., where the Tanlac Man is explaining the new remedy. It also may be obtained at the other Meyer stores, Calhoun and Columbia, 1420 Calhoun and Broadway and Taylor.—Advertisement.

CALLS CANNED GOODS PURE.

Unreasonable Fear Adds to High Cost of Living, Says Gorrell.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 3.—That part of the high cost of living is due to unreasonable fear of canned goods will be the gist of a talk by Frank E. Gorrell, secretary of the National Canners' association at the Indiana Canners' association convention, which will be held here May 18-19.

The national association has been collecting information on alleged ptomaine poisoning cases, where canned foods were said to have been responsible. In 57 cases investigated in 1914, and in 64 cases investigated in 1915, no single instance was found, it is stated, where the poisoning was directly traceable to the canned food, which was publicly given credit.

In a poison case investigated recently, according to Harry McCartney, secretary of the Indiana canners, blame was placed on canned beans, but an inquiry showed that the beans had not been canned, but were home cooked.

Tin is a safe pack for foods, according to the canners, and is not a cause of ptomaine poisoning.

RELIGION, TEMPERANCE AND HEALTH

Sin Cannot Stand Erect in the Presence of Holiness.

No where in literature is there a finer illustration of the transforming power of real Christian grace and virtue than in the treatment of Jean Valjean by Bishop Myriel in Hugo's Les Miserables.

Jean Valjean had been given a leave of absence from the galleys where for nearly twenty years he had been known only as No. 5,623. Already embittered against humanity because of earlier experiences he became doubly so as he found every door closed against him and every assistance denied him. The inn keepers said, "Be off with you" and the farmers had no room for a "villian." He finally crept into a dog kennel mistaking it for the shelter of a road-mender and a vicious mastiff drove him out and as he skulked along he said, "I am not even a dog."

But when he knocked at the door of the good Bishop Myriel a surprise awaited for him. The old bishop bade him enter, ordered a room prepared for him and had him sit at supper with the household. But that night Jean Valjean's evil self held the mastery and as he awoke in the night time he arose and went down stairs and made off with the silver he had seen on the table. But he was taken by the police and brought back to the bisop's house. Then you may recall what took place. The old saint pretended that he had given the silverware to the man; asked him why he had not taken the candle-sticks also and dismissed the officers of the law.

When they were gone, he turned to the astonished thief and called him his "brother," and said, "Jean Valjean, my brother, never forget that you have promised to employ this silver which I have given you in becoming an honest man. You belong no more to evil but to good. I have bought your soul. I withdraw it from black thoughts and the spirit of perdition and I give it to God."

For a moment the man was stunned. Victor Hugo says, "Like an owl that suddenly witnessed a sunrise the convict had been dazzled and as it were blinded by virtue." And then commenced a struggle between his wickedness and his goodness, and if you want to know something of the change that took place in him and made him one of the noblest characters fiction has ever given us read the twenty-sixth chapter of Hugo's masterpiece. True, almost the first thing he did when he went out was to sin but the same night at about 3 a. m. the mail carrier saw a man kneeling in prayer on the pavement in front of the good bishop's house. The man was Jean Valjean.—W. E. B.

Be Careful How You Judge

"Did you notice how late it was when Nellie Clarke came into church this morning?" Linda Mitchell asked of Lulu Hill, as the two walked leisurely homeward, one beautiful Lord's Day. "I must say it doesn't look well in her."

"I quite agree with you," returned the other; "anyone who is a teacher in Sunday school and so prominent in church work, ought to be particular about her example."

"And she hasn't been at evening service for several Sundays"; observed Miss Mitchell. "It's evident she is losing interest in such things." Just here a voice broke into the conversation: "Are you speaking of Nellie Clarke?" asked old Miss Robbins, stepping briskly alongside the girls. Both the critics were silent. "Speakin' of Nellie Clarke?" she persisted.

"Yes, we were,' at length answered Linda, a trifle haughtily.

"My! but she's one out of a thousand," remarked Miss Robbins, her keen eyes shining. "Probably everybody noticed her comin' in late to church this mornin', but I don't s'pose half knew the reason. You see, Nellie gets up a little earlier on Sunday mornin's, and hurries round to get the house in order by the time her mother is fairly awake. Then when breakfast dishes are done she runs over to Mrs. Redd's, who's got four children not countin' the baby, and she don't keep a girl; so the whole family has got out of the way of goin' to church, till Nellie took them in hand. She goes over and washes and dresses those little boys, and then their papa takes the lot of 'em to Sunday school. But there's a sight of work in dressing four wigglin' children, and so quite often Nellie is late to church herself."

The two listeners looked at each other; but Miss Robbins went on relentlessly: "Maybe you've noticed, too, that she hasn't been out on Sabbath evenin' for a few weeks. Lucinda Bailey told me about that. Lucinda's mother is bed-ridden, and Lucinda hadn't heard a sermon for years, till Nellie Clarke came in and offered to sit with the old lady on Sunday nights. Lucinda said it was like water to a thirsty soul for her to hear preachin' again. Well, here's my corner; good-bye."

As she turned down the cross street, she looked back over her shoulder. "Mighty temptin'," she soliloquized; "this judging by appearance, but mighty deceivin' and unfair."

A covetous man is continually robbing himself.

(From the Journal, New York)

"Mother's Day" is May 14. Let it be given a place in the program of each Sunday school and church in the land.

Obey Your Father

A young man is not safe when he is at enmity with his father. Those who have investigated tell us that the large proportion of young men in our penitentiaries and prisons, began their downward career through disobedience to parents. A young man is not safe who keeps bad company. One friend met another in the street, and began to upbraid him for his drinking habits. They stood near a saloon. The one reprimanded, invited the other to go in there, and he would listen to him. They went in and sat down among those who were carousing. The result was that about one in the morning, both were taken home in separate carriages, wholly intoxicated. A young man is not safe who indulges in expensive habits. Absalom prepared him "chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him." Ah! he was not safe. Fondness of display has blighted many a young life. Extravagant living has wrecked many a strong business firm. A young man may be a member of a Christian church, and on the way, apparently, to honor and prosperity, but if he indulges in liquor, tobacco, stylish clothing, suppers and theaters, he is not safe. A young man is not safe who is proud of his personal appearance, or his accomplishments. Poor Absalom! He had the misfortune to be "much praised for his beauty," and he was correspondingly vain. A young evangelist who had been most successful, and was much flattered, said, one day to a company of friends, "The whole of Europe it at my feet, I can move the spirits of men hither and thither as I please." From that moment the power of God departed from him.

PAYING HER WAY TO HEAVEN

Being in a store one day on business, I took the opportunity of speaking to one of a number of women out shopping about her soul. Giving her a tract, I asked her if she was saved. "No, sir," she replied, "I cannot say I am. I think that would be a very hard question for anyone to say 'yes' to." "Well," I said, "I have been able to say 'yes' to it for a number of years." "Well, sir," she remarked, "I have been a member of the church for sixteen years, and ever since I joined I have paid a good sum as my share for the support of the minister, and other expenses of the church. I try my best to do what is right with all, and I am hoping in the mercy of God, for He is merciful." "True," I answered, "He is merciful, but it is impossible for Him to lie; and He says, 'Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.' (John 3:3). Have you been born again?" "No, sir; I do not think I have." "Then you could not 'see the kingdom of God' if you die as you are. Hell would be your portion." "Now, sir," she exclaimed in a somewhat excited manner, "if that is true what is the use of belonging to the church, and paying out hard-earned money to keep it up, if, after all, one has got to go to hell if not 'born again'?" "It is Christ alone that saves," I replied, "and Satan is seeking to cheat you out of your soul by making you rest upon your church membership, moral character, and so-called good works, instead of resting, as a guilty sinner, on the finished work of Christ." "Ah, well," she replied, "I suppose we must do the best we can, and hope in the mercy of God."

After a few plain words, in which I sought to show her the foundation of sand on which she was building her hopes, I left the store, never, perhaps, to meet her again in this world.

This woman was being deceived by the devil, the enemy of God and man, and though not born again, was made by him to hope she was going to heaven. To tell a poor sinner that if he belongs to the church and does his best he will get to heaven, is not the Gospel of the Bible, but "another gospel" invented by Satan, and the object is to lead those who believe it more securely and comfortably down to hell than they would otherwise go. Beware, then, of resting your soul on anything short of Christ, and what He did on the cross for the ungodly.

God says: "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Rom. 6:23). Mark, then, eternal life is not "wages"—it is the "gift" of God, therefore it is to be received, not purchased. Again we read: "By grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works, lest any man should boast." (Eph. 2:8).

Do you ask: "What must I do to be saved?" If so, we answer you in the words of Scripture, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." (Acts 16:31). Come to Him as you are in all your sins; come to Him just now.

"Do not tarry till you're better,
Or you'll never come at all."

—T. D. W. M.

GOD-SENT WATCHMEN

The following occurrence was related by Missionary Von Asselt, a Rhenish missionary in Sumatra from 1856 to 1876, on a visit to Lubeck:

"When I first went to Sumatra, in the year 1856, I was the first European missionary to go among the wild Battas, although twenty years prior, two American missionaries had come to them with the Gospel; but they had been killed and eaten. Since then no effort had been made to bring the Gospel to these people, and naturally they had remained the same cruel savages.

"What it means for one to stand alone among a savage people, unable to make himself understood, not understanding a single sound of their language, but whose suspicious, hostile looks and gestures speak only a too-well-understood language—yes, it is hard for one to realize that. The first two years which I spent among the Battas, at first all alone and afterward with my wife, were so hard that it makes me shudder even now when I think of them. Often it seemed as if we were not only encompassed by hostile men, but also by hostile powers of darkness; for often an inexplicable fear would come over us, so that we had to get up at night and go on our knees to pray or read the Word of God, in order to find relief.

"After we had lived in this place for two years, we moved several hours' journey inland, among a tribe somewhat civilized, who received us more kindly. There we built a small house with three rooms—a living room, a bed-room, and a small reception-room—and life for us became a little more easy and cheerful.

"When I had been in this new place for some months, a man came to me from the district where we had been, and whom I had known there. I was sitting on the bench in front of our house, and he sat down beside me, and for a while talked of this, that, and the other. Finally he began:

"'Now, tuan (teacher), I have yet me request.'

"'And what is that?'

"'I would like to have a look at your watchmen close at hand.'

"'What watchmen do you mean? I do not have any.'

"'I mean the watchmen whom you station around your house at night to protect you.'

"'But I have no watchmen,' I said again: 'I have only a little herdsboy and a little cook, and they would make poor watchmen.'

"Then the man looked at me incredulously, as if he wished to say: 'Oh, do not try to make me believe otherwise, for I know better.'

"Then he asked: 'May I look through your house, to see if they are hid there?'

"'Yes, certainly,' I said, laughing; 'look through it; you will not find anybody.' So he went in and searched in every corner, even through the beds, but came to me very much disappointed.

"Then I began a little probing myself, and requested him to tell me the circumstances about those watchmen of whom he spoke, and this is what he related to me:

"'When you first came to us, tuan, we were very angry at you. We did not want you to live among us; we did not trust you, and believed you had some design against us. Therefore we came together, and resolved to kill you and your wife. Accordingly, we went to your house night after night; but when we came near, there stood always, close around the house, a double row of watchmen with glittering weapons, and we did not venture to attack them to get into your house. But we were not willing to abandon our plan, so we went to a professional assassin (there still was among the savage Battas at that time a special guild of assassins, who killed for hire any one whom it was desired to get out of the way), and asked him if he would undertake to kill you and your wife. He laughed at us because of our cowardice, and said, "I fear no God, and no devil. I will get through those watchmen easily." So we came all together in the evening, and the assassin, swinging his weapon about his head, went courageously on before us. As we neared your house, we remained behind, and let him go on alone. But in a short time he came running back hastily, and said, "No, I dare not risk to go through alone; two rows of big strong men there, very close together, shoulder to shoulder, and their weapons shine like fire." Then we gave up killing you. But now, tell me, tuan, who are these watchmen? Have you never seen them?'

"'No, I have never seen them.'

"'And your wife did not see them also?'

"'No, my wife did not see them.'

"'But yet we have all seen them; how is that?'

"Then I went in and brought a Bible from our house, and holding it open before him, said: 'See here; this book is the Word of our great God, in which He promises to guard and defend us, and we firmly believe that Word, therefore we need not to see the watchmen; but you do not believe, therefore the great God has to show you the watchmen, in order that you may learn to believe.'

ONE WOMAN'S EXPEDIENCE.

We had four children, a small salary and my health was not very good. We had a six-room house, comfortably furnished and I did all the work, sewing and everything that goes with a home and family.

The first two and a half years of our married life my husband did not drink but he had the most terrible temper one could imagine. I tried so hard to please him but at the least provocation he would swear and throw things—his dinner plate, for instance, would be thrown on the floor upside down. One day he jumped up and down on the foot-tub until he bent it all in; another day he would kick the door or throw his pipe.

I know now that it was the craving for liquor that made his ugly temper so much worse. He had been a periodical drinker. He began to drink again periodically and later the periods came near until it was one huge spree. My household goods were wearing out. I finally replaced my carpets with cheap matting; my bed linen was so low that I had to wash and dry and often use it without ironing as I did the table linen.

The children were half clothed and I did try so hard to keep my head up and raise those darling children as they should be. Finally I decided I would have to leave my husband, tho' I did not know where to turn for help.

I applied for a divorce. When they notified my husband he was still pretty "full" but he realized what I had done, so he did not come home but went out to the city hospital for treatment, got himself cleaned up and came home with one of the best men this city has ever known. They talked to me and begged for one more trial. I did withdraw the suit and my husband went to the liquor cure. He has not touched liquor for fifteen years. We have a lovely home and an eighty-five acre farm.

NEW LIFE.

By George Venn Daniels.

Springtime and summer are seasons of joy because they are seasons of growth. Nothing is more grateful to the life than development. Every green leaf is a poem of praise, and every blossom is a benediction. The rigors of winter are forgotten in the vernal season. The tender shoot has strength to turn our thoughts in the direction of its own growth. We follow the smiling gaze of the flowers and look up. God comes very near to us in his handiwork if only we will see him there. If the heavens declare the glory of God, the earth speaks of his goodness. Nothing is more eloquent than nature for those who have ears to hear. He must be deaf indeed to whom the massage of the green fields make no appeal. Heaven's own choir finds its echo in the song of the feathered chorus, and the re-echo ought to reverberate in every human breast. Truly, at this festive season, "the man that hath not music in his soul, is fit for treasons, strategems, and spoils."

Winter does not follow summer; it precedes spring. The beginning of the round is in the fastnesses of the frost, and the completion of the circle is in the rich yield of the bounteous harvest. Winter enfolds the bud that spring unfolds. Winter is a bundle of unknown potentialities; spring is the manifestation of inherent possibilities. Winter wraps the parcel tight against the coming morrow; spring unwraps the parcel in the full view of today. What winter hid, spring reveals. And what a revelation it is! Then the year wakes up and, as it were, smiles at the morning. It is good to be alive; better to be alive and out of doors; best of all to be keen of hearing and open-eyed for all the sounds and sights in the glad earth, with a heart of appreciation for all the good so fresh again from the hand of God. "O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and for his wonderful works." Springtime is nature's resurrection, and nature is God at work in his world.

TELL YOUR EXPERIENCE

The new convert should use every opportunity to tell what Christ has done for him. Paul used to tell his experience and it had great influence.

There is a story to the effect that a Christian once asked Mr. Huxley, the great scientist, to go to church with him. The agnostic declined, but asked his friend to visit him at his home and talk with him about religion. The man was unwilling to do this, saying, "You are too clever for me; you will try to make me doubt my religion." Huxley replied, "Stay at home and tell me what religion has done for you." The Christian friend spent some time with the great Huxley, telling about Jesus Christ, and the agnostic listened with tears in his eyes, and thanked his friend for his story.

Do not hesitate to tell what Jesus Christ has done for you.

One Saturday evening in the latter part of November, the captain of a steamboat in Boston started off on a trip to Portland. The wind was blowing hard and he was told not to go. He did not heed the warnings, but foolishly started on the trip.

The wind rose into a tempest, and the steamer, the captain and all his passengers and crew went down to the bottom of the sea.

A great many boys and young men are told not to touch a drop of liquor. They do not heed the warnings, but, like the rash captain, they run the risk and finally become drunkards.

Boys and girls! Let me tell you that everything depends on the right start in life. Start with the solemn resolution to obey your parents, to pray for God's help, to keep the Sabbath, to read your Bible, and to never touch a drop of intoxicating liquor.

I am glad that I signed the total abstinence pledge when I was ten years old.—Dr. T. L. Cuyler.

Sleep Best for Frayed Nerves—How to Avoid a Break-Down

When one is indulging in natural sleep, forces within us are busy repairing the delicate nervous system and putting it in first class order for another day of wear and tear.

Forced to do without this nightly recuperation the nerve cells are weakened, they lose their normal vigor and size and if continued for too long a period nervous prostration and all its attendant ills is brought on.

Children in grammar school should never have less than ten hours sound sleep while those from 13 to 17 years should have almost as much. After 18 years of age the majority of people need a regular allowance of from eight to nine hours sleep.

When one cannot sleep naturally for the required number of hours do not have recourse to drugs. If you do your nerves and then your health, will suffer.

There are more hygienic ways of inducing sleep such as a brisk walk in the open air followed by complete muscular relaxation, (a habit which every one should acquire) a hot bath or a drink of warm milk.

Either one or a combination of these will bring sleep to almost any normal person, providing they do not allow themselves to worry.

With sleep of this kind one should awake in the morning refreshed and ready for a day's work.

Then one must not starve the nerves. To be kept in perfect condition the nerves demand an abundance of the proper food in the blood, especially an abundance of fat-making properties.

To keep our nervous apparatus in the best possible condition we must also take plenty of muscular exercise. Exercise that will send the blood coursing through the veins and yet does not wear the brain by requiring any great degree of thought is the best.

If one observes these prime principles of diet and exercise and adds to them the proper amount of sleep then the nerves will take care of themselves.

Bedside disinfection is the best means of preventing the spread of typhoid fever. The patient's body and bed linen should be disinfected frequently with an antiseptic.

The ordinary every-day man by avoiding the excesses of life can easily add five years to his life.

Most of the diseases that suddenly strike home after a man has put his forty-fifth birthday behind are due to excesses. These excesses are over-eating, indulgence in alcoholic stimulants and overwork.

A moderate amount of good food with not too much meat, particularly at this time of the year, and drinking plenty of water will keep the digestion and kidneys in such condition as to avoid many of the troubles of later life.

Temperance in eating and drinking, the avoidance as much as possible of any nervous strain, and the indulgence in 15 or 20 minutes of exercise night and morning—these give the best insurance of a long and happy life.

Some physical defects, however, will develop in all people as they pass middle life. Everyone over 40 years of age should have a complete physical examination once a year by a competent physician so that any disease may be detected at its beginning and checked before it does its deadly work.

For the man of middle age walking offers the best possible form of exercise for keeping physically fit. At that age most men, having settled down more or less to a sedentary life, should make it a point to walk at least several miles a day and more if there is nothing organically wrong with the system.

It is not only a natural form of exercise, but it is exercise in the open air. People can go for days without food and water, but the moment fresh air is cut off the whole system suffers.

But to maintain health and even life itself the lungs must draw in air that has not been robbed of its oxygen by another person just having used it. The lungs must be supplied with air free from the poisons given off from the bodies of people crowded into poorly ventilated places, such as overheated rooms or crowded street cars.

A bad temper usually originates in a bad digestion.

The winter season, with its increased amount of trouble and excitement caused by hard work, late hours, social affairs and rigorous weather has left its mark on many people in the form of coughs, cold or a feeling of indolence or lack of vitality showing that the extra burden placed upon the system by the severe condition of the season has lowered the natural resisting powers of the normal body.

With the coming of spring there is much talk of "spring medicine" and "spring tonics."

Far too many people turn to such sources for relief. There are many good reasons why these alluring "tonics" should be avoided. One is that they rarely do any good and another is that they may often do serious harm.

Regular habits a proper amount of exercise, fresh air and good food are common sense remedies for the feeling of lassitude which is felt at this season of the year.

If you do feel ill enough to need medicine, consult a skilled physician instead of doctoring yourself.

Your Prayer Habits.

By S. D. Gordon.

"At five minutes before noon daily, by the eastern standard time, every Western Union Telegraph company's instrument cuts its connection and is put in communication with the instrument in the naval observatory in the city of Washington. At five seconds before twelve a warning tick sounds over the wires. When the skilled operator in the observatory sees, by his delicately adjusted instrument, that the sun is for a single moment directly over the imaginary line of longitude passing through the city, that moment the fact is flashed over thousands of miles of wire and every one of the company's clocks made true. Then business is resumed. The work of the day is planned with reference to this appointment. The company's rule is to be absolutely accurate in the matter of time; to test that accuracy every day; and to test it by the standard set in the heavens. All this is purely for commercial purposes. Shall not we, whose lives are so utterly dependent upon the Master, cut clean our connections with every outside thing at least once in every twenty-four hours, and put our heart's beating in time and in tune with His heart, that He may have a chance to set and keep us true, and that we may not be misrepresenting Him?"

A place, a time, memories, associations, and hopes all woven together make the prayer habit. Among the Hebrews each family had a precious possession, a prayer shawl. The head of the household put on this shawl, when he gathered all the family up into the fellowship of prayer. When a boy was eleven years of age, this shawl was put upon his shoulders and he was taught to say the prayers not only for himself, but for the family; in order that he might carry on the duties of the family when his father should die. Let us make our prayer habits like the prayer shawl, a wonderful possession, a pride, a joy, and a responsibility.

HOME WHERE MOTHER IS.

A little child being asked, "Where is your home?" replied, "Where mother is."

"You touched a chord in my heart when you spoke of home," said a drunkard to a friend, "if there ever was a good man it was my father." Let Jesus into your heart and home and life will be "happy" continually in His presence.

WALK TO YOUR WORK

Don't coddle yourself.

If you live within three miles of your place of business, whether you are a shop worker, an office man or woman, or even an out-of-door toiler—walk to your work.

Too many of us, quick to adopt every fresh convenience, forget that the most precious possession of all, health, is endangered by the softening luxuries of present-day civilization.

It is the usual thing, especially in our larger cities, for us to climb aboard a stuffy, ill-ventilated street car and ride to business; sometimes only a matter of a dozen blocks.

Walk to your work. Fill your lungs with clean, fresh air; throw off the lethargy of the night's sleep, brace your shoulders and walk!

This business of riding every distance covered by a few city blocks is a custom that belongs in the class of French cookery, hermetically-sealed bed chambers, and such.

Don't coddle yourself!

WHY SHOULD WE PRAY?

Hillel had a wise disciple whose name was Maimon. In natural gifts he greatly delighted. But soon Hillel perceived that his youthful friend trusted too much in his own wisdom, and wholly discarded the aid of prayer. The youth said in his heart, "Why should we pray? Does the Almighty need our words in order to aid and bless us? Then He is human. Can man's sighs and petitions change the counsels of the eternal? Will not the All-merciful of Himself bestow what is good and needful?" Such were the young man's thoughts. But Hillel was grieved in his soul that Maimon considered himself wiser than the Divine Word, and he determined to reprove him. One day when Maimon went to Hillel, he found him sitting in his garden, leaning his head upon his hand, and he said, "Master, where are thy thoughts?" Then Hillel raised his head and answered in these words, "I have a friend who lives upon the produce of his lands, which until now he has cultivated with care, and has been richly rewarded for his pains. But now he has thrown aside plough and mattock, and no more cultivates his field. Thus he will soon come to poverty, and lack the necessaries of life." "Has a spirit of ill-humor seized him, or has he become a fool?" asked the youth. "Neither," answered Hillel; "he is well skilled in all human and sacred wisdom. But he says, the Lord is almighty, so that He can easily supply my wants without my bending my head to labor. He is good, so that He will open His kind hand to bless my table. And how can it be contradicted?" "How?" said the youth: "is it not tempting the Lord God? Hast thou not told him so, master?" Then Hillel smiled, and said, "I will do so now. Thou, my beloved Maimon, art the friend of whom I spake." "I," said the youth, in amazement. "Ay," said the old man; "dost thou not tempt the Lord? Is prayer less than labor? and are spiritual gifts less than the fruits of the field? And is He who commands thee to labor for earthly goods other, than He who bids thee to raise thy heart to heaven to implore heavenly blessings? O, my son, be humble, believe, and pray!" So spake Hillel, and Maimon went away to pray, and henceforth his life was a godly one.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE FARMER

The Maintenance of a Fruit Garden Brings Healthful Employment, and as One's Interest in Growing Plants Increases, This Employment, Instead of Proving a Hardship, Will Become a Source of Pleasure.

A fruit garden consists of an assemblage of fruit-bearing trees and shrubs, maintained for the purpose of supplying the family with fruits. In its general purposes, then, the fruit garden is intended to accomplish results similar to those of the vegetable garden. In distinction from an orchard, the fruit garden is more restricted in area; it is intended for home rather than market purposes, and consequently comprises a much greater variety of fruits.

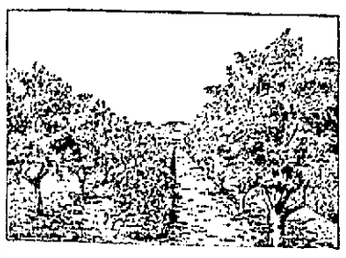
Considering the general desire for and appreciation of fruits by people of all classes, it is amazing that even those who have suitable situations and facilities for raising them, and who can not purchase them because of remoteness from markets, have not established home fruit gardens.

With the growth of the commercial fruit interests of the United States the home fruit garden has been lost sight of. Only a few years ago the owners of home gardens not only led in the production of fruits, but were our authorities as to how and where to grow them. To-day these gardens, while no less numerous or important, are overshadowed by the orchards where fruit is grown for commercial purposes.

While both the home garden and the orchard are essential to the good of the community, they bear very different relations to the fruit interests of the country as a whole. The home garden is always the forerunner of commercial development, and even in those localities where climatic and soil conditions are adverse to conducting such industries on an extensive scale the home fruit garden of the enthusiastic amateur is certain to be found. All the success attained today by the fruit interests of the United States has grown out of the persevering efforts of a few men whose home fruit gardens served not only as testing stations for determining the fitness of given sorts for new and untried localities, but they were the propagating grounds from which sorts of the highest quality and greatest commercial value originated.

The testing of varieties in new localities and the development and dissemination of new sorts by the amateur is an important work, but the greatest good accomplished by him is to be found in the wholesome influence which he exerts on the community in which he lives. A community is certain to profit aesthetically as well as financially from the influence of such growers, and it is to them that we owe our appreciation for high quality. A discriminating taste developed in a neighborhood creates a demand which it pays well to gratify, and the amateur who grows fruits for quality will find a ready market in such a section.

The inhabitants of this country are notably a fruit-loving and fruit-eating people. Notwithstanding this, however, fruit culture has grown to be classed among the specialties, and few persons who consume fruit are actual growers. The possibilities in fruit culture upon restricted areas have been very generally overlooked, with the result that many persons who own a city lot, a suburban home, or even a farm, now look upon fruit as a luxury. This can all be changed, and much of the land which is now practically waste and entirely unremunerative can be made to produce fruits in sufficient quantity to give them a regular place upon the family bill of fare and at the same time add greatly to the attractiveness of the table and healthfulness of the diet. The home production of fruit stimulates an interest in and a love for natural objects which can only be acquired by that familiarity with them which comes through their culture. The cultivation of fruits teaches discrimination. A grower is a much more intelligent buyer than one who has not had the advantages of tasting the better dessert sorts as they come from the tree. If every purchaser was a good judge of the different kinds of fruits, the demand for fruits of high quality, to produce which is the ambition of every amateur, as well as every professional fruit grower, would become a reality. But until some means of teaching the differences in the quality of fruits can be devised the general public will continue to buy according to the eye rather than by the palate. The encouragement of the cultivation of fine fruits in the home garden will do much toward teaching buyers this discrimination.



Raspberries Between Apple Trees.

Besides increasing the fruit supply and cultivating a taste for quality, the maintenance of a fruit garden may be made a great source of pleasure. The possession of a tree which one himself has planted and reared to fruit production carries an added interest in its product, as well as in the operation by which it was secured. The unfolding of the leaf, the exposure of the blossom buds, the development of the flowers, and the formation of the fruit are all processes which measure the skill of the cultivator, and when the crowning result of all these natural functions has been attained in a crop of perfect fruit, the man under whose care these results have been achieved will himself have been made happier and better.

To those familiar with the facilities at command for the culture of fruit, and the general interest in the subject, the remarkable absence of successful fruit gardens about city, suburban, and country residences can be explained only on the ground that those who would be most likely to give attention to their care and maintenance have no object lessons or literature at hand to guide them in laying out such gardens.

Most persons engaging in the cultivation of a home fruit garden will have as their chief aim the production of fruit for the family table and the pleasure it affords; others will go a step farther and find an added source of pleasure in the problems of cross-pollination and the production of new forms. In a majority of cases, however, the aim will be the one first mentioned, and it is to assist such that the suggestions contained in this article are offered.

In order to prove a source of constant pleasure and gratification a fruit plantation must claim the attention of its owner from early spring to late autumn; its products, too, must be so planned as to cover the greatest possible portion of the seasons between frosts. The problem presented involves a succession of fruits, from earliest to latest, as well as a combination of light-loving and shade-enduring plants. The intensive culture and the liberal feeding to be given demands that all plants be of types which bear early and heavily in proportion to their size. The question of longevity is of no moment; immediate fruit production is the object. With this view of the question, taken in connection with the great variety of conditions presented both by the extent of the country and the manner of life of those interested, it is manifestly impossible to make general statements.

The interest of a fruit garden may be greatly enhanced by growing therein plants not adapted naturally to the climatic region in which the garden is located, as, for instance, the growing of figs as far north as the latitude of Philadelphia. The summers of the region are sufficiently long and warm to induce a strong growth in the fig, but as the fruits normally require a long period in which to mature, the plant becomes useless as a fruit producer unless sufficient protection is afforded to carry over winter the immature fruits set the previous fall. This can be successfully accomplished in several ways. The most hardy sort should be selected, in addition to which the fruiting shoots may be wrapped in matting, covered with straw, and the fruits thus successfully protected; or, if it seems desirable, temporary sheds may be built over the plants, and these thatched with straw or fodder sufficiently to protect them from frost. Then, again, semihardy sorts may be tipped over by cutting the roots on one side, bending the branches close to the soil, pinning them down, and then covering the whole plant with matting and earth or a straw thatch and earth. At the extreme northern limit of fig culture it has been found that the covering of earth is preferable to any other method, while at the South, where only slight protection is necessary, bending down and covering with pine boughs or thatching with corn stalks has proved most successful.

By the use of one or the other of these methods of protecting plants the peach has been grown and successfully fruited in the southern central part of South Dakota, along the Missouri River.

Besides these protective devices, sheltered places, where growth is retarded in spring, may be taken advantage of in order to hold back such early blooming plants as apricots, Japanese plums, etc. Apricots planted and trained on the north wall of a building are frequently sufficiently retarded at blooming time to insure a crop, while if planted in the open and trained as a "standard" the fruit crop will be killed by late spring frosts.

For commercial purposes the use of most of these protective measures is precluded on account of expense. The commercial grower can not indulge in such expensive devices unless he has the assurance of obtaining a fancy price for his product. In a home fruit garden, however, it is different. The expense of protecting a half dozen plants is trifling, and many amateurs will incur it for the sake of the novelty of securing fruits naturally adapted to other climatic regions.

*For specific recommendations as to varieties of fruits adapted to the various fruit sections of the United States, send to Washington, D. C., for Farmers' Bulletin No. 208, "Varieties of Fruits Recommended for Planting."

The most intensive system of growing strawberries is to set the plants about fifteen inches apart in the rows, with the rows sixteen inches apart, and to cultivate both ways.

Lost Three Months Going to Water

The following account is taken from an Oklahoma paper:

"How many unnecessary steps do you take each day in your routine of work? Just listen to this story of an Oklahoma farmer who lost more than three months in leading horses to water, and then do a little figuring on your own part.

"In Hughes County, Oklahoma, a farmer watered his horses from a spring 200 yards from his barn. Every time his work horses got a drink the farmer and his horses walked 400 yards out of their way. One day the county agricultural agent, T. A. Millstead, visited the farm and noticed that the farmer was taking many unnecessary steps. The agent suggested that a well be dug near the barn.

"The agent believed that water could be struck at twenty-three feet. The farmer doubted this, but said he was willing to dig fifty feet if he could be assured of finding a plentiful water supply. Finally he proceeded to the digging of a well, and to the surprise alike of the farmer and the county agent, a bountiful supply of water was struck at only eight feet.

"Then the agent and the farmer got to figuring how much time was saved by the well. The farmer found that he spent thirty minutes on each trip to the spring and back. During the time he had lived on the farm he had spent ninety-one days of ten hours a day leading horses to water. The time of the horses was also lost; so the farmer figured that his eight-foot well was about the biggest investment on his place."

How many farmers could effect an equal saving by putting in a pipe line and tank or by digging a well?

THE CARE AND MARKETING OF SQUABS

Whether or Not the Squab-Raising Industry is Profitable, Depends Upon the Kind of Treatment the Birds Receive, and Upon the Accessibility and Nearness of the Plant to a Good Market.

It is a debatable question with squab breeders today whether birds should be kept in small or large flocks. While one will advocate keeping not over fifty pairs in a loft, another will advocate keeping twenty-five, and a third will claim that there is no harm in keeping 200 pairs together. Observations have led the writer to believe that forty pairs can be kept together quite successfully. These should have about fifty square feet of floor space and the lofts should be at least six feet high.

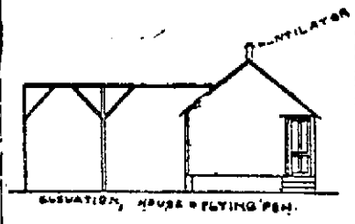
There should also be a fly from six to eight feet high the width of the loft and from twenty to thirty feet in length. Some breeders make the fly high enough so that it will extend over part of the roof of the pigeon house, in order that the birds may sit in the sun. This is not only injurious to the roof, but encourages the birds to lazy habits, whereas to get successful results in breeding they must be kept working, or at least not encouraged to idleness.

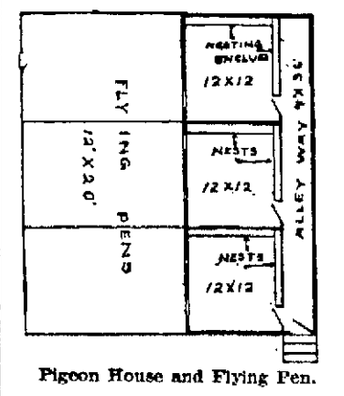
The estimated cost of feeding a pair of pigeons varies from $1 to $1.50 a year. Reports from a number of pigeon farms give an average cost of $1.32.

Clear drinking water, grit, broken oyster shell, and charcoal should be kept before the pigeons all the time. Salt is fed to pigeons in various forms, and a supply of this material is generally considered essential. Pigeons not accustomed to eating fine salt are apt to eat too much if given a large quantity at one time, although fine salt is used with good success by many careful feeders. Salt may be fed in a lump form, such as rock salt or as fine salt moistened and baked into a hard lump, without danger of the pigeons eating too much. Salt may also be fed mixed with grit, charcoal, and oyster shell.

Pans of water should be provided daily except during the winter and placed in the yards or flyways. These bath pans are usually filled in the morning and emptied about noon. They should be used only about twice a week during the winter but should then be kept on the floor of the house.

As squabs are reared and fed by both of the parent birds on a thick, creamy mixture called pigeon milk, produced in the crop of the pigeons, it is essential that pigeons rearing squabs have a plentiful supply of grain to insure rapid growth of the young. Pigeons usually feed the squabs shortly after they themselves are fed, and should not be disturbed at that time, thus making it advisable to water them before they are fed. Care should always be taken not to frighten or disturb pigeons or squabs any more than is absolutely necessary.

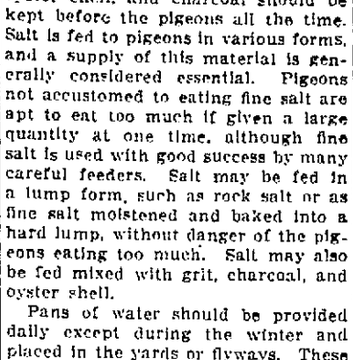




Pigeon House and Flying Pen.

Squabs are ready for market usually from 3½ to 4½ weeks of age, and up to this time they are fed by their parents. They must be sent to market promptly as the period during which they are in best condition rarely exceeds one week. Squabs are in good market condition when fully feathered under the wings, which is usually about the time they begin to leave the nest. If they are not killed at this time they soon lose their baby fat and their flesh begins to harden.

Catch the squabs to be marketed in the morning before they are fed by their parents, so that their crops will be empty. Squabs are usually killed in the same manner as poultry by cutting the arteries in the back part of the roof of the mouth and piercing the brain, but if sent to market without plucking they are usually killed by wringing or breaking the neck. The latter is done by pressing the thumb against the place where the bones of the neck join the head, until the head is dislocated. In sticking, the squabs are hung by their legs on nails or hooks, with their wings double-locked. After they are stuck the feathers are immediately plucked clean with the exception of the head, and the birds are cooled either by placing them in cold water or by hanging them in a cool place. The crop should be cut open and thoroughly cleaned if it contains any feed.



Common Type of Pigeon House.

Squabs should be graded according to size and quality, as dark-colored and small squabs tend to lower the price paid for an entire shipment of mixed squabs. They are usually packed for shipment in a good supply of cracked ice, breasts up, with paraffin paper between each layer of ice and squabs. Some express companies have a special rate for squab shipments, which should be secured wherever possible. The express charges on small shipments of squabs reduce the profit materially, making it difficult to sell the squabs from a small flock at a profit if they have to be shipped to commission men. As the period at which a squab is right for market is not over one week, it is necessary to have a good-sized flock to have over one dozen squabs ready for market at one time. A local market which will take any number of squabs is a great aid to the small producer. Where one has a small flock it usually pays best to build it up until it is large enough to make good-sized shipments of squabs. This, however, requires a constant outlay without any return for some time.

Type of Nests With Movable Front and Partitions.

The production of squabs from each pair of breeders varies from 1 or 2 to as high as 10 or 11 pairs a year, but an average of from 6 to 7 pairs is a fair estimate, although some squab breeders do better than this. Squabs usually sell at the highest prices during cold weather, as pigeons do not breed as freely during the winter as during the spring.

Provided breeding stock was healthy when secured, cleanliness in pens, flyways and yards is the best preventive against canker and "going light," the most common diseases of pigeons. There is very little chance of making money from squabs unless through cleanliness in yards and pens is practiced and pigeons can be kept comparatively free from diseases and insect parasites.

The stock should be carefully watched and any sick birds removed from the breeding pens. The house should be kept dry, clean, well ventilated, and free from drafts. The yards should be kept clean either by scraping the surface and adding fresh sand or gravel or by cultivating the land and planting it to grain if possible. Only good, sound grain should be fed.

DEPTH FOR OATS.

The best depth to sow oats varies with the soil and the season. In any case they should be covered with half an inch to an inch of moist soil. They should be sown deeper in sandy soils than in loams or clays. Deeper seeding is also necessary when the ground is dry than when it is moist. On the average the best depth is from 1 to 1½ inches.

HOW TO CONTROL THE DESTRUCTIVE CATALPA SPHINX

By F. H. CHITTENDEN.

Our native species of catalpa are comparatively free from insect attack but there is one insect, however, the caterpillar of the catalpa sphinx, which feeds normally and exclusively on the foliage of these trees and in some seasons does very considerable injury, often completely stripping the leaves from individual trees and sometimes from an entire grove. Owing, doubtless, to the increased planting of these trees outside the regions in which they are found in the wild state, this insect has extended its natural range, and its injury is more widespread now than formerly.

There are several methods by which the catalpa sphinx may be readily destroyed. The caterpillars may be gathered by hand, the foliage of the trees may be sprayed with arsenical poisons, the pupae may be destroyed by spading the ground around the tree trunks in the fall, and, indirectly, the sphinx may be destroyed by protecting the parasitic insects which attack it. Owing to its large size, the caterpillar is easily seen and can be controlled by hand picking. A long ladder and a 12-foot pole pruner or similar device will be necessary in this work.

Where hand picking is difficult the application of an arsenical spray or combination of arsenicals and Bordeaux mixture is the best method of their control. The proper arsenical spray would be made with either 1 pound of Paris green or 3 pounds of arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water. When the combined spray is used the same quantity of arsenical should be mixed with 50 gallons of Bordeaux mixture instead of the water. The danger that free arsenic may burn the foliage is lessened and the Bordeaux mixture may control leaf spot and other similar diseases which affect the catalpa. The spray may be applied with a small outfit for young trees or with a large high-power machine such as is used in spraying high trees along city avenues.

The caterpillar is attacked by a number of parasites and the entomologists advise tree owners to encourage the propagation of these natural enemies of the sphinx. One of these, a minute four-winged, wasplike fly, lays its eggs in the sphinx caterpillar. This is the same fly which attacks tobacco and tomato hornworms. The eggs of these parasites hatch into white, maggot-like larvae which develop in the body of the caterpillar and then eat through its skin and spin little white cocoons attached to the outside of its body. As these parasites are mostly in evidence in September and October and largely destroy the last generation of caterpillars, it is unwise at such times, especially if the white cocoons are visible, to kill the caterpillars by other means. Where beneficial parasites are in evidence and caterpillars can be easily gathered, it may pay to pick them from the leaves and transfer them to barrels or large boxes covered with wire netting. This will prevent the caterpillars from getting out or failing a prey to birds or other animals and will insure the issuance of the parasites through the meshes. A few holes, small enough to prevent the caterpillar from escaping, should be bored in the bottom of the barrels to prevent the accumulation of water which might drown the insects or cause them to putrefy.

When Spray Doesn't Stick

According to the Experiment Station Record, two Frenchmen, V. Vermorel and E. Dantony, have perfected a means of making bordeaux mixture stick, and to better enable it to wet the foliage to which it is applied. This process is through the addition of casein to the spray mixture.

"For the preparation of the casein," says the Record, "it is suggested that 50 grams of powdered casein be added to 100 grams of freshly slaked powdered lime, mixed with a small amount of water in the form of a paste. After this has stood for a short period, an additional amount of water may be added, until about a liter of liquid is obtained. This is then added to 100 liters of bordeaux mixture and is said to increase the adhesiveness very greatly.

"Gelatin has been found to confer upon sprays containing it an excellent spreading and wetting capacity and perfect adherence. Casein proved to be one of the best agents for increasing the wetting capacity of a spray, and to leave almost entirely intact the chemical composition of the precipitate, which it is adapted to distribute and fix upon the leaves.

DO YOUR HORSES EARN THEIR BOARD?

Statistics in Minnesota on a number of farms indicate that the horse is a costly item of equipment on the farm. Assuming average State yields of grain and hay for the last five years and considering the amount of feed fed annually to a horse it is apparent that the average farmer is giving close to 4.5 acres of his best land to each work horse. This is besides the straw consumed and the pasture, which also may be very productive land. Be sure the horse is giving you back an equivalent in productive work on a sufficient acreage.

"DON'TS" FOR THE MILKERS.

Don't put the can under the cow until her udder is clean.

Don't tie it too short.

Don't put your fingers in the milk. If you want to soften the teats, milk a drop into the palm of your hand and rub them with this.

Do not use high temperatures in the greenhouse or hotbeds. Weak, tender plants too often result.

CONCRETE MANURE PITS SAVE VALUABLE FERTILIZER

The use of concrete on the farm is long past the experimental stage. It is a necessity. The first cost of concrete is higher than for structures built of wood, but concrete is much cheaper in the long run.

For maintaining or restoring the fertility of the fields, there is nothing better than barn-yard manure. By the ordinary methods of piling manure on the ground or storing it in wooden pens or boxes, 30 to 50 per cent of its fertility is lost. This loss is brought about in two ways: First, by leaching or washing due to heavy rains; second, by fermentation or heating caused by lack of sufficient moisture. Since concrete pits are waterproof, manure may be kept in them as moist as may be necessary and such an enormous waste in the fertility of the manure may thus be entirely prevented. One load of manure from a concrete pit is worth 1½ to 2 loads of manure as usually stored. Moreover, with concrete pits the supply of manure is increased by all the liquid manure, the richest part, from the barn gutters and feeding floors.

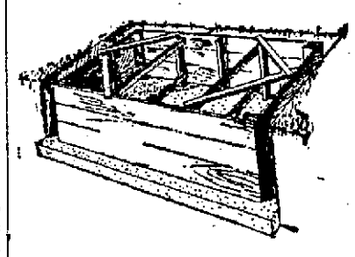
Shallow manure pits do very well where the manure can be frequently hauled to the fields. The walls and floor should be five inches thick. The clear dimensions of a convenient pit are: Depth, 3 feet; width, 6 feet; length, 12 feet. Dig the trench 3 ft. 5 in. x 6 ft. 10 in. x 12 ft. 10 in. By keeping the sides vertical only an inside form will be needed. Have enough woven-wire fencing 7½ feet long to cover the bottom of the pit. Lay the wire with an even division of the extra length, so that it may project upward into the side walls. The wire is laid after 2 inches thickness of concrete has been put in. The remaining three inches should be tamped in after the wire has been placed. Remove the forms after the concrete has set four days. The pit may be used after 10 days.

Where manure is to be stored for a considerable length of time, larger pits or basins are required. Such pits are seldom made over 5 feet deep (in the clear at the deeper end) and are wide enough that the manure may be loaded on a spreader in the pit and drawn up a roughened concrete incline or run. The slope for such a run must not be steeper than 1 foot up to 4 feet out.

In laying out the large pit bear in mind that the concrete walls and floors should be 8 inches thick and make due allowance for same when digging. With a spade trim the sides and the deep end vertical.

In order to form a sump hole from which the liquid manure can be pumped, in one corner at the deep end of the pit dig a hole 18 inches deep by 2½ feet in diameter.



Manure Pit Forms.

Do not forget that dirt in the concrete may make a poor wall, so if the top of the earthen wall tends to crumble, hold it back with 1-inch boards braced against the forms. To keep out flood water, the pit may be extended 6 inches above the ground by using the lower half of a 1-foot board to hold back the dirt, by allowing the remainder to project above the ground level, and by adding 6 inches to the height of the inside form.

DUCK FEEDING.

Young ducks should be fed from four to six times a day, according to the variety. Pekin ducks are the larger feeders, and grow very fast; they require more feed than other ducks, although they must not have feed that is highly concentrated. That is, it should be sufficiently nourishing but not too fattening.

Farm boys and girls are, as a rule, industrious and very anxious to learn.

HOW TO CUT SPINACH.

As convenient a way as any for cutting spinach is to use a sharp hoe to slice off the large plants as soon as they reach edible size, thus leaving the smaller ones for a week or two to grow larger. By so doing the season can be somewhat extended without risk of having the plants develop seed stalks, which they will start to do at the first hint of warm weather.

If horses have poor teeth their grain should be ground.

FEEDING CHICKS.

For the first three days chicks may be fed a mixture of equal parts hard-boiled eggs and stale bread, or stale bread soaked in milk. When bread and milk are used, care should be exercised to squeeze all milk out of the bread. From the third or fourth day until the chicks can eat wheat and cracked corn, commercial chick feed is a good ration.

WHY SHEEP SHOULD BE KEPT.

They should be kept to consume the waste products. On every farm these abound not only in the form of weeds but in the form of grasses of various kinds. These are found numerously in the grain fields after the grain has been reaped. They are found in the highways beside the farms, and they are found along fence borders whatsoever may be the build of these. The sheep that are given access to these will virtually clean up everything and in good form. The food thus eaten would otherwise be wasted, at least it would in large measure.

Old raspberry canes, that is, canes which have once borne fruit, may be cut out as soon as the crop is off. These canes never bear again.

An acre of pasture furnishes ample grazing for twelve 100-pound sheep.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

If nuts are soaked in hot water a few hours the meats will come out whole and with much ease.

After boiling beets, drop them into cold water, and the skins can be easily rubbed off by the hands.

When you wish to cut citron in thin slices place it in the oven and let it heat through.

KEEP THE LAWN CLEAR.

Do not put flower beds on the lawn. They should be at the rear in the garden, or at the side of the lawn. A good open lawn is better in every way than one littered with shrubs and trees.

TO PROTECT TOOLS FROM RUST.

It is a hard matter to keep the tools that have been laid away for the winter from rusting, and any remedy ought to be welcomed by the farmer. The following has been recommended, and there does not seem to be any reason why it should not do the work:

Take a quantity of good lard, add about two ounces of common resin, melt them slowly together, stirring as they cool. This may be applied with a brush or a cloth, just enough to give a thin coating to the metal surface to be protected.

If you hear a farmer say "Luck's against me," look around a bit. You will probably find his farm tools and implements standing in the fence corners where they were left in the fall.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, May 3.—Reports confirming green bug damage to the Oklahoma crop turned the wheat market up grade today after a weak opening.

The close was firm, ⅝c to ¾c net higher, with May at $1.15½ and July at $1.16¾@1.16⅞.

The opening, which ranged from ⅜c off to ¼c up, with May at $1.14⅝ to $1.15, and July at $1.15 ⅜ to $1.16⅛, were followed by a moderate uptur.. all around.

Corn sagged in sympathy with the early weakness of wheat. After opening unchanged to ⅛c down, prices averaged slightly lower than yesterday's finish.

The close was steady, unchanged to ⅝c higher.

Oats eased off owing to the bearish action of corn.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, May 3.—Some of the better known specialties displayed marked heaviness on the resumption of trading today. Bethlehem Steel falling 14½ points, with declines of a point or more for Crucible Steel, the locomotives, Marines preferred, Studebaker, Butte and Superior and Great Northern ore. On the other hand the more hopeful feeling regarding Mexican affairs found reflection in the improvement of Mexican Petroleum and American Smelting, those issues recovering much of yesterday's loss. U. S. Steel was unchanged and rails were fractionally lower, while the balance of the list was irregular at nominal changes.

Prices hardened and activity increased later, intimations of an early and encouraging statement from Berlin being the chief factor. Gains of two to four points were numerous, the rise being extended by extended short coverings. Mexicans continued strong despite reports of confiscation of foreign owned concessions. U. S. Steel was in better demand than recently and Reading and Norfolk and Western were among the prominent rails. Bonds were irregular.

Some specialties, including Marines, Studebaker, American Can and Tennessee Copper, were at lowest prices in the last hour. The closing was heavy.

AGED SISTER OF REV. J. H. OECHTERING DIES

Miss Antoinette Oechtering Expires at Sanitarium at Age of 83 Years.

Miss Antoinette Oechtering, sister of Rt. Rev. Mgr. John H. Oechtering, of St. Mary's Catholic church, and who had been a resident of Fort Wayne for thirty-six years, died Tuesday morning at Dearborn, Mich., at the advanced age of 83 years. She had entered the sanitarium of that place just before Easter in hopes of regaining her health which had been failing for the past two years. However, she steadily declined until the final call came.

Miss Oechtering came to Fort Wayne with her brother, July 14, 1880, and had resided here since. She continued her duties as housekeeper for her brother and during her residence in Fort Wayne had won the friendship and high esteem of hundreds of people. Her many noble traits of character and her frequent acts of charity endeared her to many who will remember her in years to come.

The deceased was born in Lingen, Hanover, Germany, but came to America in 1860 with her brother, who was ordained to the priesthood in that year. He was first assigned to Elkhart. He resided in Mishawaka, where his sister served him as housekeeper. The following year he was transferred to Laporte, where he and his sister resided for ten years. Then they came to Fort Wayne.

Surviving she leaves two brothers—Rt. Rev. Mgr. J. H. Oechtering, of Fort Wayne, and Herman Oechtering, of Lingen, Hanover, Germany; a sister, Mrs. Mary Schindler, of Fort Wayne, six nephews and a niece.

The remains, accompanied by her brother and Herman Berghoff, will arrive in Fort Wayne Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock and after 4 o'clock friends may view the remains at St. Mary's rectory, 430 East Jefferson street.

Funeral services Friday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's Catholic church. Rt. Rev. J. H. Oechtering will be celebrant at solemn requiem high mass; Rev. Nicholas Allgeier, of Garrett, deacon; Rev. George Hasser, sub-deacon. In accordance with the wish of the deceased there will be no sermon. Friends are also asked to omit flowers.

FUNERAL NOTICES.

Struntz—Private funeral services for Christian G. Struntz will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, 333 East Berry street, Rev. Jacob Miller officiating. Interment at Concordia. Omit flowers.

YOUNG SPEEDER IS GIVEN GRACE DAYS

Jack Underwood Hitting Up Forty-Two Miles an Hour.

Jack Underwood, a youth with a motorcycle and a mania for speed, was proved in the city court Wednesday morning to have been hitting the asphalt of Lake avenue at the small pace of forty-two miles an hour when Motorcycle Officer Elmer Young clocked the youngster's gait at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon. The motor cop had to unleash his own racer and let the indicator climb to fifty-five miles an hour before he could catch up with the scorcher. Underwood admitted he was going some, but thought he was not going as fast as the officer's speedometer proved. Officer Young caught Underwood reeling off thirty-five miles an hour last Sunday on State boulevard and warned him. Then he happened on him Tuesday hanging up new marks on Lake avenue, and sent him in.

"Are you Tom Underwood's son?" inquired the court of the boy speed-merchant.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Well, you report to me next Saturday," said the court and the youngster marched away on his own recognizance and held levee with some of his young friends in the market plaza, while he tuned up his machine for another ride.

Junker Gets a Fine.

The state's case was vastly less conclusive but the results were a deal more positive in the matter of Albert Wilson, a junk dealer at 1933 Fairfield avenue, who was charged in an affidavit with receiving stolen goods. Two little boys about 9 years old and uncommonly bright testified that they had taken two old handsaws from a barn on Williams street and sold them to Wilson for a dime apiece, after forging to cards the junker gave them to take home the names of their respective fathers. The lads went out of the shop, strolled about fifteen or twenty minutes and returned with the cards duly signed and authorizing the junk merchant to purchase the broken and rusty old saws that were surely no bargain at ten cents each. The same lads had sold some burlaps and a horse blanket to the dealer's wife later. This stuff also was taken from barns.

Judge Kerr fined Wilson $10 and costs, which was paid.

Other City Court Cases.

John Kelly, just out of jail Tuesday morning after fifteen days, found himself in such a plight from rheumatism begotten of life in the bastile that he forgot he was going to leave town and instead got drunk again. He was very abusive when arrested and fought the police. He made several compromise propositions to the court, but with a plea of guilty and two previous convictions $25 and costs did not appear excessive and he went back to jail.

John F. Fisher, a drunk, was turned loose and John Rogers, also drunk, drew similar leniency, while Ed Poulson drew eleven days.

Ora Farrell, an 18-year-old youth picked up drunk in the W[illegible] road yards with a pint of whisky still outside of himself, was turned out, being unable to identify the barkeep who sold him liquor.

The charge of neglecting his wife, filed against Clarence Osterman by that lady herself, was dismissed by Prosecutor John C. Hoffman when she failed for the second consecutive day to appear.

Fred Dammeyer, bartender in the Walter Basls saloon, 1413 Hanna street, was fined $35 and costs for selling drinks to John Krauter, a minor who got drunk and was arrested.

Joe Tuosky, charged with keeping a gambling device in the Fairfield avenue store, was continued until May 24.
